Gardeners' Meeting.

The largest attendance of the year greeted the officers at the monthly meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners at the Forest park greenhouses Wednesday, April 7. President Jensen presided.

All committees in charge of arrangements for the coming convention of the American Association of Gardeners reported that the arrangements for the various events during the convention were completed. President Jensen announced that the dates for that meeting would be September 6 to 8; these dates being chosen in order to allow the members of the Park Superintendents' Association to be present, since they will meet in convention September 9 to 11 at Louisville, Ky.; they will leave this city on a special train for Louisville the evening of September 8. The sum of $125 was raised at the meeting toward the defraying of the expenses of entertaining the national association.

The feature of the evening was the talk of Hugo Schaff on "City Garden Designs of Flowers and Foliage Plants"; this brought out a good discussion.

The next meeting will be held at the same place May 5, when Herman Schwarz will open an interesting discussion.

Bowling League.

The big bowling night will be Saturday, April 24, at the Western Rowing Club. A meeting was held at the store of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., Monday evening, April 5, and all arrangements were completed for the big event. All florists are invited to attend and take part in the bowling, for which special prizes will be offered. Refreshments will be served after the bowling and the various prizes will be distributed by the committee in charge.

The results of the bowling Wednesday night, April 7, were that the Carnations won two from the Sweet Peas and the Daisies won two from the Roses.

Various Notes.

The Ladies' Florists' Club met at the home of Mrs. E. E. Windler, on Virginia avenue, Wednesday afternoon, April 7. The attendance was good and all present enjoyed a decidedly pleasant afternoon.

F. W. Ude, Jr., of Kirkwood, is spending most of his time this winter in Florida, where he and his son, Emil, have large interests in a fruit farm. The other two sons, Martin and Paul, are managing the greenhouses during his absence.

Joseph Hill, of the Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., was in this city April 9, looking after a shipment of 12,000 Premier roses for California. They were sidetracked on the east side and could not be moved by rail because of the strike. Mr. Hill expects to take them back to Richmond in a truck.

The six wholesale houses were loaded down with stock April 8 to 10 and no outgoing shipments could be made, although there were plenty of shipping orders on hand. The stock had to be sold off cheap in large lots to the local buyers.

The Alton Floral Co. and Mrs. Krug, Alton, Ill., report the best Easter trade which they have ever had.

At Belleville, Ill., G. W. Grossart, Henry Emunds, W. E. Ogle, Matthew Schoenberger and Adolph Fehr all did a big Easter business and say that there was an unusual demand for blooming plants this year.

On the east side, Miss Doussard, J. J. Friday, A. Mirring and the branch of Grimm & Gorly under the management of Charles Hahn report that never before was Easter trade so good as this year; everything sold well and all cleaned up early.

The show houses of Fred C. Weber, P. Hueber, the Sanders Nursery, George Waldbart and the Ayres Floral Co. have been replenished, as the Easter sales cleaned them out.

The Blossom Shop has been having a large amount of wedding and funeral work since Easter. Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Rothenheber, proprietors of the store, have purchased a new pleasure car.

Suburban visitors April 8 were J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Arno Grossart, A. B. Fehr and Matthew Schoenberger, Belleville, Ill.; George Madsen, Alton, Ill.; Edwin Denker, St. Charles, Mo.; Charles Johann, Collinsville, Ill., and Lucian Doussard, East St. Louis, Ill. They all attended the

Walter Amling, Pana, Ill.; Morris Le Vine, of Lion & Co., New York, and S. P. Dernison, with A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, spent a few days in this city last week.

L. Baumann, one of the most regular attendants at the meetings of the Florists' Club, says that he had to miss the last one because of heavy orders in landscape work.

Heil & Haizlep's new store, in the extreme west end, furnished a large wedding last week. This with other social work kept the force busy all the week.

CLEVELAND, O.

Easter Business.

Cleveland florists had the biggest and best Easter trade ever experienced. The weather was good, with the exception of Sunday afternoon, when there was a steady downpour of rain.

Carnations and bulbous stock were plentiful. Roses and peas were far short of the demand. The warm weather a few days before Easter showed its effect on violets. Small roses for corsages were scarce. Plants were cleaned up in a short time, many stores being sold out early Saturday. Lily plants were scarce and few were seen in the stores. The demand for corsages was far greater than in any previous year; many florists kept a crew busy doing nothing but making corsages and many customers were turned away.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been fairly good. Roses and carnations moved well. Bulbous stock was scarce and in demand. Peas cleaned up well. Greens are a little more plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. B. Wilhelmy received his new Dodge truck in time for the rush.

The Daisy Hill Farms consigned sweet peas to this market in quantity.

D. Bramley, formerly with his brother, has opened a store on East Seventy-first street.

Albert Barber reports a wonderful Easter trade from all his stores.

W. F. B.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The Easter business was heavy. Both downtown and uptown stores shared in the increased volume of business and the stores were crowded until a late hour on Saturday night. Some of the florists state that they did double the business of last year, but that does not mean that they have double the profit, because of the high prices paid for flowers.

After the rush of Easter the last week appeared to be quiet, but really it has not been so, as a reference to the cash register shows it to have been a heavy week. Flowers are fairly plentiful, though during the Easter rush there was a shortage of lilies, violets and sweet peas.

Club Meeting.

A telegram from George Asmus, of Chicago, states that he will be at the

The plan of George M. Geraghty, president of the Canadian Retail Florists' Association, is to have the meeting meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club and the growers April 19. President Dillemath, of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club, said that a telegram from W. H. Eiss, of Buffalo, N. of the executive committee of that association in the afternoon. They will then, with the growers and visitors from the United States, be entertained at dinner. ##### The Market.

The week after Easter was satisfactory. This is not usually the case. The good showing is due to two things, clear weather and the bare market. Usually the first day or two after Easter sees the arrival of any amount of odds and ends, leftovers from Easter on the places of the growers. When these are added to the regular supply they quickly overload a market that is apt to be quiet after a big floral holiday. This Easter there was no accumulation. There was practically nothing left over anywhere. The clean-up was general. As a result, Easter Monday saw the arrival of but a few flowers. They were nice and fresh. The supply has slowly increased as the week advanced, but not enough to exceed the demand. Prices declined from twenty-five to thirty-three and one-third per cent at the beginning; then they held fairly well. An angry cloud appeared on the bright horizon Saturday when the transportation authorities declined shipments of perishables owing to the switchmen's strike. This created alarm in the market. Some shipments were sent by parcel post; some went at shipper's risk; some were refused outright. Fortunately, Saturday is not a heavy shipping day. Should the condition continue Monday and Tuesday of this week, the market will be completely demoralized.

Carnations have continued short of the demand. That is, pink and white; there is no need of red at present. Good sweet peas have also been asked for more frequently than they have been obtained. The fine peas of March have made the buyers extremely critical. They want the best. Snapdragon is a valuable flower just now. A lot of it

When it comes to Beauties this is the place

A big spring crop and extra fine quality.

Ever since Beauties were first introduced, they have been grown more consistently and more successfully around Philadelphia than anywhere else in the United States.

Associated with Philadelphia Beauties is the name of Burton—father and son. As Beauty Growers they rank very high. We have handled the Burton product for more than 15 years.

Every morning a big cut of these good Beauties are on sale in our daylight store.

The Lesson of Easter.

No one who has thoughtfully considered the florists' problems of today can fail to receive from Easter this idea: That so large a quantity of plants and flowers could be disposed of at one time is proof of their popularity. Add to that that prices, especially on plants, were higher than they have ever been before and there is every reason for confidence in the future of the business. The lesson of Easter is clear and

West Laurel Hill.

When William Donaghy came to the West Laurel Hill Cemetery Co. sixteen years ago, there were only a couple of small greenhouses on the place. They were down in the valley. Now there are a dozen or so, large, built on high, dry ground, with a great, big shed dividing the place in two. The shed is so large that a big truck or double team can easily pass throughout its entire length without danger of mishap. On this particular day this roomy shed was full of plants in full bloom. That made it appear fairly alive with color. There were hyacinths and hydrangeas and tulips and astilbes and lilies and many more. It was the general excellence of these plants which made it clear that the company knew what they were doing when they erected this range of glass for Mr. Donaghy to manage. House after house of plants were in good condition, clean and thrifty. Aside from the Easter plants, the stock grown was mainly of the soft-wooded type, running all the way from Alternanthera brilliantissima to Mesembryanthemum cordifolium aureum. The plants that bore most eloquent testimony to Mr. Donaghy's skill were the geraniums. He said there were 75,000 of them. They were in 4-inch pots, stocky, close-jointed and even, a fine sight. The varieties were Alphonse Ricard, S. A. Nutt, Mrs. Williams and two others which were unfamiliar. Mr. Donaghy said that this stock was grown for use on the place, which covers over 200 acres.

Charles E. Meehan thinks that it will be wise to buy coal early.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer sailed from New York for Europe on the steamer Mongolia April 10. His father, Henry Bayersdorfer, went over to see him off.

Edward Reid was indignant at the idea of the switchmen's strike holding up the business of the country, which has suffered so much during the war. Mr. Reid thought that our government should not permit it for a moment.

H. H. Battles' window contained an exquisite bunch of Delphinium Belladonna after Easter, their grace of form and delicacy of color tastefully displayed.

Professor A. C. Beal delivered an illustrated lecture on "Gladioli" before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in the New Century Club room the afternoon of April 13.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., is enjoying a few days' holiday. Those who know the big load of responsibility that Mr. Brunswick smilingly shoulders will wish him a jolly good time.

The April meeting of the German-town Horticultural Society was held in the library of Vernon park April 12. Edward Neville spoke on the plant exchange which is planned for the May meeting.

The weather was unusually cold for April and supplies were not particularly large during the whole of last week. Business April 10 was good and nearly all cut flowers cleaned up. The present week brings somewhat milder weather and this has increased arrivals, but trade is quite satisfactory and prices are holding up well.

nations have sold as high as $10, but $6 to $8 is a general average today, with a tendency toward lower prices. The last of the single violets sell at $2. Sweet peas are abundant and popular, with select flowers making $3 per hundred.

There is not a large supply of Dutch bulbous flowers and narcissi make $6 to $8 per hundred. Tulips are comparatively scarce. Small lots of hyacinths, ranunculuses and anemones arrive. Some splendid freesias still are coming in, also an abundance of yellow marguerites. Snapdragons continue decidedly in oversupply and superb spikes are offered at half their real value. Callas are somewhat overdone; so are cut lilies. In the way of miscellaneous flowers, some Bouvardia Humboldtii and orange blossoms are noted. Plant trade following Easter has been rather quiet.

At Horticultural Hall.

A. C. Burrage made another of his noteworthy orchid displays at Horticultural hall April 10 and 11, when his superintendent, Douglas Eccleston, set up a handsome group of 100 choice specimens, including some fine oncidiums, odontiodas, odontoglossums, renantheras, brassocattleyas, cypripediums and other genera. A silver medal was awarded to Odontioda Mrs. H. F. Chalifoux, and a similar award to Sophrolaelocattleya Anzæ. A certificate of merit was given to Odontioda Zephyr.

J. T. Butterworth had a nice collection of well flowered plants and received a silver medal for Odontoglossum Wilckeanum x gloriosum and honorable mention for O. cirrhosum x triumphans.

There was a constant stream of visitors, both April 10 and 11, to view these orchid displays.

Professor Osterhout delivered an interesting lecture on "Plant Breeding" at Horticultural hall April 10. In the course of his remarks he scouted the idea of new varieties being secured by selection; he believes that it will be rather by mutation, an opinion more generally held in scientific circles.

a postponed meeting April 13, when there was an excellent attendance. The flower salesmen presented their side in vigorous fashion.

The Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Co. states that its Easter sales were heavy and that demand continues excellent. This company's cut flower department has greatly increased its volume of sales since Julius and B. A. Snyder joined the firm.

Governor Calvin Coolidge signed the daylight-saving bill for Massachusetts April 9 and we shall start under the new dispensation April 25. The measure passed both house and senate by such overwhelming majorities and the demand for it was so general that the governor had no alternative. While there was some opposition to the bill from farmers, they were by no means unanimous in opposing it; in fact, some granges unanimously favored. This law becomes permanent and is not for one year, as many imagine. A repeal is necessary for a return to the old basis.

P. Welch says that he could have sold many thousands more of double violets for Easter, also that American Beauties sold extremely well. He is much concerned over the agitation in Canada to shut off imports of all cut flowers from the United States. With the present exchange against Canada added to the import duty, sales to the Dominion are an uncertain quantity.

Kidder Bros. brought in the last single violets of the season this week. They are always beautifully bunched and realize top-notch prices. This firm still has freesias of remarkable quality. Mr. Kidder states that a large crop of mushrooms appeared among his violets and that Mrs. Kidder sold over $80 worth of them last season. They came in the manure spontaneously, no spawn being used.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club meets April 20 at Horticultural hall. W. N. Craig will be the speaker and he will take as his subject "Some Seasonable Thoughts and Suggestions." There will be a good display of spring flowers.

Thomas F. Galvin, Jr., has moved to more commodious quarters at 224 Devonshire street, where he is on the street floor, with two large show windows.

One grower had over 3,500 lilies which failed to open in time for Easter, another 3,000, and others smaller quantities. With Easter, 1921, coming March 27, several who have grown lilies this season say they will try something more dependable. The late arrival of the bulbs made it impossible to flower the plants on time.

The Market.

Post-Easter conditions were rather remarkable this year, in that the market settled the Tuesday following Easter to a quite normal state. A good supply of flowers was available, with an active demand, and this condition continued throughout the week. Clearances were good and prices settled down to a pre-Easter basis, although it may be said that Easter prices, except in one or two lines, were not far removed from the normal. Easter business is reported generally as having been excellent. Cut flowers met an unusually good demand and many more plants could have been sold if they had been available.

The market at the beginning of this week was good, with a plentiful supply and a fairly active demand. Arrivals of roses are not particularly heavy, but there is a sufficiency, except of American Beauty, which is on the short side, special grades moving at $35 to $100 per hundred. Hybrid teas are of good quality, the weather having been quite cool for many days. Premier and Columbia seem to be prime favorites and Francis Scott Key scores well among the larger varieties. The price range is $3 to $25 per hundred, with Hadley and Key running to $50 per hundred.

Carnations are in fair supply and the demand for them is good at $4 to $6

Gardenias are abundant and, while selected stock brings $3 per dozen, much is cleared at as low as $5 per hundred. Cattleyas are quite plentiful, with an abundance of low-grade flowers. large quantities, the gladiolus being conspicuous as a newcomer. Spanish iris, pansies, snapdragons and daisies are in good demand, and myosotis, lupines, delphiniums, mignonette, calendulas, primroses, lilac and wallflowers clean up well at remunerative prices. Sweet peas move well, at 50 cents to $3 per hundred, and violets, which are favored by the cool weather, are bringing 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred.

Various Notes.

April 26 the new wholesale market in the old Greenhut building, or Siegel-Cooper building, as most people prefer to call it, Sixth avenue, Eighteenth to Nineteenth street, is to open with a good list of tenants. The large ground-floor space, which is occupied, has been remodeled to suit the purposes of the market, and walls and ceilings painted white. The store, or booth, of each wholesaler embodies every requirement for the business. The booths are separated from each other by 8-foot partitions and front on Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, with a 25-foot central aisle running east and west, with entrances on each street. Roman J. Irwin's offices and seed and bulb store are located on the mezzanine floor, fronting on Nineteenth street, and it is expected that the remainder of this floor will shortly be occupied by other interests allied to the florists' business. The following wholesalers will be found on opening day in the new quarters: J. K. Allen, J. S. Fenrich, H. E. Froment, the Henshaw Floral Co., William Badgley, John Young & Co., P. J. Smith, M. C. Ford, J. J. Coan, James McManus,

The Hudson tube station is beneath the building, the Sixth avenue elevated passes it and Seventh avenue and Broadway subway stations are only about a block away; therefore transportation facilities are excellent. In a way, the market is a realization of the dreams of some of the older wholesale men of a concentration of wholesale florists' interests.

The Von Tilzer "Say It with Flowers" song was on sale in New York at the beginning of the week in Columbia phonograph record form and will, doubtless, be on sale in other cities as soon as express conditions will permit. Those who have heard the record played say that it is tiptop.

At the beginning of the week, express service had become completely demoralized within the two or three days previous, owing to the great strike on the railroads. Passenger service was also suffering, service on the Erie being completely abandoned. Growers who could not ship by road conveyances were without means of getting their flowers to market, except by bringing them in as baggage in hand. How long these conditions would last no one could say, but there was no sign then of immediate relief.

The flower show committees of the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York held a meeting April 12, at which a satisfactory settlement of matters in connection with the recent flower show was accomplished. The two organizations will share a handsome balance accruing from the show.

A meeting of the executive board of the American Dahlia Society was held April 12 at the Grand hotel, at which matters concerning the society's fall show, to be held on the top floor of the Pennsylvania hotel next September, were discussed.

The executive board of the American Rose Society is to meet in New York April 19.

Steve Masur, the Brooklyn retailer, is so far recovered from his accident as to be able to visit the flower district occasionally. His many friends are glad to see him around again.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Following a bumper Easter business, that exceeded anything in the experience of the florists of this city, the retailers are taking a breathing spell, while the growers are restocking their benches and preparing for the Memorial day rush.

S. S. Skidelsky, of New York, was a business visitor last week.

Henry Patry has entered the employ of Joseph Koppelman.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, has added a new automobile to his delivery service.

J. H. Collingham, of Conimicut, furnished the bouquets and cut flowers for the installation ceremonies at Providence Lodge of Elks last week. Among those attending the ceremonies were Messrs. Collingham, Brooke, Patry, Peterson and Smith.

E. A. Chipman, of Woonsocket, had a big funeral order April 10, among the pieces being a large-sized casket cover of Premier roses.

Walter V. O'Connor is preparing to make a number of improvements at his place, 195 Mineral Spring avenue.

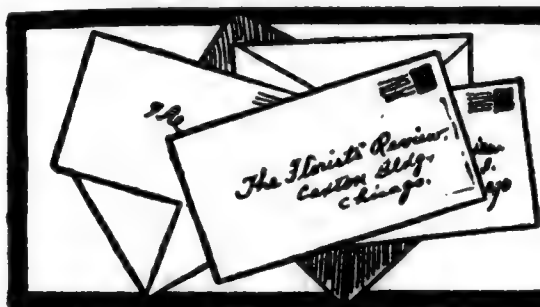

James Hockey, at Moshashuck cemetery, Pawtucket, is reported to be quite sick.

An automobile delivery truck operated by John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was crashed into by another machine a few days ago and he was badly shaken up.

Eugene L. Lemery, of Woonsocket, reports a large demand for landscape work. W. H. M.

Olean, N. Y.—The florists of Olean went after Easter business with determination. Herron the Florist ran ads in the daily paper of special sales of carnations at 59 cents per dozen and Oppenheim the Florist ran a 6-inch double column ad featuring the slogan and suggesting the kind of flowers to say it with.

IF I KNEW YOU AND YOU KNEW ME

If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But, never having yet clasped hands,
We might, perhaps, not understand
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other "honor bright."
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me!

2.
If e'er we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bill some error make,
From irritation you'd be free
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when the checks don't come on time,
And customers send us nary a line,
We'd wait without anxiety
If I knew you and you knew me!

3.
Or when some goods you "fire back,"
Or make a "kick" on this or that,
We'd take it in good part, you see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers six thousand strong,
Occasionally things go wrong—
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs—
Forbearance would decrease all cares.
Kind friend, how pleasant things would be
If I knew you and you knew me!

So let us trust, rely, confide,
Have firm good faith on either side,
Confidence to each other give—
Living ourselves, let others live;
And any time you come this way,
That you will call, we hope and pray;
Then face to face we each shall be
And I'll know you and you'll know me.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

WATCH THE WIRE ORDERS.

They Grow Each Holiday.

Once on a time wire orders were few and far between. Now the business has developed so that the monthly telegraph bill forms a considerable item in the expenses of some retail florists. The telegraph orders come throughout the month, but of course they are much heavier for special days.

For Easter, as an instance, they mounted to a large total in some florists' stores. One retailer in a large city stated that he had received approximately 150 telegraph orders for the holiday. Few were below $5, he said, and few were for exceedingly large amounts, since his was not a store that did a top-price business. They were chiefly from $5 to $10. An average figure, he stated, would be between $6 and $7. The total business that came into his store from other cities was, therefore, close to $1,000. For this amount of business he had no sales expense, no selling force on the floor; all he needed to do was to make up the orders and send them out. He rightly figured that this was an extremely profitable addition to his local holiday trade.

Reports from the other florists tell a like story. The figures are not so large, naturally, in small communities, but many enjoyed a proportion of telegraph to local business quite as large as did the florist mentioned.

Mothers' Day Next.

The size of the telegraph business for each succeeding flower holiday has been so encouraging that florists are making preparations for those coming. Mothers' day is next and then comes Memorial day. The former has been a good day for telegraph orders in previous years—as the observance of the day has grown, it has been more and more the custom to telegraph an order back to the old home for the second Sunday in May, so that mother should have her flowers, even if son or daughter were hundreds or thousands of miles away. Mothers' day has taken a strong grip on the hearts of the American people; only the days, such as Christmas, Easter, Memorial day and Mother's day, which have strong sentiment as their support, make truly great flower occasions. Mothers' day is growing to be one of the greatest of them all, for the maternal tie is strongest of all ties and does not change or wear with the passage of time. That is the reason that the brief space of eight years has made this day so splendid an occasion for florists. And, for the reasons outlined above, more and more telegraph business has been done at that time.

Make Preparations.

This year will be no exception. Indeed, it will surpass all previous years, just as Christmas and Easter this season excelled all previous ones. Florists can make the day still better by devoting their energies to early preparation. Start now for telegraph business. Develop it in your own town and develop your facilities to handle business from other florists as well. The two go hand in hand—one hand, indeed, washes the other. The methods are well known to florists; they have been dwelt upon often in these columns. Start early and finish strong.

MEMORIAL DAY ABROAD.

The greater vogue of telegraph orders and the desire of parents and friends in this country to decorate the graves of soldiers in France and England at Memorial day will combine to create a large number of orders for florists in those countries if the trade here recognizes the situation and informs patrons of facilities to handle such business. There are florists abroad able and willing to receive orders to decorate graves in the vicinity of their establishments and explanation of this fact to retailers' patrons in this country will doubtless produce many orders.

Last year some orders of this nature were sent abroad. One, which was reported in The Review at the time, was an order for fifty laurel wreaths for graves of soldiers who perished on the island of Islay, on the west coast of Scotland. The florist who handled that order, William Leighton, 36 Renfield street, Glasgow, Scotland, has written Albert Poehelon, secretary of the F. T. D., regarding possible orders for this, stating:

Last year I was favored by the American Red Cross Society, London, with an order for laurel wreaths for the graves of the American soldiers and sailors who perished on the island of Islay by the wrecking of the two steamers. If it were known to the members of your association that I am in a position to execute orders for Memorial day here, it might be an inducement for them to receive orders which I would be pleased to execute.

An early start by florists in this country will enable them to send such orders abroad by mail, saving their customers heavy cable charges.

IT'S A GREAT LIFE.

Brr'r—brr'r—brr'r—brr'r—brr'r (the usual sound of a telephone bell).

Florist leaves customer with cash in his hand and answers the telephone.

Voice over phone: "Hello! This is Mr. Soandso, representing Iron & Co. I hear that Mr. Goodcustomer's father is dead and I should like to send up a nice, large bunch of flowers, as Mr. Goodcustomer is a particular friend of mine and recently placed an order with us for about $3,000."

"Yes, sir," answers the obliging florist, after recovering from the shock of the call's not being the wrong number and seeing a nice order in view. "What price would you like to pay?"

"Well, let's see," the Iron & Co. man replies. "About 50 or 75 cents, or I shouldn't mind spending a dollar."

After the cash customer in the store has picked the florist up, revived him, and held him up to the phone, the party on the other end can be heard asking what the trouble is.

"Say, Mr. Soandso, you charge us $1.60 for a fitting and 20 cents per foot for pipe," says the florist weakly.

"Quite so; that suits me."

"But a 50-cent bunch of flowers does not suit me," replies the purveyor of nature's product.

"Oh, all right," comes from the receiver. "I just thought that I should like to have you send up something nice, for the old gentleman was a particular friend. Good-bye."

George E. Beal.

NOT ADVERTISING?

Oh! no, not for advertising, but just to express appreciation of the splendid exhibits and to urge the public to see them, did Penn the Florist run ads in all the Boston papers at the time of the orchid and spring flower show. However, it served the former as well as the latter purpose, for the ads created much comment. Here is a sample of the copy used; it appeared in 7½-inch double-column space in the Boston Post:

AN APPRECIATION

Flower Lovers who miss the Boston Orchid and Spring Flower Show now being held at Horticultural Hall are passing by a treat that is well worth traveling miles to see.

I cannot let the opportunity go by without a word of appreciation for the most fascinating showing of Nature's Colorings and all I seek is the knowledge that I have suggested a real pleasure to those who may thus be led to visit this truly wonderful exhibition.

Having just returned from New York and having seen the show in that city, I can say without qualification that Boston easily takes first place for beauty, quality and artistry of display.

It is a collection of Orchids, Acacias and Japanese Azaleas that words simply fail to describe.

See it today, tomorrow, Saturday or Sunday, and the memory will linger for many and many a day.

DEALERS' HELPS.

Material such as is furnished to retailers in other lines of business by the big manufacturers with national business is supplied to florists by the S. A. F. In so doing the national society is performing a service that enables the small florist to do business on as elaborate a scale, so far as advertising matter is concerned, as the biggest in the trade. By contracting for posters, folders, stickers, movie slides and similar advertising aids in exceedingly large quantities, the S. A. F. is able to get them at prices no individual florist can touch. Those who have already used any of this matter realize that fact quite well and take advantage of every such opportunity given by the publicity service bureau. The retailer who has not tried them is overlooking a big business-getter.

For Mothers' day the bureau has prepared material that is going out to florists already. Orders came in rapidly as soon as the circular of information was sent out and they are being dispatched quickly. Since the orders are sent out by parcel post, they are not held up by the express difficulties. But, since even mail is slowed up somewhat, florists should place their requests early with the bureau, for Mothers' day is not far off.

The florists in small towns, where printing is not so easily and cheaply done as in the cities, will find the S. A. F. material especially valuable. Publicity is the trade's best means of developing business and these helps are some of the best of their sort.

Taking The Weakness Out Of The Week End

Yesterday there came through the mail a charming circular from Hitchings & Co., Greenhouse Builders.

Its title was: "A Walk That Leads To Perpetual Summerland." That walk led you right into a greenhouse and promptly you were surrounded with blooming flowers and ripening fruit.

It sure did make you want a greenhouse just for your own pleasure, regardless of how many square feet of regular growing houses you may have.

At the bottom were three sketches of which the above was one. Each carried a welcome suggestion that made you feel that you simply couldn't keep house without a greenhouse and the flowers it yielded.

Under the cut shown above, which they courteously loaned us, was this thought, "A friend of whom you are particularly fond comes to spend a week end.

Added to your sincere welcome downstairs, is that of her favorite flower in her room upstairs, for you took genuine pleasure in recalling it and picked for her the finest ones yourself."

After reading which, says I to myself says I, "George, you are a dub. Why don't you make a special drive at week enders, a drive at the hostess and a drive at the guest?"

Every Saturday afternoon from now till November there will be thousands of cars leaving the city for week end parties."

So I promptly laid my plans, which may or may not hold a suggestion for you.

and street cars, center in and around the public square. Visitors journeying to the convention in their automobiles can store their cars in the convention building.

Plans of the trade exhibition floor, showing the different blocks of space available for exhibits, will be issued about the middle of April and the secretary will be pleased to mail one, with regulations governing exhibits and blank forms of contracts, to anybody making request for them. The rate for space is 60 cents per square foot. The selling of merchandise by persons or firms not having engaged space will not be allowed, unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from

The exhibition classes will be as follows: Plants; cut blooms; boilers and heating apparatus; greenhouse structures; florists' supplies, including fancy pottery; bulbs, seeds and garden requisites, and miscellaneous. Judges of trade exhibits will be appointed by President Miller and will examine all exhibits and make detailed reports on them in the afternoon of the opening day. Exhibitors showing novelties or improved devices which they wish to have examined by the judges for special notice or award are required to make an itemized entry of them in advance. For exhibits deemed worthy diplomas in three grades are granted as follows: Certificate of merit, honorable mention, and highly commended. The judges also are authorized to recommend to the executive board any exhibits they deem worthy for award of the society's medals. Such exhibits must be of unusual merit, but the judges' action will not be made public until passed upon by the board. Diplomas of equal value may be awarded to several exhibits in the same class. No award will be made to exhibitors who are not members of the society or to firms or corporations not represented through personal membership of partner or officer; no exhibitor will be allowed to exhibit any other goods than those sold in the regular course of business by such exhibitor, without the permission of the secretary. NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Holland Contributes.

We could hardly start our column this week with a more cheering announcement than the following letter to A. L. Miller, president of the S. A. F., from the Dutch Bulb Growers' Association, Holland:

The Dutch Bulb Growers' Association of Holland has admired your efforts to "Say It with Flowers" and, as the Holland bulbs are part of the flowers with which to say it, we believe that we should show our sympathy with your ideas and therefore enclose check for $1,000 for the national publicity campaign fund, as a donation to this worthy cause.

Our Holland friends evidently appreciate to the full the efforts we are making to promote increased sales of flowers, realizing that success in this direction means better business for them.

of this song has certainly proved a triumph for the publicity committee.

Ads in May Magazines.

The May magazines which are to carry the Mothers' day advertisements will be on sale in a few days and some of the large weeklies will carry the same advertisements about one week before the big day. Any florist who has not received a pamphlet describing the helps provided for securing Mothers' day business should write for one immediately, addressing the request to the Florists' Public Service Bureau of the
S. A. F., 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago. These helps include poster stamps, posters, folders, electrotypes and lantern slides, all calculated to produce local publicity and to link up with the campaign advertising.

The campaign is swinging along to the full extent of the funds available.
What a tremendous advantage we are missing through being obliged to adopt a parsimonious course! Was ever a good movement so hampered as ours through niggardliness on the part of most of those whom it was promoted to assist?
Instead of a drive for subscriptions we should be driven in the acceptance of them. There has been an unreasonable amount of the "let George do it" spirit shown in the campaign. To think that 20,000 or more florists in this prosperous country cannot raise $100,000 to promote benefit for themselves, worth many millions of dollars, is to think wrong.
It is more than possible to raise this amount, if those it is to benefit will only think the right way. What is an average contribution of $5 apiece in comparison with the resulting good? And, surely, none can dispute the fact that the campaign has resulted to our great benefit.

Mr. Nonsubscriber, please do not block the best game ever played in the interest of the florists' industry by withholding further your support. You owe it to yourself. You owe it to that little band of generous brother florists who have personified "George" up to this time. Think of your Holland friends. Don't be an outlaw. Show us, through your check, that you don't intend to be. John Young, Sec'y.

The Easter Rush.

Just before Easter, business was quite dull for a time. It was said to be the calm before the storm and the same proverb would apply to the week after Easter. This, of course, would imply that Easter was the storm center, and truly it was some storm. Saturday noon, April 3, when the trade was in the midst of the rush, anyone could see that business was going to be a record-breaker, but before midnight Saturday it had passed all expectations. There was plenty of stock, there was plenty of money about and the people seemed determined to "Say It with Flowers." The weather Saturday could not have been better for business if it had been made to order. There was not a flower left in any store that I know of. Before dark Saturday night it was impossible to get into any store; the doors were locked and the entire staff in each store doing its utmost to cope with the corsage and cut flower orders to be delivered Sunday morning.

The public were out to buy flowers and, when they could not get into the stores, they made a grand charge on the markets. Consequently the market people and the street men were cleaned up before 10 o'clock. One example worthy of note occurred in the Lexington market about 9 o'clock at night. One set of street men who have a store in the neighborhood, when their stock of plants was not going fast enough to suit them, loaded them onto a truck and drove up to the market. The consequence was that they were nearly mobbed and the entire load was sold from the truck in a few minutes, at prices which seemed ridiculous to anyone familiar with their value. But the ointment must always contain its proverbial fly. I heard of some stores which were refusing corsage orders as early as 4 o'clock, not because they could not obtain stock, but because of their inability to handle any more work. While the two previous Easters had perhaps more money in circulation and many an Easter has seen stock of better quality, certainly no Easter ever had better prices with less grumbling. This is clearly the result of the advertising campaign, which has developed a holiday demand greater than the trade can handle. Now advertising between the big flower days needs to be pushed and the output equalized.

Easter Notes.

At Mary Johnston's Sunday noon, April 4, there was not a flower left in the store. Mrs. Johnston said that it was the biggest Easter they had ever experienced. Their telegraph orders, which were the heaviest on record, were still coming and being sent as late as 1 o'clock Sunday. Samuel Feast & Sons had nothing left. The store, which was well stocked up Friday, April 2, was as clean as a well-ordered dancing floor. Here also a great number of telegraph orders had been received and sent.

At John Cook's the nothing-left sign was hung out early. This establishment had a fine line of stock, mostly from its own range, and it was a clean sweep with them.

At Wm. J. Halliday's there was nothing left except a window full of orchid plants which had been a mass of bloom April 2. "A record-breaker" was Mr. Halliday's comment.

At Edwin Seidewitz's the store was cleaned up; the evidence that it had ever been a flower store was altogether missing Sunday.

The trade's windows never presented a more attractive and tempting appearance than they did at Easter. the fact that the prices were advanced to some extent over those asked last year, few people objected to paying them.

Lilies were in abundant supply at most of the stores. They brought from 35 cents to 50 cents per bud and bloom. Most of the plants were good and had splendid foliage. Some azaleas were to be had. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils were in plentiful supply. The general line of potted plants made a gay showing and included cinerarias, cyclamens, roses, baby ramblers, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, bougainvilleas, spiraeas, heather, pansies, primroses, genistas and lilacs.

Although people willingly paid the price asked for potted plants, this was not true in connection with cut flowers. They complained to a great extent and in many cases took potted plants in preference to cut stock. Many of the florists said that the cut flower sales were small compared with the plant sales. Although this was true, a number of corsages were disposed of.

Lilies of the valley sold at $2.50 per dozen; sweet peas at $1 to $2.50 per dozen; carnations at $2 to $3 per dozen, and roses at $5 per dozen.

The weather was stormy all through Easter week, but cleared up for Saturday.

Various Notes.

James Horan & Son had an attractive window decoration Easter week. It consisted largely of flowering plants in baskets. They reported that the Easter sales were about the average.

Julius Reck said that the bulk of sales ran to flowering plants.

Victor Carwardine was more than satisfied with the results of the Easter sales. He was nearly cleaned out on the day before Easter.

James E. Beach reported one of the biggest Easters that he ever had. He had exceptionally fine lilies.

The Park Garden & Flower Shop had a splendid Easter trade. Both cut flowers and plants went well. Corsages also were in big demand.

The Arcade Flower Shop had a branch in the center of the Arcade. It had a fine assortment of combination baskets and sales were more than satisfactory.

John Reck & Son will decorate both St. John's church and the home for the Lashen-Weed wedding. This will be one of the most elaborate decorations that this city has had in a number of years. This firm had two branch stores in addition to their regular place of business for Easter. They had a splendid showing of potted plants and cut flowers.

Robert Hawkins decorated the ballroom of the Stratfield hotel for the ball which was given by the Elks, April 5. The decorations consisted of southern smilax and spring flowers.

George Pfomm had a successful Easter. A large number of combination baskets and boxes were disposed of.

The Market.

This winter the florists have been limited in the business done only by the number of flowers they could get; prices have been uniformly good, and collections correspondingly satisfactory. The winter was remarkable, because there was no winter weather until the time when the outdoor flowers should have been blooming; then we had a month of real winter weather. As a result flowers bloomed freely all winter, except that the growers had considerable trouble with stem-rot in carnations, which have been on the short side all winter and now are retailing at $4 per dozen.

Considerable complaint has been made by the trade about the uncertainty of receiving on time flowers ordered from out-of-town wholesalers. Transportation has been uncertain all winter.

Orchids have been scarce all winter, but roses were never more plentiful or of better quality. Columbia has easily outdistanced all rivals in popularity with both the growers and the public. Just at present sweet peas are in abundance and the quality is excellent. Valley is scarce and high-priced. Bulbous stock is in abundance and is selling well. There were more flowers for Easter than anyone could have reasonably expected. Lilies were about as plentiful this year as formerly and the quality was fully as good. The retail price was 30 cents per bloom or bud. These, with hyacinths, made up with foliage plants of various kinds into baskets and boxes, constituted the principal part of the Easter offering aside from cut flowers.

The almost constant rainfall for several days before Easter delayed business, so that when Friday was clear and fair everyone was rushed to the McIntyre Bros. repaired and remodeled their store and show room last fall and have been able to make a better showing of their plants and flowers than ever before. They were fortunate enough to escape disease in their carnation and orchid houses and so have had a good supply all winter.

Charles Tritcher has been devoting practically all of his space this season to the growing of pot plants and bedding stock. He has a fine lot of stock in perhaps a wider assortment than any other grower in the south. He is already doing a heavy business in bedding plants and baskets.

Friday, as was expected, was fairly few on the market, which have been carried over, were quickly snatched up. Ramblers and baby ramblers went well, as did also the small hydrangeas. The large ones were not so easy to dispose of. Bulbous stock was popular and violets were scarce. Sweet peas and yellow primroses were used as substitutes and found great favor. Roses at $5 per dozen went well, but the higher-priced ones did not sell. Carnations started slowly at $3 per dozen, but finished strong.

Standing in the store of the largest florist in Worcester, one would have thought he was in the bargain department of a large department store. This particular florist advertised a special sale of lilies at $1.50, no delivery, and customers picked them out of the section set aside for these plants and clamored for a clerk to wrap them up. No one was needed to select them for them; but it kept the sales force busy wrapping them up.

Various Notes.

Harry I. Randall lost his new residence recently. It was still in the hands of the builders, but Mr. Randall expected to move in soon, when fire destroyed it completely. The loss was covered by insurance.

Raymond Madaus, son of Fred Madaus, has been ill and the Easter rush was therefore unusually hard for the father.

The Market.

The severity of the winter, high price of coal and lack of greenhouse labor were responsible for the comparative scarcity of flowers at Easter and the consequent high prices which they brought. The quantity of flowers offered was smaller than last year. Potted Easter lilies sold as high as 75 cents per bloom and cut lilies brought as high as $6 a dozen. Azaleas brought about fifty per cent higher prices than at Easter a year ago. Prices ranged from $3 for the smallest plants to $25 or more for the largest and best. Potted bulbous flowers arrived on the market in larger quantities than other flowers, nearly equaling last year's supply. Prices of tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, etc., however, were high. The same is true of hydrangeas. Notwithstanding the high prices, however, there was a big Easter business. Good Friday was stormy and stock did not move well. Saturday, however, was clear and there was a large sale.

Chapin Bros. were hit slightly, the hail and snow causing them some anxiety, but they were successful in making their Easter deliveries and business was good.

the extent of $1,000. This firm managed to get out all of the shipping orders in fine shape, but local deliveries were difficult, four automobiles breaking down. F. Eiche, the head of the firm, is planning to take a much needed rest in the woods of Minnesota, where he owns land.

C. H. Frey suffered about $2,000 damage, but had a plentiful supply of lilies and his receipts show up equal to last Easter. Mr. Frey has recently made extensive improvements in his store, adding new fixtures and equipment.

Frey & Frey escaped serious damage to their houses. Their sales were far greater than a year ago. They got their wholesale orders out before the storm. They were successful in getting glass and getting back in shape quickly.

Oscar Enslow had little or no trouble, handling his deliveries successfully.

F. G. Yule's greenhouses were damaged to the extent of about $3,000 by hail and, after most of the damage had been repaired, one house caved in under weight of the snow. Mr. Yule is grateful, however, saying that it might have been worse.

C. H. Green, at Fremont, Neb., suffered $2,000 damage from hail, but managed to market most of his stock. Mr. Green's two sons have joined him in the business and they conduct a well equipped store in the city.

Mrs. Jessie C. Ireland, Crete, Neb., visited Lincoln April 5, and reported phenomenal business for the entire season, as well as Easter. J. A. L.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Easter Business.

Easter was one grand rush. Nearly all of the stores worked all of Friday and Saturday nights and a part of the day Sunday. Although there was not so much variety in large plants as in former years, everything seemed to have sold well with the exception of a few azaleas and bougainvilleas, which are always good property after the holiday.

The day before Easter was all that could have been desired, as to weather, and it was a blessing for the retailers, as Friday it rained all day and Sunday it snowed all day.

The florists at the cemeteries were not so fortunate, as most of their selling is done Sunday and people would not venture out in a blizzard, especially in the cemeteries.

E. P. Tracey, proprietor of the Rosery Flower Shop, was more than pleased with his Easter business and, as Mr. Tracey has one of the finest stores and is located on one of the best streets in the city, everything seems to be coming his way.

F. A. Danker had almost as much display at his store during the week as he had at his greenhouses Palm Sunday and everything cleaned up in good style.

The Broadway Florists did a good business and are well pleased with the increase in their trade.

now showing some fine specimens of Primula obconica, their window being arranged with a few made-up plants in baskets and trimmed with ribbons and chiffons to match.

Two weeks ago everyone thought spring had surely come and we could lay aside our heavy coats and wraps, as the weather was warm and balmy, but since that time we have had almost another winter.

Outside planting will soon be in full swing and the nurserymen are preparing for a banner year in their line, as people have had enough of winter and now want to get out on the ground and get their lawns and gardens prepared for the summer.

Ten Albany florists contributed towards an advertisement in the local papers during the week preceding Easter and all feel well repaid for their investment.

Club Meeting.

The Albany Florists' Club did not hold the meeting for April on the usual night, but held it April 8 at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange. The attendance was small, but an interesting meeting was enjoyed by those present.

At the suggestion of Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, N. Y., it was decided to have a question box, to be opened on meeting nights and each question discussed by those best informed on

An interesting letter was read by the secretary from W. H. Van Hoesen, of Round Lake, N. Y., a new member of the club, inviting the club to his establishment for a social time during the coming summer. This met with great favor by the members.

The secretary reported that the receipts from the auction of plants and flowers at the flower show, held for the club members, amounted to something over $200.

Florists' Refrigerators

We manufacture, in our own plant, a complete line of florists' refrigerators. While we have many popular standard designs, most refrigerators are built for individual requirements.

Brecht Refrigerators are the result of 67 years' experience. They are designed on a scientific basis, from the best material obtainable, and are built to give greatest service with minimum ice consumption.

We will be glad to quote you on our standard designs, or to offer suggestions and submit special designs upon receipt of your requirements.

The Market.

Everyone reported a successful Easter trade. The stores delivered the plants Friday and loose orders Saturday. More corsages were sold this year than ever before, but baskets were not in demand. All violets were spoiled in shipping and sweet peas were substituted on most orders.

The business here is good and the supply is about the same as the demand. The weather for flowers has been good, but several snow storms last week kept the market stocked up. Sweet peas can be had in all colors and there are some beautiful orchid peas. They retail at $1 to $2 per bunch. Potted plants are plentiful and the prices are lower than before Easter. Hyacinths, primroses, lilies, hydrangeas and rambles range in price from $1 to $10, according to quality.

Various Notes.

L. Ludwig sold out completely at Easter and had a system by which the employees were able to quit work every night at 9 p. m. during Easter week. The salesroom at this store was closed Sunday and the orders all filled by noon. Sixty people were working during the rush.

The Munk Floral Co. did a good Easter business and was forced to work all night Friday and Saturday. The new Ford truck was wrecked, but it did not affect the delivery system.

The Acme Floral Co. reports a fair business and a general clean-up, with the exception of a few plants.

The Art Floral Co. did a good business, but stayed open all day Easter Sunday.

McKellar cleaned up with the exception of some plants.

The Wilson Seed Store did a good business, but was somewhat handicapped by the absence of H. K. Wilson. He was ill during the busy time, but is much better now.

Miss Pfefferly was much pleased with her Easter business. She has opened a small store under the name of the Margaret Floral Co. She expects to get a larger store later and has big plans for the future.

The Market.

Everyone reported a successful Easter trade. The stores delivered the plants Friday and loose orders Saturday. More corsages were sold this year than ever before, but baskets were not in demand. All violets were spoiled in shipping and sweet peas were substituted on most orders.

The business here is good and the supply is about the same as the demand. The weather for flowers has been good, but several snow storms last week kept the market stocked up. Sweet peas can be had in all colors and there are some beautiful orchid peas. They retail at $1 to $2 per bunch. Potted plants are plentiful and the prices are lower than before Easter. Hyacinths, primroses, lilies, hydrangeas and ramblers range in price from $1 to $10, according to quality.

Various Notes.

T. J. Ludwig sold out completely at Easter and had a system by which the employees were able to quit work every night at 9 p. m. during Easter week. The salesroom at this store was closed Sunday and the orders all filled by noon. Sixty people were working during the rush.

The Munk Floral Co. did a good Easter business and was forced to work all night Friday and Saturday. The new Ford truck was wrecked, but it did not affect the delivery system.

The Acme Floral Co. reports a fair business and a general clean-up, with the exception of a few plants.

The Art Floral Co. did a good busi-

RAISING CINERARIAS.

At Howard & Smith's Nursery.

For over ten years Fred H. Howard, president of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., has been working to improve various strains of flower seeds. Probably at first it was done more as a labor of love than with a view to commercial production, but the work had already become so big before the war that his firm was selling large quantities of the now famous H. & S. strains. During the period of war-time scarcity the demand could not be met, and every year the stock has been increased, new acreage devoted to the outdoor varieties and new glass to the indoor kinds.

Working for Broad Petals.

The cineraria, always a favorite here, has been improved out of all comparison with even the choicest European and American strains of a few years ago and it may be said without fear of contradiction that there is nothing in cultivation today better than the Howard & Smith strain. A recent inspection of the selected seed plants for the coming year's sales showed them to be truly wonderful. Among other things which Mr. Howard has been working for is a broad petal and in the select stock these are one-half inch and upward in width, many of the individual flowers measuring from three and one-half to four inches in diameter. The splendid effect made by the hundreds of plants bearing such flowers as these in every color and tint can be better imagined than described. The blues alone are worth a long journey to see. Big plants, each one given a yard or so of space, and dwarfs, with immense flower heads and great healthy leaves, are there. Louis Dupuy, of Whitestone, N. Y., was visiting the nursery at the same time as the writer and, good plantsman as he is, was surprised. "These plants attract you and seem almost to speak to you," was the way Mr. Dupuy explained his feelings. And they certainly do. They are a fit climax to many years of selection and hybrid raising, a climax which must be distinctly satisfying to such an enthusiastic plant lover as Fred Howard.

While the cinerarias were the chief object of our visit, fine things appeared at every turn in the nursery. The stretches of lemon and orange calendulas were past their best and the seed was forming, but enough were left to make a grand show.

To See Amaryllis and Iris.

A few miles away from the home nursery, at Rivera, is the principal proving ground for florists' flowers, bulbs and other specialties and, although it is off in the country, the same good order and cleanliness, system and careful cultivation prevail here as in all the other departments. Pansies are fine now, but the great show will be in May, when the magnificent collection of amaryllis, or hippeastrums, will be in bloom. To see these gorgeous flowers by the acre is a treat in store for anyone who can visit them, for Mr. Howard and all his staff always have the latchstring out. Acres of iris in all the best varieties will be in their full beauty about the same time and these alone would make the trip profitable. H. R. Richards.

PASADENA, CAL.

Flower Show.

The fifteenth annual spring flower show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society opened April 8 in a large tent in Library park under excellent conditions. President W. Rapp and his officers are to be congratulated on the culmination of their efforts in a most beautiful show. The tent was decorated with cypress boughs, eucalyptus and other greens and, while apparently the show was not so large as usual, owing to the absence of the large trade groups, yet the even quality of the exhibits, the excellent arrangement and the delightful setting of green turf underfoot and fine shrubs and trees in the park made it one of the most attractive shows ever held in Pasadena.

In the center of the tent William Hertich, gardener at the Huntington estate, put up a group of palms, including the rare and beautiful Pinanga maculata, with its showy varicolored seeds, and P. Kuhlii, also in fruit. Some tall caryotas and specimen kentias were also included. The only trade groups noted were one of shrubs from Robert Peff, of the Mentor Nursery, and one from Campbell's Seed Store, both attractive.

Some splendid pots of tulips were shown and, in one exhibit, single bulbs in 6-inch pots had wonderful flowers of the Darwin tulips. Poppies, anemones, ranunculuses and hybrid watsonias were superb and the showy Antholyza caffra was shown in grand shapes by one exhibitor.

The classes for collections of cut flowers are always good at Pasadena and they were exceptionally good this time.

The judges must have had a hard time making their decisions. Among the better shrubs shown were fine varieties of Erica persoluta, E. persoluta rosea and E. codonodes, the glorious Fremonia californica and Carpenteria californica, Dendromecon rigida, various ceanothuses, rhus, raphiolepis and others. Large bunches of Bletia hyacinthina were attractive, this orchid thriving well outside in California, and the best types of aquilegia, antirrhinum and pentstemons.

The show, in fact, was an education and a joy to the outdoor plant lover and shows what can be done in this favored clime. A word should be given to the wild flower and vegetable classes from the school children, which were extremely well filled, and that veteran vegetable grower, W. W. Felgate, had some choice offerings. The judges were Roderick MacKenzie, Arthur Wilson, C. Shoebridge, J. Albrecht, James MacGillivray and R. G. Gunther.

Easter Business.

Another successful Easter can be recorded. Up to a couple of days before shipping time, the wholesalers' orders did not look big, but, as is frequently the case, they piled in later and everyone reports a clean-up. Retailers, as usual, prepared for a big trade and were not disappointed, the reports everywhere being good.

A moderate supply of Easter lilies was cleaned out at excellent prices, the maximum being $1 per bud and bloom. Even the flower stands made good prices. The season proved profitable to growers and retailers alike. In most cases cut stock sold at the same price as the potted, there being no surplus. Roses were fairly plentiful. Bulbous stock, such as tulips and Spanish irises, was cleaned up early at good prices. At the close of business Sunday morn-

Among the finest orchids grown around Los Angeles for wholesaling are those which come from the West Adams Nursery. Mr. Nishida was recently in the city with a fine cut of Cattleya Mossiae from healthy, vigorous plants.

a few plants not quite making the holiday. Business in other lines was reported as excellent.

George Hall & Co. are well satisfied with their first Easter and report fine business.

The L. A. Floral Co., which had bought heavily for Easter in all lines, was absolutely sold out on everything, not a cut flower or plant being left.

The P. C. Miller Co. was well sold up on everything and its first Easter business was quite encouraging.

Among the visitors to this city from San Diego last week were Robert Armstrong, who has resigned his position at Ocean Beach, and E. Rucker, of the Coronado Nursery.

The Amling Co. is rushing construction at its new establishment, at Sawtelle. E. C. Amling is one of the busiest and most cheerful men in southern California, to say nothing of E. C. Amling, Jr., who is following in his father's footsteps.

Jack d'Ortignac has received some excellent Cattleya Mossiae. He is back to old-time form and is handling much good stock in all lines.

Things are moving as if by magic at Roy F. Wilcox's establishment at Montebello. Every visit shows some-

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The close of Easter week saw a good clean-up on the San Francisco Easter trade. Large quantities of lilies, spring flowers, roses, carnations and potted plants were sold during the week. The nurseries, also, made a better clearing this year than usual, due to the great demand of the trade. A considerable drop took place on the price of roses last week. This drop was caused by the abundance of spring flowers and outside flowers that have been arriving on the market. Tulips have been more plentiful, as the full crop is now on. Lilacs, iris and American Beauty roses made their appearance in large quantities last week.

The violet supply, which has been unusually good this year, is still keeping up well. A few more days, however, will see the close of the season for them. Gardenias are scarce at present, but the dealers hope to have a full line on hand in a week or so. The outside sweet peas, which have been greatly handicapped by the lack of rains and the cold winds along the coast, are now arriving. The dealers say, however, that they will not be as plentiful as they were last year.

The demand for dahlia bulbs is large, shipments to South America and to the northern and eastern sections of the country being heavy. Lilies of the valley are scarce and hold up in price. The carnation season is closing and the flowers demand a good price. Orchids were higher and scarcer last week than they had been for some time. However, the growers are promising more of these blooms in a short time.

Various Notes.

At a special meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society a resolution was carried in favor of holding a rose tournament in San Francisco this spring. The rose show, as it is called, is to take place the first week in May. In the parade, all the different varieties of roses grown in the San Francisco district will be exhibited. Beautiful floral floats will be the leading feature of the day.

Podesta & Baldocchi report having had a splendid Easter trade. They are being kept busy with after-Easter functions. They decorated a suite in the St. Francis hotel for Mrs. A. W. Maltby April 6. The decoration was for the wedding of Miss Maltby and was carried out in Dorothy Perkins roses and rhododendrons. They also decorated the J. J. Tynan home for a social affair and supplied a large quantity of flowers for the funeral of Clement Tobin, one of the directors of the Hibernia Savings & Loan Society.

The California State Floral Society held its meeting in Red Men's hall, San Francisco, last week for the purpose of installing the new officers. Carl Smith gave a reading entitled "The Poetry of Flowers."

The E. W. McLellan Co. has started to cut a splendid crop of American Beauty roses. It is also cutting and marketing a good line of lilac blooms.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Easter Business.

Easter lilies were not so plentiful as they should have been. Consequently, most of the stores were short, being sold out by Saturday afternoon. The stock to be had was good and the trade seemed pleased to be able to have the Easter lilies once more, in spite of the fact that they were much higher than in other years. Roses were plentiful and brought a good price, the cut being of unusually good quality. Daffodils were scarce, the cold weather on the coast being responsible for the scarcity. The Spokane market was depending upon the coast stock for Easter, as the local crop is about over. Some fine sweet peas and valley were to be had and found a ready sale for corsage work. Genistas, cinerarias, hydrangeas, geraniums, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and roses made up the balance in potted stock.

Various Notes.

Donart & Lewis, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, shipped in some wonderful hydrangeas, which sold well at good prices.

E. Sinclair brought in a fine cut of Ophelia roses, some with stems four feet long.

H. L. Olsson, Inc., is planning to erect another rose house this summer.

The Glenrose Greenhouses are adding two new houses to their range.

The small stock left over in a few cases went into funeral pieces and the cost was readily realized; in fact, with such an increase in gross sales, the small surplus was far from being a matter of worry.

in public interest to the lilies and there was a ready sale for all good offerings. Some growers offered stock which was too ripe and opened too wide, but, on the whole, the quality was all that could have been asked. Fancy baskets were the good sellers and after these came corsages and cut flowers. Potted tulips were popular, but, owing to the

The Market.

Easter business for the local trade was extremely satisfactory, as every house reported larger sales than for the 1919 Easter period. Prices were better maintained, stock was better and there was no surplus left on the market. It is conceded that but for the rain at the close of Easter week there would have been a complete clean-up, but weather conditions held back the demand for cut flowers and for stock for the cemeteries Sunday.

The lilies offered this year were much superior in quality to those shown last year and there was also a notable increase in the supply. One house broke

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.;
secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE mail-order seed season is being prolonged by winter's lingering.

W. W. BARNARD returned to Chicago greatly improved in health as the result of his sojourn in southern California.

WHOLESALE dealers in vegetable seeds report that fill-in orders are coming in good volume from the retailers who buy bulk seeds.

THE chief reason market gardeners give for reduced seed purchases is that help is scarce; many will plant only so much as the family can cultivate.

THE onion-set market is cleaning up in good shape this year, but the price seems to have cut demand to a point where the short supply will be enough.

IT does not speak well for the future of the trade that the price of vegetable seeds is steadily falling while the prices of all other commodities steadily advance. Production surely will be reduced until the other extreme results.

E. C. DUNGAN, president of the American Seed Trade Association, is back at his desk for a few hours daily after an absence of four months, caused by severe illness. He expresses his thanks to the trade for the many letters of sympathy he received during that time.

THE fire that destroyed the warehouse of the Livingston Seed Co., 59 East Chestnut street, Columbus, O., burned for six hours before it was controlled, the entire fire department of Columbus being called upon to fight it. It was confined to the rear of the building and the upper floors, the offices escaping total destruction. The loss amounted to about $100,000, largely covered by insurance. No one was seriously injured.

TRADE TROUBLES IN HOLLAND.

An insight into the situation among the bulb growers of Holland is afforded in the following communication from one of them to a British horticultural journal:

"Most of the bulb growers are opposed to the measures taken by the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association concerning minimum prices.

"To force the system upon every bulb exporter, the D. B. E. A. boycotts every bulb grower who does not sign and submit to a contract in which the grower undertakes not to sell bulbs to, or buy bulbs from, persons not members of the D. B. E. A., on a fine of 500 florins for each transgression. The members of the D. B. E. A., on still higher fines, are forced to trade only with their fellow members in Holland or such bulb growers as have signed the contract.

"Up till now the only result has been that the D. B. E. A. has boycotted itself, for almost all bulb growers refuse to afford the means by which the D. B. E. A. can govern the trade and force upon their customers prices which may be profitable to themselves, but most probably will reduce the sale of bulbs in general, so that part of the salable bulbs yearly will remain in the hands of the growers with, as a result, lower prices here.

"A meeting of bulb growers was held some time ago at Haarlem, at which an anti-trust committee was chosen, to which were elected Jan Roes, Heemstede; P. Bakker, Enkhuizen; L. van Staalduinens, Gravenzande; J. Valkering, Limmen, and E. Nieuwenhuis, Lisse.

"The committee had a conference with the council of the D. B. E. A. and tried to convince the council that it would be in the interest of both parties to repeal the boycott, but the council seems of opinion that they have the power, and consequently the right, to dictate their will, i. e., their prices and their conditions to the trade at home and abroad.

"Many of the largest growers and other enterprising people are now going to open an export trade for themselves, while projects are being formed—if the boycott is not repealed shortly—to arrange the large yearly auction sales in the different places of the bulb district, to be held on consecutive days in the latter part of July and the beginning of August, and by advertising in the principal trade papers abroad, attract buyers from different countries and make special accommodations so that they may be able to handle bulbs bought there in the easiest and cheapest way."

KOEHLER IN GERMANY.

Finds Conditions Difficult.

How the unsettled state of Germany affects the seed trade there and here is described in a letter from Albert Koehler, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, who was marooned there by the revolution. When it broke out, he had boarded a train from Wiesbaden to Hamburg, which was a week instead of one night in getting to its destination.

Mr. Koehler writes that at present it is impossible to leave Germany on account of the revolution. He is trying to get back to Holland and from there he will go to France to investigate the French bulb situation and then to England to investigate Manetti stock and English-grown cyclamen seed.

Prices Exceedingly High.

Conditions in Germany, Mr. Koehler states, are far from settled and much more terrible than he realized before he left this country. He writes that prices on all commodities are extremely high, especially foodstuffs and clothing, because of the exchange, which makes it impossible for Germany to import from America at the present American prices. A suit of clothing that was formerly purchased for 50 marks now is sold at 3,500 marks. Wages, in comparison with the prices, have not increased in anywhere near the proportion that they have in America. The government now in control guarantees a wage to everyone who is unemployed and many are not looking for employment. The scarcity of labor is much greater than in America.

Cyclamen Seed Scarce.

Mr. Koehler has visited all the cyclamen growers and has not found the quantity of seed that was originally reported would come from Germany. Owing to the scarcity of coke, many of the growers had to throw away their seed plants and were even unable to keep a part according to their supply of coke. He writes that American dealers have sent large orders to the German growers. In fact, Ferd. Fischer, of Wiesbaden, has received orders up to 10,000,000 from dealers and large florists in America. This makes the growers feel that there is a tremendous demand in America and has a tendency to make them quite independent and ask high prices. There are now enough orders from America in Germany for this year's delivery to take Germany five years to fill. While these orders are not all genuine but in many cases are only a request as to price, yet they create an artificial demand which causes the price to go up.

It is hard for growers to do business direct with many concerns, owing to the exchange. They will not do business unless cash is with the order in American dollars. This cash must be put up in advance, to enable them to buy supplies in order to produce their seed.

Valley Situation.

Mr. Koehler has also visited the valley districts and found that valley has been reduced to practically nothing in comparison with the supply in former years. He says that large valley forcers in Germany are forcing on the average of 50,000 a day for the German market, as valley is a much-prized flower and there are still enough wealthy persons to make the flower business good.

The valley growers and exporters are making preparations for a big business in America next season. The only handicap now is the shipping facilities. Formerly the boats running from Hamburg had cold storage facilities, but now, since the boats have been taken over by other governments, these facilities are lacking. Another disturbing factor is that the sand and moss must be sterilized before the valley is shipped and all the sand must be removed from the valley before it is packed. These operations require considerable labor and are expensive.

BRITISH STOCKS.

In reviewing post-war conditions in the seed trade in Great Britain, Kelway & Son, Langport, England, state:

"Peace has been accompanied by a good seed harvest. Crops are full and well matured, the result of splendid summer and autumn weather. Some seeds, such as runner and dwarf beans, are an exception on account of the drought during May, which caused sowing to be too long deferred, and other kinds vary according to the district in which they were saved; for example, Swede seed and garden peas and some kinds of mangel. Owing to the energies of seed growers being concentrated more or less on food seeds during the war, there will not be sufficient flower seeds."

ADVERTISING IN SEED TERMS.

The April poster of the Treasury Department urges investment in war savings stamps and treasury certificates in seed terms, employing an alliterative and rhyming caption that is worthy of seedsmen's publicity. The poster reads:

Spring Seeds.
Fill Fall Needs.
To Harvest then, Plant now.
The man who plants his savings in War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates grows a crop of interest that nothing can hurt.
Frosts, droughts and market slumps mean nothing to them. They are always worth more than they cost you.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Knull Floral Co., Tampa, Fla.—Illustrated, 27-page catalogue of palms, nursery stock, roses, flowering and foliage plants. Prominence is given to the company's landscape department. In outdoor stock, a good proportion of the varieties listed are especially adapted to the south.

Leedle Floral Co., Springfield, O.—Wholesale list of "Leedle Springfield Roses," a tiny 40-page booklet, but remarkably thorough and comprehensive. First in order is a condensed price list in which the varieties are grouped according to types or classes; next is a "combined telegraphic code and predominating color classification," and then follows a complete descriptive list, arranged alphabetically without division into groups, but with abbreviations to indicate the class or type and with the year of introduction and the name of the originator in each case.

Kelway & Son, Langport, England.—Two wholesale seed lists, one of them intended especially for the gardener, the other for the farmer. Both catalogues are of notably high grade in regard to illustrations, typography, quality of paper and general arrangement. The garden book consists of ninety-six large pages and offers full stocks of flower and vegetable seeds; the 20-page farm list offers seeds of field roots, clovers, grasses and forage plants. The prices are "calculated at the current rate of exchange," with the provision that in case the exchange shall alter decidedly in the company's favor, orders will be filled at "the then revised rate of exchange, so far as stock is unsold."

Spy Hill Conservatories, Beacon, N. Y.—Catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds; a 22-page booklet, in a neat brown cover.

Alt F. Clark, Netcong, N. J.—A folder containing a wholesale list of dahlias. The stock is not grouped according to classes, but is arranged in one continuous alphabetical list, with abbreviations to indicate the type or class to which each variety belongs.

ONION SEED IN CANARIES.

Present indications point to a small yield of onion seed in the Canary islands during 1920, states the United States consul at Teneriffe. This crop is of particular interest in that from eighty to ninety per cent of it is exported to the United States. This crop is planted in November and harvested in June, July and August. The greater part of each year's production is contracted for in advance by American seedsmen. It is grown principally on the island of Teneriffe, though small amounts are raised in La Palma, Gomera and Hierro.

According to exporting interests, plantings last fall were smaller by fifty per cent than the year before and the crop will consequently be the smallest in many years. This was due to two causes: First, the American market was well supplied with seed in 1919 and seedsmen postponed sending their contracts; second, onions for planting were 300 per cent higher in price than usual, which made the prospective profits from an onion seed crop an extremely speculative proposition. It is too soon to form any reliable opinion as to the prospects of the crop now in the ground, as March and April are critical months.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE death of Josiah W. Day, in the nursery business at Omaha, Neb., until his retirement two years ago, is recorded in the obituary column this week.

THE Heberle Bros. Nurseries, Brighton, Rochester, N. Y., lost young trees and shrubs to the value of over $10,000 when a building covering a root cellar burned down early Saturday morning, April 10. The total loss was estimated by Arthur H. Heberle at between $25,000 and $30,000.

IN the Yakima valley, Washington, nursery stock is reported to be scarce and the prices exceptionally high, a condition attributed largely to the cessation of European exportation of seedlings to this country since the war. The scarcity is increased by the strong demand for fruit trees, the call for apples and cherries being especially notable. In small lots $1 per tree and $10 per dozen is asked, while in larger quantities the quotations for all varieties are $60 per hundred.

SECURING PUBLIC CONFIDENCE.

Work of the A. A. N.

When we organized at Chicago in 1875, the American Association of Nurserymen was one of nurserymen, florists and seedsmen and so continued for a number of years. The rapid growth of all these interests caused the two latter groups to withdraw after a while to form separate associations. If happy is the land that has no history, could the same be said of trade associations, then ours should have led an ideal existence during its first forty years; for during that time its even course was marked only by annual reunions, almost altogether social in character, but pleasant as affording opportunity for old friends to greet each other. As the years went by, however, it became apparent that many problems required concerted action for their solving, and the necessity for a business organization for strictly business purposes caused a reorganization at Detroit in 1915. While pending for several years, the actual fact was so sudden that the old constitution had to be changed over in the short time of the meeting and, while the purposes of the association were quite clear, the made-over constitution did not seem somehow to fit. It became as uncomfortable as a man trying to feel at ease in the clothes he wore as a schoolboy. But in 1917 an important change was made, whereby the association so amended the constitution as to establish a code of ethics for the guidance of its members. An important addition to that was made in our last convention. I mention these two changes, for I hope to have you gentlemen realize their importance to you.

From the address of John Watson, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, on "The Association: Its Aims and Progress," delivered before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, March 16.

Broad Code of Ethics.

They laid down a code of ethics, not in detail but broadly, and they made fair dealing a requisite for continued membership in the association. It is made the duty of every member to report every instance of unfair dealing or unethical practice that comes to his notice, whether between members or with the public. We have a vigilance committee, whose duty it is to investigate every report and to apply or recommend such remedy as seems appropriate to the circumstances, even to expulsion from the association. There is nothing behind that more substantial than the moral influence of the association, but the moral effect of the opinion of one's fellows in a national trade organization of 400 members, and the possibility of losing not only that good opinion but the privilege of fellowship, is strong enough to secure observance of the rules of fair play.

It might possibly be asked if that amendment to our constitution is by way of intimating that members of the association need supervision. We ask the same fair dealing of others, not members of our association; we ask no more of them than we are willing to do ourselves, and we give assurance of our sincerity by doing it first. The association has been in existence forty-five years; some of its members have been in business longer than that. It means a high average of ability, a certain degree of service and the giving of real values, to continue in business so long a time. But we realize that we need some standards, that we have been without any statement of them for many years. It was only five years ago that we made membership elective. Before that, our ranks were open to all who paid nominal dues; there was no other formality required. Since then we have investigated all applicants. New members are voted on by our executive committee acting as a membership committee. We make observance of our rules the condition of membership. We are not exclusive. Our doors are hospitably open to all reputable nurserymen who approve of our policies and program and who care to stand with us.

To Create Confidence.

If you ask why we should do this, let me point out that the nurseryman bears a peculiar relationship to his customer. In every business, confidence must be established. Business, to be profitable, must be permanent. Ours is a continuing business. Often it passes down from father to son. It has the advantages and the disadvantages of permanency. It means the possession of real estate and crops that are carried in stock for from two to ten years. Once in, you are in to stay, unless, unhappily, the sheriff should close you up. Now, if permanency is requisite to success, the confidence of the buying public is of vital importance.

CHARLES NASH NURSERY
Three Rivers, Mich.

The relationship of the nurserymen to the public is peculiar in this, that a larger degree of confidence has to be reposed in him than in almost any other tradesman. I can go into one of your flower shops and I see what you have; I know if it is what I want. But in the case of nursery stock it is different. We can't look at trees and tell what they are. Some of them we know at a glance, but many things do not bloom or fruit until some years after the customer buys them.

The man who invests in a piano or an automobile or a suit of clothes or any of the things of ordinary commerce can see the goods and when he sees them can judge accurately whether they are all right. But the man who buys an orchard of fruit trees can't look into them and tell what they are; he buys out of confidence in the seller. And his investment has to continue for some years, in the case of fruit trees, until he does know what he has bought. He must invest in land or the value of its use, the preparation of the ground, the planting, pruning, spraying and cultivation of the trees until at length they come into bearing. His investment, during those years, becomes many times the original cost of the trees.

Therefore, in buying trees and plants, their nature makes it necessary for the buyer to place great confidence in the grower. So I say our responsibility is greater because the degree of confidence must be greater. In some cases that confidence is misplaced and they are the cases that find ready space for publicity, while the many thousands of properly and satisfactorily filled orders are not advertised in the same way. It is not surprising that in an industry representing an annual turnover of $30,000,000 and in which hundreds of thousands of orders are filled in the short space of the fall and spring seasons, some errors should occur. Nor is it strange that actual imposition is not unknown in the nursery business. And that is what we purpose to try to eliminate.

Telling the Public.

Now, taking that stand and making the association the partner of those who buy goods of any of our members, we feel that they and we are both entitled to have that fact known. And so we have just placed contracts for a series of advertisements to tell the public what the American Association of Nurserymen stands for; how our members are held to the observance of rules of fair dealing and how we have provided for the public to get what we promise them. We assume no "holier than thou" attitude. We realize that there are firms outside our ranks that are of unquestioned standing and responsibility. We take our stand for fair dealing and ask others to stand with us.

That, to my mind, is the most outstanding fact in American horticulture today. We want it to benefit the buyers of trees and plants; we know it will. We are human enough to want it to benefit us, too. We think the public demands what we are doing; and we are doing it as careful, thoughtful business men, meeting a situation that we have no wish to evade. Every business transaction affects two parties, those immediately at interest and also the general public. The business of every nurseryman affects the association and all its members. We simply take note of that and do the obvious thing. That is all. And yet it means a great change. It is not revolutionary. To some, all change is revolution; this is merely the evolution of business standards following the lead of other lines.

advanced season for these flowers, did not sell as freely as hyacinths.

Some roses and plenty of asparagus ferns are arriving from California, but otherwise local growers are supplying the greater share of the orders. Local violets are a little light on quantity yet, but make a splendid showing as to quality. Columbia and Ophelia roses still lead the local cut, with Premier plentiful and Ward a little scarcer. All of these have shown improvement in the keeping quality. There has been a notable improvement in the quality of the ordinary varieties of carnations, especially Enchantress. The red varieties are showing more color and Laddie is selling well. Gardenias and lilies of former. The supply of snapdragons and forget-me-nots has also increased, with the demand more than keeping pace. Sweet peas have been used less frequently of late.

There is an abundance of daffodils and these have been selling as fast as received. Funeral work has been heavy and there has been an increasing number of weddings. One of the features of Easter business which drew comment this year was the increase in the number of telegraph orders for flowers, both received and sent, proving conclusively that the advertising campaign is having its effect.

Various Notes.

The first potted rhododendrons of the season were offered by the Woodlawn Flower Shop and proved probably the highest-priced Easter offerings shown.

This firm, according to Harry Crouch, had a nice gain over last year's business and only weather conditions prevented a doubling of the former total.

Roses, snapdragons, hyacinths, ferns and daffodils were used by the Hollywood Gardens in the window display which was one of the seven to win honorable mention in the Easter contest of the Chamber of Commerce. This house prepared all of its own baskets and these, in variegated hues, produced a most pleasing effect when filled with the bright spring offerings.

Another effective window display was that of the Burns Floral Co. In the foreground there were about a dozen small Easter rabbits and behind them rose tier on tier of Easter lilies. The simplicity of the window made it all the more effective.

William Langhout, representing the American Bulb Co., Chicago; George Peters, of Cleveland, O.; P. Elliott, of Boston, and Thomas Luke, with Max M. Smith, Portland, Ore., were visitors recently.

Rosaia Bros. reported a satisfactory business on all lines for Easter and the second store, under the management of Henry Day, showed a business double that of 1919. There was even a fair Easter Sunday morning business at the main store, with lilies, hydrangeas and mixed baskets as the popular offerings. Some of the finest local roses are being sent to this firm from the Thomas Floral Co. greenhouses.

In order to care for the Easter rush, Kenney's Home of Flowers rented the storeroom next to its establishment and this step was more than justified. Funeral work has been especially heavy and has kept this firm cleaned up on stock.

Fred H. Rowe, of Mrs. L. W. McCoy's, reports that it will be about two weeks before the new store on Second avenue will be decorated and ready for occupancy, although it was used a few days before Easter, along with the Third avenue shop.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Newark florists did a fine Easter business. Prices were high, but the stock moved fast. Since the holiday, business has been quiet and prices are somewhat lower. Flowers are now arriving in quantities sufficient to meet the demand in full. There is also a large variety to choose from. The outlook for business between now and Memorial day is good, but no one looks for any great rush.

Various Notes.

Charles Luthy reported an excellent Easter business and also the post-Easter trade as being good.

The Market.

Stock continues to become more plentiful and, naturally, prices have dropped in many instances. There has been an abundance of sweet peas and snapdragons. The carnation supply has also shown a large increase; last week they were selling as low as $4 and $5 per hundred. The rose supply is satisfactory and the quality of all varieties of stock is good. Beauties brought $9 and $12 per dozen, orchids $1 to $1.50 each, Easter and calla lilies $3 per dozen and valley cleaned up at $10 and $12 per hundred.

The plant trade fell off considerably last week.

Club Meeting, Roast and Dance.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at Schmidt's hall, Tuesday, April 6, and the new officers were installed. Sunday closing was declared effective, beginning Sunday, April 11, and many other important matters were discussed. Mr. James, a carnation grower from England, was present and offered to give a talk on carnations and roses and plans are under way to get the growers together so that they can benefit from Mr. James' experience along their line.

The oyster roast and dance, which was held at Elks' hall Friday, April 9, was voted a success by everyone; many out-of-town florists expressed their regret because they were unable to attend the affair. Several leading members of the trade were present and they are getting together to start a movement to put more pep into the club and to have more outings and entertainments this year.

Various Notes.

The Leo Niessen Co. is receiving fine cuts of roses, carnations and sweet peas and expects to be receiving an excellent cut of orchids for some time to come. Out-of-town business was satisfactory last week, several fine orders having been shipped. G. V. S.

Sycamore, Ill.—William Swinbank has sold his business to Martin Johnson, who was for several years his assistant.

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL.

Easter Business.

Easter trade in the Twin Cities was affected by the stormy weather. The plant dealers were the hardest hit, because of the storm Thursday and Friday before Easter. It was difficult to make deliveries and the people in general were not in a mood to buy flowers. There was a good supply of Easter plants and cut flowers of all sorts. Easter lilies and other stock moved well and the business since the holiday for parties and social functions has cleared the market on lilies.

Various Notes.

The April meeting of the Minneapolis Florists' Club took the form of a banquet at Donaldson's tea rooms. The ladies were invited on this occasion.

The ladies' florists' organization of Minneapolis had a party Tuesday evening, April 6.

The horticultural division of the state fair is offering about $7,400 in premiums for this fall.

Frank Gustafson, St. Paul, has been ill for several weeks. H. E. Philpott has been looking after his business.

August Swanson, an old member of the trade in St. Paul, has moved to Pasadena, Cal.

C. H. Ramsdell has returned from a business trip to Montana. He reports considerable work under way there in the landscape line. Scarcity of good material and reliable labor is troubling the landscape men.

The forestry section of the St. Paul park board is to plant 4,600 trees on the streets this spring.

Will Bros. Co. has some fine houses of snapdragons, sweet peas and carnations.

Local nurseries began wholesale shipments last week and expect to make retail shipments and do local planting soon. L. C.

This photograph was taken December 6, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Rooted Cuttings (by parcel post), $16.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1000

Orchid Grower Wanted

The man I want doesn't read "help wanted" ads on the classified page. He isn't looking for a job. He is 30 to 35 years old. He is commercially trained.

He has had experience with a progressive company, growing Orchids for a commercial, up-to-date place.

He will be interested in change only after he hears of our institution; its 40 years' record of sound success; its need for him and the opportunity it offers.

He would be willing to make his home on the place, west of Philadelphia.

Salary to be discussed later, but I do not want a man who hasn't proven to the satisfaction of others.

Just one answer is what I want. Make it in detail; be sure it will be treated in confidence.

Only written application will be received, but if your reply is considered favorably, an interview will be arranged at no expense to you.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

NUMBER OF FLOWS.

Would you tell me how many 2-inch flow pipes a 4-inch main will take care of in a hot water system? The flows are 100 feet long, with two returns on each flow to the main returns. Some local plumbers say that they can carry ten, while others say five.

E. F. C.—Wash.

The amount of radiation which can be handled by a 4-inch flow pipe will depend upon the height of the system and, particularly, of the returns above the boiler, which is not stated. If the lowest part of the coils is two feet above the top of the boiler, ten 2-inch returns, 100 feet in length, should not be considered an excessive amount to be carried by a 4-inch flow of the same length, especially if the flow pipe is on the plate or overhead.

The radiation furnished by the flow and returns will only be 750 square feet. It is a safe rule with coils of a length of 100 feet to arrange the piping so that the combined area of the returns is twice the area of the flow pipe. With this as a basis, I should have eight 2-inch returns for a 4-inch flow pipe, especially if the returns are only level with the top of the boiler. It is preferable to use this number of returns instead of ten.

Instead of using a 4-inch main, a 2½-inch flow pipe with about three 2-inch returns can be used, although four returns, 100 feet long, may be used with a 2½-inch flow if they are two feet above the top of the boiler and the flow pipe runs downhill, at a somewhat higher level. The slope need not be more than one inch in fifteen or twenty feet, or just enough to allow the air to go to the highest point in the system.

FIVE HOUSES, ONE BOILER.

I am sending you a sketch of my range in order to find out how to pipe it to get a temperature of 60 degrees when it is 15 degrees below zero. I grow cut flowers and pot plants. Of my five greenhouses, two have just been finished, but have not yet been piped. I have one No. 5 Kroeschell hot water boiler and have piped house No. 1 with the help of the drawings which the Kroeschell Bros. Co. sent me when I bought the boiler. House No. 2 is piped on the same plan except that there is not so much piping in it, as I did not want this house so warm. Experience, however, has shown that it has not enough piping in it to keep up a temperature for carnations, snapdragons, sweet peas and calendulas, but this can be remedied. House No. 3 I piped in the same way except that instead of putting the pipes apart I put them together and got all the returns under two side benches, as I was not ready to put in the benches in the center at that time. Houses No. 4 and No. 5 are not piped and I need to use them. Could I pipe them now so as to carry enough heat to keep stock from freezing or would you advise piping later on?

There are three outlets on the boiler and two inlets on each side. At present I am not using the center outlet and, because the boiler is set too close to the wall, I am not using the two inlets on one side. If I have the water from all five houses return through the two inlets I am using now, will that be too much on one side? In accordance with the Kroeschell plans, one outlet supplies house No. 1 and the other takes care of Nos. 2 and 3. At present I cannot tear anything out or make radical changes in the building. Would you advise using steam in this size of range or will hot water be all right?

I could let the water out and put a 4-inch valve on the main and one on the return and pipe the two houses from those, letting the water in again when the change was completed. But I have about 150 feet of 3-inch pipe and a good deal of 1 1/4-inch pipe, which I should like to use if possible. Should the hot water mains be reduced, as is done with steam mains? I have one 4-inch main running through the service shed; should this be reduced from 4-inch to

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

3-inch and so on until it reaches the farthest end? I have 4-inch pipe on hand which can be used for return to outlet, but I have no more 2-inch pipe. The system so far installed consists of 4-inch mains reduced to 2-inch mains, with 2-inch returns. C. T. M.—O.

The accompanying sketch shows a cross section of a range of five greenhouses, but one essential has been omitted, namely, the dimensions of the houses. Had the length and width of the houses been given, I could have been more definite in answering the questions.

The No. 5 Kroeschell boiler is rated to heat 12,000 square feet of glass to 60 degrees when it is 15 degrees below zero. This, then, indicates that it would be possible to heat the five houses as described, if they are approximately 20x100 feet each. From the data given it is to be inferred that house No. 1 is piped for 60 degrees and Nos. 2 and 3 for about 50 degrees. It is stated that sufficient radiation is desired in Nos. 4 and 5 to keep the plants from freezing. This will not require much more than one-half as much radiation as for 60 degrees. For temporary purposes as above outlined, the boiler should be able to keep out frost in Nos. 4 and 5, in addition to heating house No. 1 to 60 degrees and Nos. 2 and 3 to 50 degrees, even though they be as large as 20x150 feet, in a climate such as may be expected in southern Ohio.

To heat these houses, run a 4-inch pipe as a flow and take off from this a 3½-inch supply pipe for each of the new houses. Run this overhead to the farther end of each house. If they are twenty feet wide, use in each house eight 1¼-inch pipes, with one or two more in house No. 5 if there is glass in the exposed wall, assuming that it is to be piped to keep out the frost and that the 1¼-inch pipe is to be used. Ordinarily it is not advisable to use pipes less than 1½-inch for houses more than fifty feet in length and in this case the pipes should be carried as high as possible on the walls and purlin posts.

For heating a house 20x100 feet to 60 degrees, three 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 2-inch returns would be best.

Permanite

(Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Modern Methods for Modern Business

Years ago greenhouse men were satisfied in using their own putty and spent a couple of weeks every year getting their houses in shape.

Today, the modern greenhouse man does not want to use home-made putty and bother about putting it on himself—he knows he can get a better product—at less expense and with better results.

The man who knows glazing compounds, and recognizes their merits, always insists on Permanite, because it is the ONE and ONLY original Asbestos Glazing Cement—all others are imitations.

All of the pipes should be run downhill and carried as high as possible, in order to improve the circulation in the small return pipes.

When possible, it is better to reduce the size of the main flow and return pipes after taking off one or more supply pipes, but this is not necessary. In this case, the use of 3½-inch flows and 3-inch returns has been suggested, but if these are not on hand and there is plenty of 4-inch pipe on hand this may be substituted.

The question is asked, "Would you advise using steam or hot water in ranges of this size?" There is no way of telling whether there is 10,000 or 20,000 feet in the range, but the size of the boiler suggests that there is no more than 20,000 square feet of glass. The cost of installing a steam system is considerably less than for hot water, but the latter requires less fuel, can be left longer without attention and has other

Easter Business.

"Easter business was good," is the verdict of the trade, but there is a difference of opinion as to how good. Some of the stores had big stocks left over. Easter Saturday dawned with the temperature far below freezing and a blizzard scheduled for Sunday. But telephone orders came for corsages and for various other flowers and plants and delivery systems were worked overtime. Trucks had to be heated, but nothing was lost by freezing. It is certain that the sales would have been far ahead of what they were if conditions had been different. In the main it was better than a year ago, because stocks were so much larger. Wholesalers feel well satisfied. Their heaviest shipping days were Wednesday and Thursday and they disposed of big stocks.

The Market.

Business held up well last week and stock continued fairly plentiful. Bulbous stock is scarce and sweet peas are short, owing to dark weather. The express embargo has cut off wholesale business. No shipments were received by the express companies last week. Some orders were sent by parcel post.

Various Notes.

S. Bryson Ayres is well stocked on rose bushes. He has been buying wherever he could get good stock.

Samuel Murray's increase of business over last Easter was twenty-eight per cent. Lilies and hydrangeas were his best sellers.

Easter business was larger than the Christmas business at the Muehlebach Flower Shop. The heaviest trade was in plant baskets. April 8 this firm had three weddings and two table decorations, and April 9, three table decorations and a funeral.

Arthur Newell has taken a lease for the east half of what is now the Kupper hotel dining room. He will take possession about June 1.

The Market.

The Easter excitement is over and everyone has more time. A distressing feature of the holiday business was the discrepancy in prices. Combined effort on the part of the commission men set a uniform price on lilies. A pre-Easter prediction made by a salesman that lilies would sell for $50 per hundred was noted with regret; another gave publicity to the fact that lilies would sell at $9 per dozen retail. The former kept the storeman from buying; the latter took all the pep out of the public.

The market conditions are slow. Roses are plentiful and of good quality. Sweet peas are poor, many large concerns in this district claim they have good peas, but no pickers. Lilies are now selling near their real value and are of little use except for church decorations or funeral work. Daffodils are slowly disappearing and the same may be said of tulips and hyacinths. Violets are through. Carnations are plentiful and can be had at normal prices.

Greens are not overplentiful, but much easier than at Easter, when many retailers were caught short and had to send their late cut flower orders out without green. Sunday morning a carload arrived from the south.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is having a big call for southern smilax. Easter business was the best ever.

H. W. Sheppard is kept busy with wedding decorations, several of the more recent ones calling for exceptionally fine and elaborate work.

Julius Baer says funeral work is the most dependable business after all.

The Market.

Following Easter, prices have been low, the wholesale houses reporting the disposal of various roses at $6, $15 and $20 per hundred.

The returns of the Easter trade are considerably better than those of any previous season. The stock was a little shy and a little below par in quality, on account of the rapid maturing weather of the week before the holiday. There were many complaints about sweet peas and violets. Lilies dominated the supply, the one class of blooms that were too plentiful.

Easter in the Parks.

John W. Jones, foreman of Schenley park, calls this the "back to nature" year, because of the exceptionally lavish use of the old-fashioned flowers. Formal old-fashioned gardens featured his Easter flower show in the Phipps conservatory, with gay beds of geraniums, marigolds, petunias, flags, begonias and columbines. One of the most effective displays was that of cinerarias. While no larger or more varied, Mr. Jones' collection of Mme. Edouard Herriot, Mme. Edmond Rostand and Los Angeles roses and Easter lilies were exceptionally superb in quality. Notwithstanding the long and dark winter, Superintendent George W. Burke and Mr. Jones decided not to force the plants, but to trust to luck for an Easter or later show. Fortunately, the ten days of warm weather before Easter made the show possible.

James Moore, of the West park, estimated more than 20,000 plants in his exhibition. His aquatic house attracted special attention. There were floral bridges crossing a miniature mountain stream, which emptied into a fish pool.

Considering the time of year and the recent holiday week, the market has been steady. The weather during the week was cold and cloudy, with snow flurries. This did much in retarding the spring flood of stock, and trade, by holding up briskly, has taken care of production at profitable prices.

The local supply of roses is of exceptional quality. Some of the finest roses of the season are now arriving. It is the same with carnations. Good stock is more plentiful.

ATTENTION, MR. GROWER!

KOST SOIL PULVERIZER

WHY do you throw away your coal ashes, when by using them in your soil you grow better crops?

There are plant food elements in coal ashes; ashes also help to keep the soil sweet; there are elements in ashes that dissolve plant food elements in the soil otherwise dormant.

Ashes act as a solvent to the soil, keep the soil porous and fresh from stagnation.

Don't waste your clinkers and ashes, spread them on your land to grow better carnations in your fields; your asters also need good light soil.

The leading growers use their coal ashes. Max Grohman of North Tonawanda, N. Y., Begonia Lorraine, Cincinnati and Cyclamen specialist, once one of the leading growers for Thomas Rowland, Boston, Mass., uses all his ashes; Mr. Carl Grohman, grower to H. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., another famous grower, uses all his ashes; J. P. Anderson, Short Hills, N. J., prominent fern specialist, uses all his ashes in his fern soil; The Lansdale Mushroom Co., Lansdale, Pa., who supply all the leading hotels with cucumbers, melons, tomatoes and mushrooms, grind all their clinkers and ashes for their soil.

Now, Mr. Grower, get our pulverizer for clinkers and ashes. We have a grinder that we are proud of—it is "fool proof," it grinds up soda, clam-shells and soft limestone. It keeps two to three men busy shoveling in as fast as they can. Don't fail to spread all your ashes on your soil, for it helps the crops and acts as a solvent on other plant food elements in the soil.

Mr. Grower, why throw your money away, by not using your clinkers and coal ashes?

This pulverizer was designed and made to grind up the soil and soda, also fertilizers that come in bulk from the sheep ranches direct to the grower in carload lots. It can be used for many other purposes, and the grower will surely be benefited in many ways. The pulverizer has not only many uses, is a big labor saver and a money maker, but is also a better crop producer and a saver in fertilizers. By using up all your coal ashes and clinkers, this alone will save you a lot of money.

As production and conservation are the great roads to success, we would ask you, Mr. Grower, to write us by return mail about this very reasonably priced pulverizer. Price $150.00.

Guaranteed to do the work intended to do. Write us today—

Read what Mr. Sherwood, of the Sherwood Greenhouse Co., Waterloo, Iowa, says:

"I have used your glazing cement for five or six years, and on houses I glazed the first year the cement is still elastic and giving good service. I have tried out two other cements that were claimed to be equal to your product, but after tests I have not found them to have the lasting qualities of your cement. ## Easter Business.

The trade reports record-breaking Easter sales, but business would have been much better if it had not been for the stormy weather. It snowed every day during the week preceding Easter and a foot of snow held business down Saturday, April 3.

Easter lilies of excellent quality were in good supply, but the demand equaled the supply and all that were ready cleaned up. A few growers failed to get their stock in. Hydrangeas, rambler roses and spiræas were of excellent quality, but the supply was small and they cleaned up early. Bulbous stock, such as hyacinths, tulips and daffodils, was fine, with plenty for everyone.

Cut flowers were in good supply and all orders were taken care of in full. Rose prices ranged from $10 to $30 per hundred, with Hoosier Beauty and Columbia demanding best prices. Carnations cleaned up well, selling at $5 to $10 per hundred. The sweet pea supply was short of the demand, selling at $2 per hundred. Cut Easter lilies cleaned out at $4 per dozen, wholesale.

Various Notes.

Some particularly fine Easter windows were in evidence in Salt Lake City, including those of the Huddart Floral Co., E. A. Lambourne, B. C. Morris and the Miller Floral Co.

J. Ginsburg, formerly manager of the American Florist, at the American theater, sold his interest to Mr. Eldridge, who operated the Utah Florist Shop. Mr. Ginsburg has now organized a company and has opened a store on Broadway, known as the Greenhouse.

The Miller Floral Co., at 10 East Broadway, used four trucks delivering Easter flowers. Besides the four machines, this company had about a dozen boys busy from Friday morning until Sunday afternoon. Some of the finest rambler roses ever grown in the state came from this company's greenhouse, but the supply was inadequate for the demand.

E. A. Lambourne was well pleased with Easter business, as he had about all he could handle. G. J. B.

Simply Turn the Valve
Skinner Rain Does the Rest

Did you ever actually try a line of Skinner Irrigation—to see how it worked?

Just turn a valve, and watch the water spurt out of one nozzle after another, all along the line?

And smell the dry soil begin to grow moist again under the gentle, mist-like rain of the Skinner System?

Whatever you grow, you know you can't make it succeed without water.

And bitter past experience has proved that you can't depend on the weather man to send rain when your crops need it.

Seems like it would be good business, then, to have your own rain supply, under your own control. Skinner Systems cost so little that again and again they have paid for themselves—the first season. Let us send you our new book, "Rain for the Asking."

It tells definitely what a Skinner System will mean to you in taking the gamble out of your business and putting profits in.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL

It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 3 1/2 in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2 1/2-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100, delivery May and later. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

CARRYING VIOLETS OVER.

We have heretofore grown our violet plants in the field in the summer under a lattice of laths. We have found that it is a considerable shock to violet clumps to be moved from their summer quarters to the greenhouses, which is done in late September; the plants take over a month to recover from this shock. We have decided this year to plant the rooted runners in 6-inch pots, growing them in these pots under the lattice-work until late September, and then plant them directly from the pots into the greenhouse beds. Our idea in doing this is that the plants when knocked out of the pots will not be disturbed as they would be if they were grown out in the field, lifted with a spade and transplanted. Do you think that this plan would be successful?

Also, please tell us whether in your opinion these pots should be plunged in the ground to the top of the pots or set on the level of the ground, with earth banked up around them. What would be the best drainage to put in the pots? We shall be glad to have any other suggestions. We intend to try this treatment on 12,000 Lady Hume Campbell plants.
A. G. S. & S.—Va.

It will be a big and probably expensive task to carry over 12,000 double violets in 6-inch pots. It would be preferable to plant them outdoors; with artificial watering they should make good clumps, which, if carefully lifted, should become established within a fortnight. If you could remove your greenhouse sashes, the better plan would be to plant direct into the house, as many do today. If you decide on pot culture, it would, of course, be much better if the pots were plunged to their brims, as the roots would then be much cooler. Use 5-inch rather than 6-inch pots and plant a little earlier than the end of September, if you can. Ventilate abundantly and keep the plants well sprayed to keep spider in check.

Broken crocks make the best drainage, but cinders or small broken clinkers may be used, if preferred. A little moss, a few leaves or some coarse loam should be placed over the drainage to prevent it from becoming clogged.

Time to Fix Up Your Benches

This time do it the AGMCO way. Discard your wood bench legs—which rot, settle, allow benches to sag and sometimes collapse.

FRANK SCHRAMM

WILLIAM SPANDIKOW

You've all heard of the famous Frank Schramm place at Crystal Lake, Ill., and of the wonderful roses grown out there by William Spandikow. Well—

Mr. Spandikow has withdrawn from the Weiss-Spandikow Co. of Rhodes Siding, Ill. (for which the AGMCO built four steel frame houses 36x300) to go back to the Schramm place at Crystal Lake. But—

He's going to grow in AGMCO houses. The AGMCO always gets the contract from the men who actually know greenhouses—the men who have to do the work—the men who live in the houses day in and day out.

And Mr. Spandikow's choice of AGMCO houses is based on his experience growing in AGMCO and other houses. Anyone acquainted with Mr. Spandikow would know that he could be relied upon ultimately to choose the best.

And Mr. Schramm? For years his quiet, good judgment has impressed itself upon his business and those with whom he came in contact. Such a man was bound eventually to choose the AGMCO.

Can't you hear the voice of your good judgment telling you you're next?

Our All Steel Greenhouse Is a Lasting Investment

In 1914 we furnished Mr. Neil Nielsen of Mankato, Minnesota, two of our all steel greenhouses, 34 x 240 ft., and now he has ordered another house, to be attached to the present ones.

Mr. Nielsen paid more money for these all steel greenhouses than the ordinary pipe frame style would have cost him, but in the long run he will be money ahead, for they are much stronger and a better permanent investment.

Method of bolting to the sash the new No-come-off hanger.

No-come-off hanger fastened to rod and equipped with bolts.

Here's Sound Sense For You

Isn't it so, that next to boiler grates that stick, the ventilating apparatus in a greenhouse comes in for the bulk of the swearing?

Isn't it also so, that it's not because most ventilating apparatus as a whole is not right, but that so many of the little things about it are wrong?

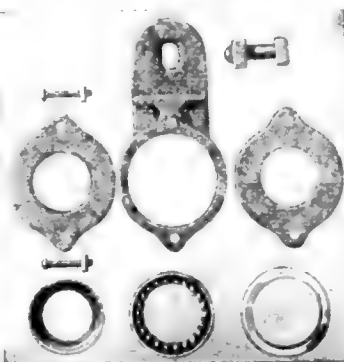

Take the question of fastening the rods to the bottom of the ridge vent sash.

It's no unusual thing to hear of the wind ripping the screws out and flopping the sash and breaking all the glass. Or tearing it off completely and flinging it through the roof.

Admittedly, it hasn't happened very often; but it's not a pleasant possibility to have hanging over you. To overcome it, we have for several years bolted the fastener to the sash rail. Put two bolts straight through the wood.

Ball-bearing hanger bolted to rafter and showing the shafting in place.

Parts of ball-bearing shaft hanger.

Considering the fact that a house 300 feet long requires bolts at a cost of $6.70 for them all, against screws costing $1.25, it shows you one of the reasons why our houses sometimes cost more than some others.

Another thing about our ventilating apparatus is that we equip it with ball-bearing shaft hangers. You know what that means in making it work easier.

Method of bolting to the sash the new No-comes-off hanger.

No-comes-off hanger fastened to rod and equipped with bolts.

Here's Sound Sense For You

Isn't it so, that next to boiler grates that stick, the ventilating apparatus in a greenhouse comes in for the bulk of the swearing?

Isn't it also so, that it's not because most ventilating apparatus as a whole is not right, but that so many of the little things about it are wrong?

Take the question of fastening the rods to the bottom of the ridge vent sash.

It's no unusual thing to hear of the wind ripping the screws out and flopping the sash and breaking all the glass. Or tearing it off completely and flinging it through the roof.

Admittedly, it hasn't happened very often; but it's not a pleasant possibility to have hanging over you. To overcome it, we have for several years bolted the fastener to the sash rail. Put two bolts straight through the wood.

Ball-bearing hanger bolted to rafter and showing the shafting in place.

Parts of ball-bearing shaft hanger.

Considering the fact that a house 300 feet long requires bolts at a cost of $6.70 for them all, against screws costing $1.25, it shows you one of the reasons why our houses sometimes cost more than some others.

Another thing about our ventilating apparatus is that we equip it with ball-bearing shaft hangers. You know what that means in making it work easier.

MAKING MORE OF MOTHERS' DAY

The present prominence of Mothers' day shows what work, advertising and the interchange of ideas can do to raise a good suggestion into an immensely profitable reality. That team of three can do yet more to make Mothers' day one of the best holidays, if not quite the best, for the trade.

CURRENT interest in the political race, or races, and in the possibility of a "dark horse" unexpectedly dashing out ahead of the now uncertain field and gaining the victory, suggests the florists' attitude toward Mothers' day. Most of the six or eight "days" for which the trade concentrates its energy are holidays of long standing. Public sentiment concerning them is well founded and widely spread; it has been so for a long time. But Mothers' day was unknown before 1908 and yet it is rapidly rising in rank among the others as a flower day. There are good reasons for this.

In comparison with other holidays, Mothers' day is notably universal in its appeal. It carries more sentiment as a flower day than Thanksgiving, which is associated rather with fruits and autumn vegetables than with flowers. Christmas and, even more, Easter are largely dependent upon people's religious beliefs for their observance as holidays; not so Mothers' day. It betokens an affection even more widespread than that shown on St. Valentine's day. It pays tribute to the living and not only to the dead, as does Memorial day. Even the person whose mother died during his infancy can think of her with love, if not with intimate knowledge. There is no one in whom Mothers' day will not find a response.

It's May 9.

Though the choice of the date by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, had no deliberate connection with the needs of the florists' trade, the day comes at an excellent time. The second Sunday in May, this year May 9, is about halfway between Easter and Memorial day and thus comes when flowers are plentiful and cheap and when there is no other particular reason for a large demand. It comes, too, when there is no special drain on people's purses for other buying, as there is at Christmas.

With the appropriateness of a Mothers' day recognized, the use of flowers follows as an

MOTHERS' DAY.

On Mothers' day thoughts promptly fly
To one who stilled each early cry,
Who smoothed away all childish woe,
And seemed the slightest need to know,
With kindly fingers ever nigh.

A changeless friend, though oft a sigh
Was caused in years that speeded by—Behold her face, with pride aglow,
On Mothers' day.

Unite we, then, in praises high,
With tender voice and moistened eye;
Bright flowers send, gay flowers show—
May love serene immeasured flow,
Earth's children all to unify
On Mothers' day.

inevitable consequence. There surely is no better way—one might even say, no other way—properly to express one's appreciation of the beauty and love exemplified in the mother. One's natural attitude is well expressed in the verses which appeared in B. L. T.'s column in the Chicago Tribune and which are reprinted at the top of this page. The ways in which flowers may be used in this expression of feeling are limited only by human ingenuity.

Nor is there any real limit to what flowers may be used. Miss Jarvis, the originator of the idea of Mothers' day, believed that the white carnation was the proper flower for the day, but, since, on the one hand, the growers could not possibly supply enough white carnations for that day and, on the other, no single flower, however beautiful, could adequately express the diverse tastes of the multitudes who would need them, all flowers have come into use. The only distinction is that indicated in the couplet which, originated in the columns of The Review and spread by advertising, has done much to educate the public out of the white carnation idea:

For Mother at home, flowers bright;
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

In the observance of Mothers' day, we are not restricted either to the giving of flowers to the mother at home or to the placing of flowers on the grave. It is a day of celebration, not only of individual relationships, but of all mothers the world over, of motherhood; it is a commemoration, not only of the particular loved one who has died, but of all those who through the long ages have raised up each succeeding generation.

All Wear Them.

Hence everybody should wear flowers, as well as give them. Churches have been decorated with flowers for this occasion, ministers have preached sermons on it and the children attending Sunday school on that day have been given flowers. Fraternal organizations and societies like the G. A. R. have attended church in a body, each individual wearing a flower. Industrial corporations have presented flowers to all of their employees for that day. An early and especially effective instance of that occurred in Philadelphia when the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. ordered 7,350 carnations, to be distributed among its twenty car barns; the appearance of conductors and motormen, each wearing a carnation, was a constant reminder and incentive to all of that day's street car passengers to buy flowers. Many people who appreciate the loneliness of patients in hospitals will want to "mother" them by sending them flowers. The spirit of Mothers' day, once aroused, finds innumerable ways to express itself.

One further suggestion, which grew out of war conditions, but which is still of value, is that mothers will also want to send flowers to their sons and daughters. Some people on their birthdays like to give presents, as well as receive them; so mothers on their particular day may wish to give particular expression to that motherliness for which their children are so deeply grateful.

Wide Appeal Brings Wide Publicity.

While advertising and the coöperation of members of the trade with each other through the columns of The Review have together given Mothers' day a solid foundation, much remains to be done.

Because of the spontaneous appeal which Mothers' day makes, much publicity can be secured simply as the result of suggestion. The governor of the state or the mayor of the city can be persuaded by a delegation from the florists' club or by sufficiently influential members of the trade to issue a proclamation giving his official sanction to the day. Ministers will give the matter publicity in their churches. Fraternal organizations will spread the idea among their members even farther than they already have. Y. M. C. A.'s will push the movement. Women's clubs, singly and in federations, have a natural interest in the celebration of the holiday. The Congress of Mothers has already endorsed it. So has the American Federationist, the official organ of the American Federation of Labor.

Means of Advertising.

In advertising, newspapers will probably be found the most profitable medium. But window cards announcing the

Don't Forget Your Best Friend on Mother's Day

The nation decrees that on this noble festival we should express our sentiments with flowers. Send Mother—day, Mothers' day, and the date, Sunday, May 9, and giving the "bright flowers, white flowers" couplet and the retailer's name, will prove effective. Banners on delivery cars and wagons will bring the same message to a large audience. Reminder cards in delivered packages and stickers on them will result in return trips to the store using them. Personal letters to the best customers will bring to their attention an occasion for flower buying which should not be overlooked.

In the newspapers, both display advertisements and "readers" may be used, but they are not the only channel of publicity. The enterprising retailer may have window decorations, plans for flower distribution, unusual orders, or other features for the day sufficiently original to have news value. The deeper meanings of the day will appeal to the moral side of the editor's nature and an editorial endorsing Mothers' day will benefit the paper, the public and the trade. Nor should the cartoonist be forgotten, especially if his work is syndicated to a large number of papers. Newspaper cartoons can be, not only flippant or satiric, but both serious and sympathetic, and they get the readers' attention with a directness and a forcefulness which reading matter seldom attains. A suggestion sent to the cartoonist for a picture embodying the sentiment of Mothers' day will often bring results.

A Chance for the F. T. D.

In planning the advertising for Mothers' day, the large opportunities for telegraph delivery service must not be overlooked. This day is a peculiarly appropriate time for the strengthening of family bonds which may have been allowed to weaken. It is a time when, however strong the filial relationship, absent children will want to send some token of their love to the mother at home. It is a time, too, when many people will wish to have a wreath or a simple bunch of flowers placed on the mother's grave in a distant city. Consequently, even the mere mention of facilities for telegraph delivery will bring large returns.

Here, then, is the day—Mothers' day. The trade and The Review, working together, have taken this idea, originated by a lady who doubtless had at the time no notion of its ultimate possibilities, and have made of it one of the leading floral holidays, a day when flowers are particularly a beautiful necessity. Let this coöperation continue and the prominence of the day increase yet more!

AD AIDS FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Notably in Newspapers.

While there are many ways, both through direct advertising and through indirect suggestion, by which the demand for flowers for Mothers' day or any other holiday may be stimulated, newspaper advertising is the most important single channel to publicity, especially for this particular holiday.

Whether the advertising is coöperative or individual, whether it is spread among several newspapers in the same city or is concentrated in that which seems most likely to reach the readers desired as customers, the Mothers' day advertisement itself has certain more or less essential elements which deserve careful consideration. There is the illustration or the ornamental border, if any is used, and there is the copy, which may be subdivided into the date, the sentiment for the day, the couplet calling for bright flowers and white flowers, the advertiser's special facilities—his "talking points"—and the signature, the retailer's name and address.

Care in Illustration.

The illustration may be either a sketch representing mother, used alone or with drawings of her children, a reproduction of some famous painting of motherhood, or something else appropriate to the day. The ornamental border, if used at all, may include one or more of these pictures. Because of the kind of appeal which this advertisement is expected to make, particular care should be taken to have the drawings and reproductions well made. The painting which has been most commonly copied, Whistler's portrait of his mother, has been criticised as being too sad for the purpose, but that impression of sadness is due rather to faulty reproduction, which fails to do justice to the peaceful dignity of the original. Other paintings which have been used are the Madonna studies of the medieval Italians.

A Couplet for the Copy.

Coming to the copy, it is well to state both the date, Sunday, May 9, and the fact that it is the second Sunday in May. That will help to lay the foundation for the trade of later Mothers' days. The sentiment may be a quotation from some famous man telling what he owed to his mother; it may be a comment on the importance of the day, a suggestion of the mother's enjoyment of flowers, or an allusion to pleasant memories which flowers may revive. The couplet referred to is the one originated by The Review to overcome the first bias of the public toward white carnations; that demand clearly could not be satisfied and a wider selection of flowers provided a much more satisfactory means of celebrating Mothers' day. Whether or not the lines are literally quoted, the idea should certainly be incorporated in the copy. The well known couplet is as follows:

For Mother at home, flowers bright;
In Mother's memory, flowers white.

If the retailer has facilities for telegraph delivery, that fact should be mentioned, since Mothers' day is preëminently a day for long-distance messages.

Signatures in Coöperation.

The treatment of the signatures depends largely upon whether the advertising is individual or coöperative. If the advertiser is a single retailer, the insertion of his name, address and telephone number is a simple matter. But if a number join in the advertisement, several possibilities are open.

More and more the trade is finding that, unless the individual can afford to pay for a large display, several retailers can secure better results at less expense by getting together and buying a large space than they can by individually taking a few inches each. This coöperative advertising has taken three forms. In the first and generally the least satisfactory, a page or half-page is given a common head and the rest of it is divided into equal spaces, in which the coöperators put their own advertisements. The styles are likely to be dif-

"Flowers for Mother"

Join the Millions of Men, Women and Children of this Great Nation in Paying Homage to Her.

THIS day has been set aside by an Act of Congress as a day to be kept sacred in honor of the "Mothers" when we, as a Nation, turn aside from our usual tasks to pay homage to her who gave us birth, whose guiding hand and unselfish love made life's path smooth for our first faltering steps.

FLOWERS

Profusely fragrant and delightfully refreshing, they will, if presented on this day, be a true token of love and devotion. It means so much to Mother, every petal, every leaf, every waft of fragrance is laden with a message for her. It speaks to her in language no human tongue can speak—it makes her feel that the pain, the anxiety, the fear, the sleepless nights, her silent sorrow, her sufferings have not been in vain—it speaks to her of love returned, the sweetest of all compensations and it means so little to you measured by the standard of gold and silver.

Give Her Favorite Flower to "The Best Mother That Ever Lived, Your Mother". All flowers are appropriate for "Mother's Day" Blooming Plants, Cut Flowers, Baskets, in fact any of the many kinds She likes so well.

ferent and the effect is too confused to be forceful; in addition, much space will probably be wasted either in telling the same story several times over or in giving conflicting stories.

Doing the Day Justice.

In the second and generally most effective type, almost the entire space is devoted to a large-scale, unified presentation of the claims of Mothers' day and the signatures are grouped together at the bottom. The advertisements from Washington, D. C., and Canton, O., are two good examples of this style. In such advertisements, the names are better set in uniform type, as in the Washington example. In some cases, instead of the names of coöperating retailers, the name of an organization is given, as was done by the Albany Retail Florists' Association, or the name of a group, as in the advertisement on the front page, signed by the Retail Florists of Richmond, Va.

The growing tendency of the trade toward coöperation suggests the following adaptation of a familiar line: "Boost always flowers, let the buyers come where they may." In newspaper advertising, this policy has sometimes taken the form of advertisements without signatures, perhaps concluding with the words, "Patronize Your Own Florist." An example of this kind, one of those used in Milwaukee, is reproduced on the preceding page.

Now Is the Time.

Turning from the style of advertisement to the method of originating it, the initiative may lie in the newspaper, the individual retailer, or the florists' club. When the newspaper advertising manager solicits coöperative trade advertising, he may suggest the hodgepodge style with subdivided spaces, the newspaper perhaps contributing a head and a general comment in the body of the advertisement. It will be much better to adopt the unified style, with the group of signatures at the bottom. In any case, no time is to be lost in making use of these suggestions; early preparation will result in better advertising for Mothers' day.

WINDOWS FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Different Lines of Appeal.

Like every other holiday, Mothers' day gives the florist a challenge as to the best use of his window display space. In planning the design for it, he may use any one of at least four different lines of approach.

He may simply to establish in the mind of the passer-by a connection between the mother and flowers in general and to remind him of the coming of Mothers' day in particular. This may be done by surrounding a good print of some mother picture, such as Whistler's portrait of his mother, with a frame of flowers in which the date, May 9, is worked. Or a large window card, patterned on the retailer's newspaper advertisement, may be framed in the same way. In either case, the corners of the frame may be connected with vases of flowers or smaller exhibits by ribbons, which would lead the eye to the central feature, the Mothers' day announcement. A short poem on motherhood, set in large type, could be used instead of, or in connection with, the window card.

The retailer may choose his picture or his poem to direct the thought and feeling of the passer-by to the memory of the mother who has died. In that case, white flowers will naturally be selected to dominate the display. White doves and white ribbons may also be used effectively for such a window.

For Transient or Local Trade.

If the store is in a college town or draws largely on transient trade, the opportunity will be particularly good for an appeal for the distant mother and the distant home. Any experience which the retailer may have had with telegraph windows will be valuable here. The ease of sending and the joy of receiving, especially if the element of surprise is added, can be suggested, either pictorially or otherwise. Messages written on telegraph blanks will help to make the idea more vivid.

If local trade in a distinctly residential district is most relied upon, the pleasure of having flowers in the home may be stressed. The window space may be utilized for the representation of a home scene, with two or three vases of flowers naturally distributed about the room. Flowering plants will find a place in such a window; while given to the mother on Mothers' day, they will remain to cheer her for some time afterward. In any case, the final effect of the window display should be, not only to increase the business for that particular day, but to give flowers a firmer hold on the daily life of the people, a surer place in their homes throughout the year.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Eureka, Cal.—G. Vanden Abeele, receiver for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, called a meeting of the stockholders and creditors of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Monday, April 19, at the office of the company at Eden.

Des Moines, Ia.—Alfred Lozier, proprietor of the Rosery, has offered, through the Wholesale Florists' Credit Association, which has been conducting the business, payment of 25 cents on the dollar to creditors. There has been no profit shown since the store was taken over; in fact, operation has been at a loss. Some of the creditors have, therefore, shown inclination to accept the offer of settlement.

HOW MUCH DO YOU SPEND?

Advertising appropriations are a continual source of discussion and the percentage of income or of outgo set aside for that purpose varies widely. Say L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del: "We have found that spending one-third of our income in advertising is a paying investment. We are only a small concern, yet we are spending $1,900 a year in advertising. Our booklet cost $1,500. The rest goes to newspapers."

The booklet mentioned is a well prepared and well printed volume of thirty-two pages and cover, designed for retail customers, giving hints as to seasonable flowers at the principal holidays of the year and general suggestions designed to promote an interest in plants. The illustrations are exceedingly good, many of them being views of the firm's stock and some of designs suitable for funerals. The heavy calendered paper and the attractive purple and gold cover make the book a substantial one that is likely to induce the recipients to accede to the request on the opening page to "do both yourself and us a favor by putting this booklet where you will know where to find it when you want them, either cut flowers or blooming plants."

THE TASTE HAS CHANGED.

On the sidewalk in front of the store of Adgate & Son, Warren, O., stands an ornamental drinking fountain, placed there some years ago by the W. C. T. U., which has, for some time past, been so poorly patronized as to be distinctly noticeable. Frank H. Adgate observed that among the many reasons advanced is one that the taste of the public has been educated, so to speak, by the soda fountains. The original is deserted; in fact, its doom dates from the time when a farmer, claimed to have been affected with red eye, hit the fountain with his team, giving the structure a black eye from which it never recovered.

"This taste for richer things," said Mr. Adgate, "was seen this last Easter in the call for floral baskets, of which we had a few made up as samples. We regretted that lack of time prevented us from making up more, for what were ready sold at sight. About 1,000 pans of Holland bulbs, with other stock, brought good figures and a few held-over azaleas, which were fine this year, brought easily a ten-spot apiece, strengthening the desire to import again as soon as the consent of the powers that be is given.

"Taking everything into consideration, it has been a banner season. We have fine stock for Mothers' day and Memorial day."

RAISING ORCHIDS FROM SEED

HAVING been asked to read a paper at this meeting on the hybridization and raising of seedling orchids, I first wish to state that I am fully aware that the methods which I shall describe are not necessarily the best or only methods, but they are the outcome of my own personal experience in the raising of seedlings and the hybridization of cattleyas, laeliocattleyas, brassolaelias and brassocattleyas in various combinations. Of these I may say I have raised a good many thousands. In the last five years we have devoted considerable time to raising seedlings at Hackensack, having raised in that time at least 25,000, some of which have already flowered. Previous to that time we had raised a good number of hybrids which gave us some wonderfully fine varieties, which we have used in the last five years as parents, combined with the best varieties we could obtain in England.

In hybridization the first thing to consider is the result desired. In the past any two flowers were good enough to cross, so long as seedlings were secured, but we have got over that great mistake—a mistake which oftener than not led to disappointment when the hybrid flowered.

The Desired Type.

Four or five years is a long time to spend in growing a plant to maturity, only to be disappointed with the outcome; therefore I would impress on all beginners in seedling raising the necessity of using nothing but the finest forms for parents. My principal aim has been to get a flower that is perfectly shaped, of good size and richly colored. My idea of shape is as follows: A well rounded form, with the dorsal sepal standing upright (many of the otherwise best cattleyas curl the dorsal backward); the lower sepals broad and without any twist or curl; the petals broad and round, meeting well together at the base of the dorsal sepal; labellum or lip large and well frilled at the edge; size, about six and one-half inches in diameter.

The color should be, to be perfect in my opinion, what I term a three-color combination; that is, the sepals and petals one color, the labellum much richer and darker and the side lobes yellow or the throat heavily veined with yellow or gold. The yellow in the side lobes or throat of the lip is one of the first things I consider before making a cross. I never consider a flower for a parent unless it has this characteristic strongly defined, as I believe it is the center of attraction in any flower. No matter how dark a flower may be, if this one color is lacking the whole flower is dull and lifeless.

Colors of Parent Flowers.

It will readily be seen that, to get a flower such as I have just described, it would be useless to take a fine form of Cattleya gigas and hybridize it with the pollen of Cattleya intermedia. On the other hand, if we take the pollen of Cattleya Dowiana or its variety, aurea, we obtain all the results desired—a more compact flower, with a color (if Dowiana is used) that is richer throughout the whole flower, and with beautiful gold veining in the throat of the lip or veining it puts in the throat of the hybrid, but also because it intensifies the color of the whole flower. Cattleya aurea does this also as far as the veining of the labellum is concerned, but it does not intensify the color of the sepals and petals as does Dowiana. On the other hand, if we are using a flower with white sepals and petals, expecting to get white sepals and petals in the hybrid, we should never think of using Dowiana, as it always puts a trace of rose color through the flower, while aurea does not do this, provided the other parent is pure white. Apparently the yellow of aurea has no influence on a white flower, but it does impart its wonderful veining and some of its rich color to the lip of the offspring, and, if the white flower has a colored lip to start with (which is always to be desired), it makes one of the most beautiful of flowers.

I have raised plants from crosses of all our best large cattleyas, both colored forms and albinos, with Dowiana as the parent for the dark forms and aurea for the white forms. I find them good growers, quick to flower and, for commercial cut flowers, the best of all. I raised 1,500 plants of Fabia alba (labiata alba x aurea).

Time of Flowering.

Another thing that must be given serious study is the time of flowering. The cross just mentioned flowers at a most opportune time; that is, just after the gigas plants are through and before the *labiata*s come in; this makes it particularly valuable as a cut flower. I always use, as far as possible, the Dowiana or aurea as the female parent, as I believe the characteristics of the female always predominate.

I would say that the next best hybrids to the primary

Dowiana and aurea crosses are the secondary brassocattleya crosses. The primary brassocattleyas are beautiful, but the secondary hybrids—that is, brassocattleyas recrossed back onto cattleyas—are wonderful. They have a far greater amount of color, the lack of which is one of the weak points of the primary cross, and have a more compact shape. They are not as floriferous as some of the other hybrids, giving rarely more than two flowers to a spike, but they command the highest prices and have practically no set season for flowering. I have some in flower every week of the year and that means a great deal when flowers of the species are out of season and prices are high.

Next come the laeliocattleyas, and it is in hybridizing with these that the greatest care has to be taken. In my opinion, laelias are useless as cut flowers for the market, but they carry some else large golden yellow disks or side lobes of the lip. In this cross the gigas lip is much enlarged and has a finely frilled edge.

Among the prerequisites to the successful hybridizing of orchids, says this grower, are a definite idea as to the results desired from each cross, and an equally definite idea as to the sort of parent plants that will be likely to produce these results. He strongly condemns random experiments, as leading to almost unmixed disappointment. His description of his own methods is clear and interesting.

In this particular cross there is only one point to watch for and that is to be sure to select a Dowiana that does not have the habit of twisting its lower sepals too much, as so many of these fine cattleyas do, and that tendency is surely carried into the offspring. We have some fine varieties of this cattleya at Hackensack, including about twenty distinct forms of natural hybrids that came out of importations, and in all of these the lower sepals curl and twist to a greater or less extent. But in our own seedling, Hardyana, this does not occur, showing that careful selection is a most important factor.

We have used Cattleya Dowiana as a parent more than any other cattleya, principally on account of the yellow wonderful color combinations, most desirable for use in crossing. The primary laeliocattleyas usually have wonderful colors but poor shape and are often small. Laeliocattleya luminosa is one of the best and recrossing it with Dowiana makes a grand hybrid, but I would advise any commercial grower never to use a straight laelia as a parent and but few of the laeliocattleyas, unless they are secondary crosses. The laelia shape is hard to build up and requires several generations of crossing.

In closing my remarks on this phase of my subject, I would say, never make a cross without some definite idea in mind as to the results you wish to attain. Avoid crossing a light flower with a dark one, or crossing any two flowers that are widely different in shape, as the poor shape and light color will come out most strongly in your hybrid.

An Orchid Orphan Asylum.

Always use the best varieties you have or can get, even if carrying the seed pod kills the plant. I have seen many fine orchids die through carrying seed pods. A seed pod is a severe drain on some plants, especially the Dowianas. Mr. Moore calls the seedling house the orphan asylum, because so many of the female parents die through carrying pods.

After the flower is hybridized, there is little to be done until the capsules ripen; this takes about one year, but occasionally they will stay on the plant one or two months longer. The plant requires no different treatment from the rest of its class, but it should not be potted and its root action should not be disturbed if this can be avoided.

Primary hybrids always give the hybridizer a good crop of well filled seed pods, but in making secondary hybrids, and so on, the percentage of pods that mature become less, with a correspondingly smaller amount of good seed per pod.

Saving and Sowing the Seed.

After the pods are ripe and gathered, the seed should be shaken out of the capsules and spread on a piece of paper to dry, care being taken that the seed is not blown away in the process. After being dried, it should be kept in a cool, dry place until you are ready to make a sowing. Make your sowing as thin as possible and that will be many times too thick if the seed germinates well.

I consider the best times to sow are in March and September; I presume I have sown in every month of the year, but my best results were attained from sowing in these two months. As to the material to sow on, I believe it does not make much difference what it is, so long as it absorbs moisture. I have used burlap and toweling with good success, but the seed will germinate just as well on sphagnum moss or osmunda fiber. Usually I get a good number of seedlings off the rim of the pot itself.

Requirements for Germination.

The principal requirement in getting the seed to germinate is the right atmosphere in the house. Avoid seedling frames or small sash frames; I tore mine out long ago; they catch all the condensation and drip constantly on the pots, destroying all hopes of getting a good germination. Make the sowings in a small house which you can keep at a temperature of 75 degrees at night, letting the temperature go as high as it likes during the day, with sun heat and with the atmosphere always saturated with moisture. A cold draft is sure death to seedlings. I never use the ventilators on my seedling house, summer or winter, but give a change of air by slightly opening the door of the adjoining compartment.

Fungi as Aids to Germination.

Of late years a good deal has been said about fungi that are necessary before germination can take place. Formerly I used to laugh at this idea and I got seedlings up, too. But I am older and possibly wiser now. Without the presence of these fungi, orchid seed will not grow, but this is not an alarming fact, as the fungi are always present among orchids and, within three or four days from the time of sowing, will make their appearance among the seed. The great object to be attained is to keep the fungi after they have come, for a cold draft or the least dryness or even too wet a condition of the pot is death to them, and thus germination is checked until a new crop of fungi comes. By that time your seed may have rotted or otherwise become useless. The effect of this fungi is hard to explain, but my own observations lead me to infer that orchid seed is not fertile until the fungi have done their part.

The First Transplanting.

From that time on the seed develops rapidly and in about thirty days, if

Up to this stage the seedlings have numerous extremely fine root hairs around the base of the globule; these disappear when the true roots form. When the true roots are about one-fourth of an inch long, the seedlings are ready to be potted off into thumb pots. From then on they grow along in the same manner as any other cattleya in its growing season, but are not dried off or rested until they reach the flowering stage, when they are treated in the same way as the species.

In conclusion I would say that the largest factor in raising seedlings is unlimited time and patience.

PLANTING FOR THANKSGIVING.

When should bird's-eye peppers, Jerusalem cherries, Primula obconica and P. chinensis be planted to be in bloom for Thanksgiving and Christmas?

L. K. M.—Pa.

Seeds of peppers, Jerusalem cherries, Primula sinensis, or chinensis, and P. obconica should be sown at once; in fact, the Jerusalem cherries would have been better if sown in March, but you still have time to secure good-sized plants. I should advise planting the cherries out in summer, lifting and potting them in early September. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"The Growers' Exchange has developed beyond our most sanguine expectations; in addition, it is a line of intercommunication, an exchange of ideas, as well as of stock," said Charles N. Cotter, Jamestown, N. Y., also mentioning that his son, Jeffery, was getting ready to travel in the interests of this growing concern.

The Lake View Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., are producing right along under exceptional difficulties. It is remarkable what can be accomplished under a competent head, but doubly so when the hands have to follow suit. Superintendent Cotter has plans for reconstruction, which, if carried out, will be undoubtedly a big success.

Theodore Staudt, Rockville, Conn., said that Easter was a thanksgiving for him, because he had just recovered from a five weeks' siege of pneumonia and was able to help out a bit during the rush. Mrs. Staudt and a son held the business together.

That Easter business was about as usual was the report of the Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., Thompsonville, Conn. Seed orders are numerous and planting prospects are good.

W. A. Wettlin, Hornell, N. Y., has placed a contract for a new greenhouse, 35x100 feet, with a service room, as a nucleus of what may become the largest range of glass in the neighborhood. If business demands and space permits, the necessary wherewithal will be forthcoming when other conditions are more favorable than at present. The old range is crowded with spring stock in fine shape.

F. J. Weiss, Port Jervis, N. Y., speaking of business generally, banked on having a new greenhouse completed in time to help out at Easter, but was disappointed. He figured that with the stock prepared and exceptional demand, the house would almost pay for itself the first season.

"Great season for posies," observed George W. Haas, of George W. Haas & Son, Meadville, Pa. "We are pleased to note an increase in the wearing of corsages, for which much of our stock is well suited."

"Fine business, but oh! so rushed!" exclaimed Mrs. Krueger, at the store of H. J. Krueger, Meadville, Pa. "Can you send us a good man to help our son at the greenhouses?" Hers was not the only request for help, by any means.

Irving Nicholson, Kennedy, N. Y., a prominent market gardener, in speaking about the scarcity of labor, mentioned that the Erie railroad was scouring the country in his vicinity, offering as high wages as $5.50 per day, and said that although he is gardening the larger part of 100 acres, the prices for produce are so unremunerative that under existing conditions the temptation to give up is strong.

George Heelas, Jamestown, N. Y., said that he never handled so many

VOLZ'S DOUBLE CINERARIAS.

Visitors at the greenhouses of Frank A. Volz, on Dina avenue, Cheviot, Cincinnati, O., remark to the proprietor of late: "You've got cinerarias all over the farm, haven't you?" And he candidly admits he has and for good reason. Mr. Volz is on the trail of a good strain of double cinerarias. Perhaps "on the trail" is not the precise expression to use, for he has about 300 plants of them this season.

The reason he goes in so strong for this plant is that he is quite enthusiastic about its possibilities. He believes it will go toward replacing the azalea, for which a substitute is much needed. Several of the leading Cincinnati retailers agree with him. He hopes to obtain further opinion, particularly from other growers of pot plants, to confirm his own belief.

Two years ago a double bloom appeared on one of his cinerarias. He crossed it with one of his best specimens of single cineraria, believing thereby he would obtain a sturdier plant. From this cross he obtained fifteen plants with double blooms. This year he had 9,000 seeds. No wonder he has cinerarias "all over the farm"! From those he planted he now has about 300 plants with double blooms. A large number come single and about as many come semi-double as double. Mr. Volz thinks that twenty-five per cent is about the proportion which comes double from the plants produced.

On many plants the terminal bloom is double, and the others semi-double, as can be seen in the illustration on this page. Others are all double, as some appear in the illustration. Some are as tight and round as a baby pom-pom. Mr. Volz, who uses practically all the stock he grows for his retail trade, has made use of the cut blooms in funeral work and found they met high favor, though he had to answer many questions as to what the flowers were. The semi-double cinerarias have sold well as pot plants, but he has offered none of the doubles.

The plants grow easily and thrive in all sorts of conditions, Mr. Volz says. He has one sash house full of them. It is by no means watertight and in cold weather the temperature has not been much above freezing at times, yet the plants do well there.

Mr. Volz is now saving seed by colors and, if his strain proves good in the opinion of expert plant growers, he will carry his work much farther.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The market was in a glutted condition last week, with carnations in the lead. Roses were not so abundant, but other flowers were plentiful. The supply of carnations is lessening somewhat this week and indications point to a shortage for Mothers' day. Prices have been ranging from $3 to $6 per hundred in small quantities, but large quantities can be had much lower. Roses have been equal to the demand.

Snapdragons are fairly plentiful and are of good quality. Sweet peas are in good supply, but are not overabundant. Bulbous stock is not so plentiful, being on the decline. A few good Darwin tulips are on display. Lilies are plentiful, both the callas and Easter varieties. Calendulas are available. Daisies also are in the market and are popular for bouquets.

Business continues quiet. It is the lull between Easter and Mothers' day that occurs every year, so one can hardly complain. Cool weather has prevented planting out and has held back the sale of bedding stock.

Green goods are still scarce. Fern leaves are arriving slowly. Potted plants are scarce, but are in little demand.

Club Meeting.

The April meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held Tuesday, April 13, at the store of the Smith & Young Co. In the absence of the officers, E. E. Temperley presided.

The chief business of the meeting consisted in the reading of reports of the various committees that were appointed for the fall show. This show will be given at the time and for the occasion of the F. T. D. convention in Indianapolis. Elaborate plans are being made so that this may be the most successful convention yet held. A. F. J. Baur, chairman of the show committee, reported that the exhibition would not be open to the public, but would be confined to members of the trade. It is desired to have as many novelties and to have the exhibition as unusual and attractive as possible.

In the absence of Joseph Hill, Len Elder reported for the finance committee and gave a brief summary of the plans and approximate expenses. O. E. Steinkamp, as chairman of the hotel committee, stated that the assembly room of the Claypool hotel had been Mention was made of the death of Mrs. Arno H. Nehrling and the secretary was instructed to write a note of condolence to the bereaved husband.

In order to make the time pass more quickly and pleasantly for W. W. Coles, who is confined to his home with a broken leg, the secretary was instructed to send a cheery letter and a box of cigars.

Following the meeting, the association was addressed by Harry Dietz, assistant to the state entomologist, who gave an interesting and helpful lecture on the subject of plant disease and its control. Mr. Dietz is compiling a book on this subject, which he will later submit to the association.

Edwin Mournier, of Shelbyville, Ind., displayed an interesting exhibit of original posters, which were made in the art classes of the Shelbyville high school. He offered prizes for the best original posters featuring "Say It with Flowers," and the results were wonderfully pleasing.

The meeting was followed by a social hour and refreshments were served by the hosts.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting some splendid snapdragons, which were grown from seed. They are also cutting larkspur and delphinium. Numerous calls have been received by them for chrysanthemums in their four new pink varieties, Harbinger, Pandora, Tokio and Progress.

wonderful color combinations, most desirable for use in crossing. The primary laeliocattleyas usually have wonderful colors but poor shape and are often small. Laeliocattleya luminosa is one of the best and recrossing it with Dowiana makes a grand hybrid, but I would advise any commercial grower never to use a straight laelia as a parent and but few of the laeliocattleyas, unless they are secondary crosses. The laelia shape is hard to build up and requires several generations of crossing.

In closing my remarks on this phase of my subject, I would say, never make a cross without some definite idea in mind as to the results you wish to attain. Avoid crossing a light flower with a dark one, or crossing any two flowers that are widely different in shape, as the poor shape and light color will come out most strongly in your hybrid.

An Orchid Orphan Asylum.

Always use the best varieties you have or can get, even if carrying the seed pod kills the plant. I have seen many fine orchids die through carrying seed pods. A seed pod is a severe drain on some plants, especially the Dowianas. Mr. Moore calls the seedling house the orphan asylum, because so many of the female parents die through carrying pods.

After the flower is hybridized, there is little to be done until the capsules ripen; this takes about one year, but occasionally they will stay on the plant one or two months longer. The plant requires no different treatment from the rest of its class, but it should not be potted and its root action should not be disturbed if this can be avoided.

Primary hybrids always give the hybridizer a good crop of well filled seed pods, but in making secondary hybrids, and so on, the percentage of pods that mature become less, with a correspondingly smaller amount of good seed per pod.

Saving and Sowing the Seed.

After the pods are ripe and gathered, the seed should be shaken out of the capsules and spread on a piece of paper to dry, care being taken that the seed is not blown away in the process. After being dried, it should be kept in a cool, dry place until you are ready to make a sowing. Make your sowing as thin as possible and that will be many times too thick if the seed germinates well.

I consider the best times to sow are in March and September; I presume I have sown in every month of the year, but my best results were attained from sowing in these two months. As to the material to sow on, I believe it does not make much difference what it is, so long as it absorbs moisture. I have used burlap and toweling with good success, but the seed will germinate just as well on sphagnum moss or osmunda fiber. Usually I get a good number of seedlings off the rim of the pot itself.

Requirements for Germination.

The principal requirement in getting the seed to germinate is the right atmosphere in the house. Avoid seedling frames or small sash frames; I tore mine out long ago; they catch all the condensation and drip constantly on the pots, destroying all hopes of getting a good germination. Make the sowings in a small house which you can keep at a temperature of 75 degrees at night, letting the temperature go as high as it likes during the day, with sun heat and with the atmosphere always saturated with moisture. A cold draft is sure death to seedlings. I never use the ventilators on my seedling house, summer or winter, but give a change of air by slightly opening the door of the adjoining compartment.

Fungi as Aids to Germination.

Of late years a good deal has been said about fungi that are necessary before germination can take place. Formerly I used to laugh at this idea and I got seedlings up, too. But I am older and possibly wiser now. Without the presence of these fungi, orchid seed will not grow, but this is not an alarming fact, as the fungi are always present among orchids and, within three or four days from the time of sowing, will make their appearance among the seed. The great object to be attained is to keep the fungi after they have come, for a cold draft or the least dryness or even too wet a condition of the pot is death to them, and thus germination is checked until a new crop of fungi comes. By that time your seed may have rotted or otherwise become useless. The effect of this fungi is hard to explain, but my own observations lead me to infer that orchid seed is not fertile until the fungi have done their part.

The First Transplanting.

From that time on the seed develops rapidly and in about thirty days, if

Up to this stage the seedlings have numerous extremely fine root hairs around the base of the globule; these disappear when the true roots form. When the true roots are about one-fourth of an inch long, the seedlings are ready to be potted off into thumb pots. From then on they grow along in the same manner as any other cattleya in its growing season, but are not dried off or rested until they reach the flowering stage, when they are treated in the same way as the species.

In conclusion I would say that the largest factor in raising seedlings is unlimited time and patience.

PLANTING FOR THANKSGIVING.

When should bird's-eye peppers, Jerusalem cherries, Primula obconica and P. chinensis be planted to be in bloom for Thanksgiving and Christmas?

L. K. M.—Pa.

Seeds of peppers, Jerusalem cherries, Primula sinensis, or chinensis, and P. obconica should be sown at once; in fact, the Jerusalem cherries would have been better if sown in March, but you still have time to secure good-sized plants. I should advise planting the cherries out in summer, lifting and potting them in early September. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"The Growers' Exchange has developed beyond our most sanguine expectations; in addition, it is a line of intercommunication, an exchange of ideas, as well as of stock," said Charles N. Cotter, Jamestown, N. Y., also mentioning that his son, Jeffery, was getting ready to travel in the interests of this growing concern.

The Lake View Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., are producing right along under exceptional difficulties. It is remarkable what can be accomplished under a competent head, but doubly so when the hands have to follow suit. Superintendent Cotter has plans for reconstruction, which, if carried out, will be undoubtedly a big success.

Theodore Staudt, Rockville, Conn., said that Easter was a thanksgiving for him, because he had just recovered from a five weeks' siege of pneumonia and was able to help out a bit during the rush. Mrs. Staudt and a son held the business together.

That Easter business was about as usual was the report of the Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., Thompsonville, Conn. Seed orders are numerous and planting prospects are good.

W. A. Wettlin, Hornell, N. Y., has placed a contract for a new greenhouse, 35x100 feet, with a service room, as a nucleus of what may become the largest range of glass in the neighborhood. If business demands and space permits, the necessary wherewithal will be forthcoming when other conditions are more favorable than at present. The old range is crowded with spring stock in fine shape.

F. J. Weiss, Port Jervis, N. Y., speaking of business generally, banked on having a new greenhouse completed in time to help out at Easter, but was disappointed. He figured that with the stock prepared and exceptional demand, the house would almost pay for itself the first season.

"Great season for posies," observed George W. Haas, of George W. Haas & Son, Meadville, Pa. "We are pleased to note an increase in the wearing of corsages, for which much of our stock is well suited."

"Fine business, but oh! so rushed!" exclaimed Mrs. Krueger, at the store of H. J. Krueger, Meadville, Pa. "Can you send us a good man to help our son at the greenhouses?" Hers was not the only request for help, by any means.

Irving Nicholson, Kennedy, N. Y., a prominent market gardener, in speaking about the scarcity of labor, mentioned that the Erie railroad was scouring the country in his vicinity, offering as high wages as $5.50 per day, and said that although he is gardening the larger part of 100 acres, the prices for produce are so unremunerative that under existing conditions the temptation to give up is strong.

George Heelas, Jamestown, N. Y., said that he never handled so many

VOLZ'S DOUBLE CINERARIAS.

Visitors at the greenhouses of Frank A. Volz, on Dina avenue, Cheviot, Cincinnati, O., remark to the proprietor of late: "You've got cinerarias all over the farm, haven't you?" And he candidly admits he has and for good reason. Mr. Volz is on the trail of a good strain of double cinerarias. Perhaps "on the trail" is not the precise expression to use, for he has about 300 plants of them this season.

The reason he goes in so strong for this plant is that he is quite enthusiastic about its possibilities. He believes it will go toward replacing the azalea, for which a substitute is much needed. Several of the leading Cincinnati retailers agree with him. He hopes to obtain further opinion, particularly from other growers of pot plants, to confirm his own belief.

Two years ago a double bloom appeared on one of his cinerarias. He crossed it with one of his best specimens of single cineraria, believing thereby he would obtain a sturdier plant. From this cross he obtained fifteen plants with double blooms. This year he had 9,000 seeds. No wonder he has cinerarias "all over the farm"! From those he planted he now has about 300 plants with double blooms. A large number come single and about as many come semi-double as double. Mr. Volz thinks that twenty-five per cent is about the proportion which comes double from the plants produced.

On many plants the terminal bloom is double, and the others semi-double, as can be seen in the illustration on this page. Others are all double, as some appear in the illustration. Some are as tight and round as a baby pom-pom. Mr. Volz, who uses practically all the stock he grows for his retail trade, has made use of the cut blooms in funeral work and found they met high favor, though he had to answer many questions as to what the flowers were. The semi-double cinerarias have sold well as pot plants, but he has offered none of the doubles.

The plants grow easily and thrive in all sorts of conditions, Mr. Volz says. He has one sash house full of them. It is by no means watertight and in cold weather the temperature has not been much above freezing at times, yet the plants do well there.

Mr. Volz is now saving seed by colors and, if his strain proves good in the opinion of expert plant growers, he will carry his work much farther.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The market was in a glutted condition last week, with carnations in the lead. Roses were not so abundant, but other flowers were plentiful. The supply of carnations is lessening somewhat this week and indications point to a shortage for Mothers' day. Prices have been ranging from $3 to $6 per hundred in small quantities, but large quantities can be had much lower. Roses have been equal to the demand.

Snapdragons are fairly plentiful and are of good quality. Sweet peas are in good supply, but are not overabundant. Bulbous stock is not so plentiful, being on the decline. A few good Darwin tulips are on display. Lilies are plentiful, both the callas and Easter varieties. Calendulas are available. Daisies also are in the market and are popular for bouquets.

Business continues quiet. It is the lull between Easter and Mothers' day that occurs every year, so one can hardly complain. Cool weather has prevented planting out and has held back the sale of bedding stock.

Green goods are still scarce. Fern leaves are arriving slowly. Potted plants are scarce, but are in little demand.

Club Meeting.

The April meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held Tuesday, April 13, at the store of the Smith & Young Co. In the absence of the officers, E. E. Temperley presided.

The chief business of the meeting consisted in the reading of reports of the various committees that were appointed for the fall show. This show will be given at the time and for the occasion of the F. T. D. convention in Indianapolis. Elaborate plans are being made so that this may be the most successful convention yet held. A. F. J. Baur, chairman of the show committee, reported that the exhibition would not be open to the public, but would be confined to members of the trade. It is desired to have as many novelties and to have the exhibition as unusual and attractive as possible.

In the absence of Joseph Hill, Len Elder reported for the finance committee and gave a brief summary of the plans and approximate expenses. O. E. Steinkamp, as chairman of the hotel committee, stated that the assembly room of the Claypool hotel had been Mention was made of the death of Mrs. Arno H. Nehrling and the secretary was instructed to write a note of condolence to the bereaved husband.

In order to make the time pass more quickly and pleasantly for W. W. Coles, who is confined to his home with a broken leg, the secretary was instructed to send a cheery letter and a box of cigars.

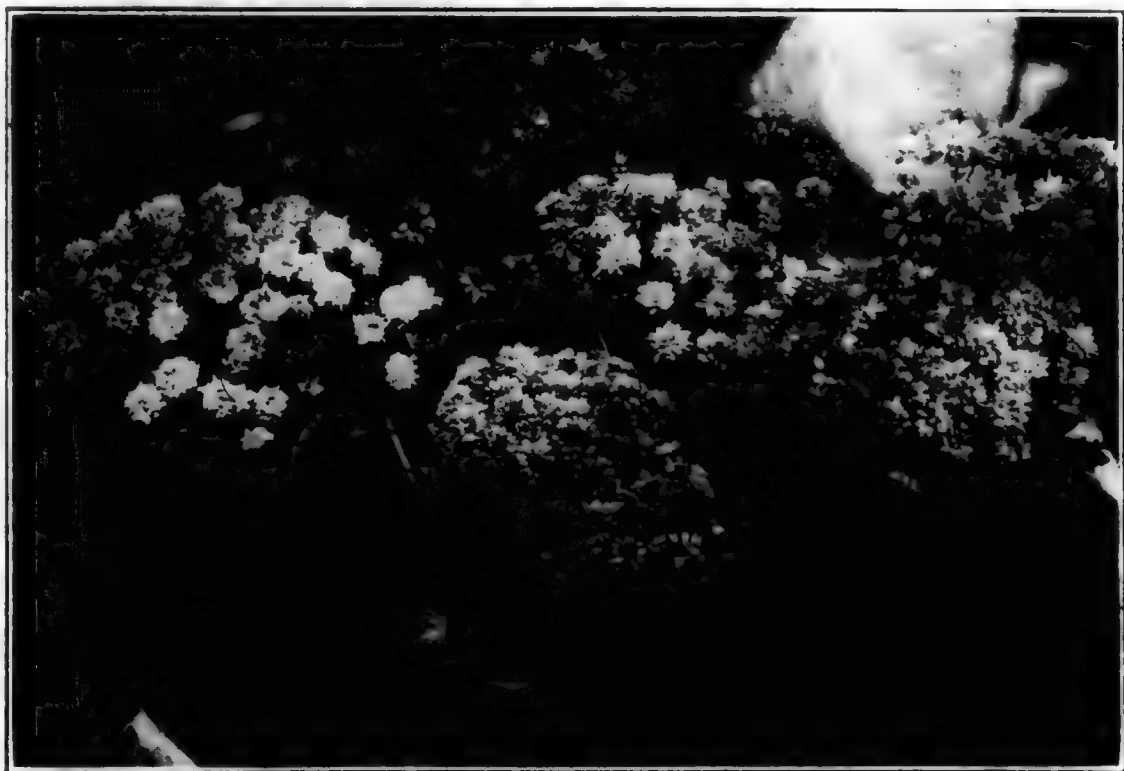

Following the meeting, the association was addressed by Harry Dietz, assistant to the state entomologist, who gave an interesting and helpful lecture on the subject of plant disease and its control. Mr. Dietz is compiling a book on this subject, which he will later submit to the association.

Edwin Mournier, of Shelbyville, Ind., displayed an interesting exhibit of original posters, which were made in the art classes of the Shelbyville high school. He offered prizes for the best original posters featuring "Say It with Flowers," and the results were wonderfully pleasing.

The meeting was followed by a social hour and refreshments were served by the hosts.

CARNATIONS

AT BIG BRITISH SHOW.

At the twenty-fourth exhibition of the British Carnation Society last month Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, who was a guest at the meeting of the American Carnation Society in January, was a leading exhibitor, winning a number of prizes. One was the American Carnation Society's challenge cup for three vases of American novelties distributed since January 1, 1914. He showed Peerless, Crystal White and Laddie, the last of which was characterized as "one of the greatest carnations yet introduced." He also won the cup for the three vases of British novelties, with Bona, one of his own raising, Speckles and Iona, and first place for 100 blooms of any one variety, with Lady Northcliffe. Mr. Engelmann also took first place in the salmon-pink class with his Bona and in scarlet with Thor, which took a special medal as the best vase in the individual color classes.

The big prize of the show, the cup for twelve vases of twelve distinct varieties, each vase containing twenty-five blooms, was won by W. E. Wallace with White Wonder, Sunstar, Una Wallace, Mikado, Scarlet Glow, Romeo, Lady Northcliffe, Enid, Daydream, Winsor, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Pink Delight.

SOME NEW CARNATIONS.

A new white carnation, The Harvester, so named because of its bountiful and continuous harvest of blooms, is to be offered to the trade next season by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind. It is a cross between White Wonder and Matchless and resembles each in some respect. It is certain, state Baur & Steinkamp, to find favor with those growers who appreciate quantity along with quality. They have a large stock and, as it roots as readily as Matchless, they anticipate a successful dissemination.

This firm has also made arrangements with Nic Zweifel, of Milwaukee, whereby they will disseminate his scarlet carnation, Edna. They have been growing it for the last year and are thoroughly satisfied with its behavior and consider themselves fortunate in securing its dissemination. Edna was one of the carnations which Ruth Baur had to beat to win the Dorner memorial medal at the American Carnation Society exhibition at Cleveland, in 1919.

Baur & Steinkamp are also going to grow 1,000 plants of C. S. Strout's new yellow carnation, Maine Sunshine. This was the bloom which won the Robert C. Kerr special prize at the Chicago meeting of the American Carnation Society last January. Mr. Strout desired that it should be grown in the west for the benefit of western growers.

GLADIOLUS GROWERS ELECT.

A large number of gladiolus growers of Massachusetts met in Agricultural hall, Boston, April 3. The object of this meeting was to form an organization of growers to try to effect better cooperation among them and promote more interest among the public.

S. E. Spencer acted as temporary secretary and the following officers were elected: President, C. F. Fairbanks, Lexington; vice-presidents, S. E. Spencer, Woburn, and John Zeestraten, Mansfield; treasurer, C. W. Brown, Ashland, and secretary, Robert R. Walker, Mansfield. The executive committee consists of E. M. Fisher, T. M. Proctor and M. L. Gage. The auditor is F. H. Goodwin. Robert R. Walker, Sec'y.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Considering the inconvenience entailed through lack of transportation facilities last week, the market was well supplied with cut flowers. There was plenty of evidence to support the theory that something more than a railroad strike is necessary to demoralize the New York flower market; there was also a chance to appreciate to the full the large amount of independent trucking which is now a feature of this market's daily supply. At the beginning of this week most of the railroads were operating under conditions nearly normal, but express service was still out of the question.

Arrivals of bulbous flowers continue to be heavy, with tulips in the majority. Paper White narcissi have passed, but plenty of the trumpet varieties are still available, with poeticus also in good supply. The variety Flamingo is especially prominent among the tulips and there is no dearth of Darwins.

A good supply of roses is arriving, in almost every variety except American Beauty, which is on the short side. The cool weather experienced in the last two or three weeks has been favorable to roses and the quality is, in consequence, more than ordinarily good for this season. Premier, Columbia and Hadley seem to be the leaders. The demand is nothing to boast of and clearances at times are somewhat difficult.

Carnations are plentiful, but move fairly well within a range of $4 to $6 for the best. Growers report a good crop of white varieties in prospect for Mothers' day requirements.

There is a good supply of cattleyas, in every grade. The best are bringing $100 per hundred, with inferiors going for as low as $35. Gardenias appear to be in oversupply; while selected flowers can be moved at $25 per hundred, much stock moves at almost any price, with the street man a common customer.

White lilies are quite plentiful and move slowly at $10 to $15 per hundred. Lily of the valley also continues abundant and rather inactive in movement at $2 to $8 per hundred sprays. Callas are in good supply at $2 to $3 per dozen.

The supply of sweet peas is large, but they are in good demand within a range of $1 to $4 per hundred for usable stock. Spanish irises are arriving in fair quantity and find customers at $1.50 to $2.50 per bunch. Some excellent antirrhinums are available at 50 cents to $2 per dozen, selected stems bringing even more. Yellow and white daisies, mignonette, delphiniums, calendulas, wallflowers, pansies, lupines, lilacs, ranunculuses and myosotis are plentiful and meet a fair demand.

Various Notes.

At the offices of the S. A. F., Secretary Young is in the throes of moving. The offices will in future be located on the mezzanine floor of the old Siegel-Cooper building, at Sixth avenue and Eighteenth street, overlooking the new market to be opened April 26 by a number of wholesale florists. The secretary expects to have the new offices in shape before April 24.

The newly appointed flower show committee of the New York Florists' Club met jointly with a similar committee of the Horticultural Society of New York Monday afternoon, April 19, when the organization of a joint committee was perfected, with a view to making arrangements for the eighth international flower show, 1921.

A. M. Henshaw, president of the New York Florists' Club, was receiving congratulations on the arrival of a boy at his home in Summit, N. J.

The Von Tilzer "Say It with Flowers" song is being featured at the Palace theater this week by Miss Grace Nelson, a headliner in the vaudeville world. Several of the florists are seeing to it that the lady is well supplied with flowers at each appearance.

Robert E. Barry has joined the landscape force of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

John Donaldson, Patchogue, L. I., was in this city last Saturday, calling on his many friends in the trade.

There died in New York April 3 James Terry White, well known as a publisher and at one time president of the Yost Typewriter Co. He was the author of the familiar quatrain, so often used in florists' publicity:

If thou of fortune be bereft
And thou dost find but two loaves left
To thee—sell one and, with the dole,
Buy hyacinths to feed thy soul.

William F. Gude, Washington, D. C., with Mrs. Gude and their two daughters, arrived in New York April 14 and sailed the same day for Bermuda, where they expect to remain for a few weeks.

At the meeting of the New York Florists' Club to be held May 10, Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., will deliver a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, on "The Iris."

The death of Charles Ammann April 17 at his home in Yonkers is recorded in this week's obituary column.

"Shorty" Miller, the Subway Florist, at One Hundred and Eighty-first street and St. Nicholas avenue, was held up by three men at the entrance to his home at midnight, Saturday, April 17. He put up a good fight and was able to keep his assailants busy until the arrival of the police. His appearance Monday verified his story. Nothing was taken from him and the men are now awaiting trial. J. H. P.

A. M. Henshaw, president of the New York Florists' Club, has appointed the following as the flower show committee: Charles H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, A. L. Miller, W. R. Pierson, Max Schling, F. H. Traendly, John Young and A. M. Henshaw. This committee is appointed to cooperate with a similar committee of the Horticultural Society of New York. The joint committee to be organized by these will have full power to arrange for the eighth international flower show, to be held in the spring of 1921, and to carry out all details in connection with such arrangements.

John Young, Sec'y.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Though the weather conditions are unseasonable, the demand for flowers continues good in this city. The demand for cut flowers has been excellent; in fact, a little better than the supply. There has been a decided increase in the number of weddings that have taken place since Easter.

Bulbous stock is nearly gone here for this year. There is a good supply of sweet peas and violets. Carnations are excellent, but are not in full crop at present.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club of Hartford held its regular meeting at the City club Tuesday, April 13. There was the usual good attendance and, after a fine turkey supper the business session was held. The plans for the coming ladies' night were discussed.

It was decided, inasmuch as the advertising campaign has been successful in increasing the amount of business done, that we should repeat the campaign this year. Last year the club spent $2,000 in local newspaper advertising.

Four new members were elected to the club. The entertainment committee was instructed to start on the plans for our summer outing. George G. McClunie gave a short description of the New York flower show and President Joseph F. Coombs told of the Boston show.

Various Notes.

Thomas Hallet, Elmwood, has an excellent stock of geraniums for the spring trade. Since Mr. Hallet started in the greenhouse business on a commercial scale he has had good success.

Paul M. Hubbard & Co., Bristol, reports that the Easter business was better than ever before. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard were sick and in the hospital at the same time, but their efficient clerk kept the business going at its usual rate.

Albert Volz, New Britain, had an excellent Easter business. He did not get all his lilies in time, but had a good supply of bulbs and cut flowers.

Andrews Bros., Bristol, did the largest Easter business they ever experienced. Mr. Andrews, senior, is always a regular attendant at the meetings of the Florists' Club, although it is a long way for him to come and he is not so young as some of the rest of us.

Joseph McManus, of Spear & Mc-

& Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., was a recent visitor.

Cawte Bros., Bloomfield, are getting ready for the spring bedding season. Their pansies are excellent and are of their own strain. They are growing a large quantity of early vegetable plants for the wholesale trade. G. B. M.

DECORATIONS AT DANCE.

The greatest social function of the University of Michigan, the Junior Hop, held April 10, was declared by college authorities to have surpassed all those of previous years. It was stated in the Michigan Daily, the university's newspaper, that it was a success never before equaled in the annals of Ann Arbor's social history. And the most striking feature of its success was the decorations.

Never before were they so elaborate. The gymnasium, about 100x300 feet, usually gaunt and bare, with its steel supporting beams and its painted brick walls, was made into a splendid setting for the dance. The effect, which more than pleased everyone and was a departure from previous years' bizarre results in lighting and colors, was that of silver moonlight in a woodland bower. Although previously the work had been done by decorators from other cities, this time it was by a local florist, the BluMaize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor.

Suspended from the beams, forming a canopy, were southern wild smilax, Spanish moss and artificial roses. Around the sides of the large gymnasium were daffodils, in keeping with the color scheme of the school, maize and blue.

The dance was the main attraction for the week-end and the means of Ann Arbor florists' doing much more business. Over Saturday and Sunday, April 10 and 11, there were thirty house parties given by the sororities and fraternities in honor of the visitors to the dance. The BluMaize Blossom Shop had the decorations for twenty-four of the parties, supplied 100 baskets of flowers and made 200 corsages to be worn at the affairs.

GROWERS' LOCALS.

At Detroit.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the American Flower Growers' Association, on invitation, attended a "better business" meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club Tuesday, April 13, at the Statler hotel. Coöperative publicity and the proposed national growers' association were the topics under discussion. It was an enthusiastic meeting and every man signed up for a coöperative publicity fund on the percentage plan. H. V. Swenson, of Chicago, was also present and spoke on the Chicago plan and the progress of publicity. The growers present decided to call a meeting in the near future for the purpose of organizing a growers' local association.

At Springfield, Ill.

There was a gathering of growers at the St. Nicholas hotel, Springfield, Ill., Tuesday, April 20, at 12:30 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a down-state local growers' association, to which all flower growers in the state, outside of Chicago, were invited.

Secretary Ammann states that the growers everywhere are enthusiastic about the proposed organization and are anxious to unite to secure better business methods.

DOUBLE CALENDULA SEED.

Do double calendulas produce seed? I have a few plants which had especially fine flowers; I should like to propagate them, but they failed to produce seed in the greenhouse. I now have made cuttings from these plants, to be planted outside to make seed for next winter. Single flowers made plenty of seed, but so far I have not been able to get seed from double ones.

B. W.—Md.

Double calendulas rarely produce seeds indoors, but seed from single flowers will, in a large majority of cases, come double. You will probably be able to get much better seed from outdoor-grown than from greenhouse-grown plants and fertilizing agencies, which are few in winter, are abundant in summer. The cuttings planted outside will undoubtedly give you plenty of seeds, even on the double flowers. C. W.

Warren, O.—Miss Gertrude Loveless has sold her greenhouse on account of ill health and will only conduct a small flower business in the future.

booths for the fraternities, each decorated with flowers, smilax and shaded lights and separated by columns of white birch trees. Great floor baskets of American Beauties were in several booths, while others contained quantities of spring flowers.

TATE'S TIPS

FUNERAL DESIGNS.

Should Be Artistic.

During the last five years no branch of the retail florists' business has advanced as has funeral work. In times when flowers were the scarcest the florist was often at his wit's end to secure sufficient stock to fill his orders and this emergency was the test that proved whether the one who dealt in flowers was a florist or not. I have seen floral offerings, especially during the flu epidemic last year, which were nothing short of a disgrace to the firms that made them. Artificial flowers were used and all sense of the artistic seemed to be sacrificed for the dollar. I don't mean by this statement that the dollar is not a necessary thing, but I do say that when there is a campaign of education being carried on in the country to teach the people to "Say It with Flowers," they should be educated to say it with natural flowers. Furthermore, the artistic element which has lain dormant in the public should be aroused. It is the duty of the florist always to bear this in mind when he is arranging a floral offering. During the same epidemic it was my pleasure to see some magnolia or galax leaves, with a few fresh flowers, arranged into an offering that was a credit to the florists' business. I will say that some of these designs, from an artistic standpoint, were finer and in better taste than if stock had been used more profusely. The fact that stock was scarce put the designer on his mettle and in many cases he turned out work for less money than the artificial arrangements cost, with which there was no comparison.

Individuality an Asset.

Now, before we talk about the actual arrangement of flowers for funeral purposes, let us see what is required in the designer. The first thing, in my estimation, is individuality. Don't be afraid to get away from beaten paths. I can remember the time in the city in which I live when if you showed me a funeral design, nine times out of ten I could tell you by whom it was made; the individuality of the designer would be stamped on it. In some cases this was artistic and in some it was otherwise. We all know that some designers are born; that is, they have a natural taste for the arrangement of flowers. Nevertheless, I claim that this taste can be cultivated. I have heard people say that they could not make an artistic arrangement of flowers; such people are either lazy or lacking in courage. Did anyone ever hear of the artist becoming a painter of renown or the musician a master of his instrument without hard work, long hours of practice and study? This is the only way to success in any calling.

Study Others' Work.

Just a word to the young designer. Did you ever go to the cemetery after the funeral of some prominent person, after everyone had left the grave, pick out those offerings which struck you as being out of the ordinary, study their construction and make notes for future reference? Study the offerings and see where it would be possible for you to improve on them; remember that this is the work of some designer whose work in your estimation is superlative. Don't let this deter you. Study his work with the eye of a critic; find fault with it, but let this fault be found only by yourself and in the cemetery. Do this as often as you have an opportunity and you will soon find that none of us is infallible and you will soon find that you are gaining confidence in your ability.

Use Initiative.

I have written this advice for the young designer and I am going to give you a trade secret. I know some designers today who have spent a lifetime in this calling, and who never let such an opportunity slip by. They will tell you there is always something to learn in the florists' business. But the important part of all this is, at the first opportunity put any idea you may have gained from this study into execution. Remember that this branch of the business is not much over 50 years old and just such little things as the foregoing have made it what it is today. To those who have never done this, my advice is to give it a trial and see if your ideas do not broaden.

Another point I wish to impress on the designer is to get away as much as possible from the set wire frame. Did you ever stop to think, when you have a design all mossed up and have the flowers all stemmed for you, that some foreigner is the true designer? Of course, I know that there are occasions when a design is absolutely necessary, but there are many of our florists today who will recommend a set design because it is along the line of least resistance. In other words, you are willing to use the brains of your wireworker rather than your own; you are too indifferent or afraid to use initiative, just the thing that will gain for you the reputation of being exclusive in your work. This is one of the most valuable assets you can possess. The best taste of the country tabooed designs long ago. In fact, the best stores of the country have little use for them. If they must have them they are ordered as they are required and, aside from wreaths, are seldom carried in stock.

MORE CO-OPERATION

CANADIANS PLAN CAMPAIGN.

Big Meeting at Toronto.

One of the most important florists' meetings ever held in Toronto took place at the Toronto Retail Florists' Club rooms April 19, when the growers and retailers sat around the banquet table and listened to well known men in the trade tell of successful coöperative plans for florists.

Seated around the head table were H. G. Dilleuth, president of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club, who was toastmaster; Geo. Asmus, Chicago; Fred C. W. Brown, Cleveland; E. B. Hamilton, president of the C. H. A., London; Wallace Eiss, Buffalo; W. E. Groves, Hamilton; John H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill; Orlando Ofield, Grimsby; Jas. S. Wilson, Woodstock; Silas McFadden, Geo. M. Geraghty, Walter Muston, Alexander Simpson, Harry James and John Mills, Toronto.

Coöperation the Theme.

The theme of the discussion was the necessity of getting together for the benefit of the trade. A standing vote at the conclusion of the address showed that all were in favor of the idea of coöperation in the disposal of flowers. At the conclusion several growers, including John H. Dunlop, W. W. Gammage, Orlando Ofield and Walter Muston, called for immediate action along the lines outlined by the speakers and a meeting will be called at an early date to take action.

Geo. Asmus pointed out that the florists have built their business on the idea that people love flowers, but have obtained the business in a haphazard way. Many other lines of business have advertised extensively, but florists have not done so to any extent until recently. Of 628 lines of goods shown at Atlantic City recently, all were nationally advertised. The raisin, prune, lemon, orange, walnut and other growers advertise nationally, with good results, said Mr. Asmus, and when the Canadian florists realize that the same good results can be obtained with coöperative advertising of flowers, they will no doubt get together, and he hoped that time would not be long distant.

S. A. F. Shows Way.

The small campaign of the S. A. F. last year showed what could be done if all the growers and retailers united. This campaign was supported on the voluntary plan. This has been criticised, but it got results. These were due to the people's love of flowers, the wonderful slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and the great prosperity of the last two years.

The other speakers appealed to the large gathering along similar lines, and it was decided to make a start in Toronto at an early date.

J. J. H.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

IN increasing the production of flowers, higher quality should be as much in mind as higher quantity.

MOST business men will adjust a complaint couched in polite language. Harsh words are oftener ignored than heeded.

ANY grower who will need pipe this summer will do well to make arrangements now for getting it when he wants it.

AT the rate the trade is buying cyclamen seeds for summer delivery there will be plenty of plants in the season of 1921-2.

IF one cannot build this season, he can buy. Note the For Sale ads in The Review; there are more of them than ever before.

MANY firms which send out catalogues could effect a saving in paper and printing costs by removing duplicated and dead names from their lists.

THE journal of the French Society of Chrysanthemum Growers commences in its February-March issue a list of new varieties introduced during the years 1914 to 1918.

COLLECTIONS never were easier than now; any change must be in the direction of greater difficulty in getting one's money. So why not look after collections now, collect, pay up, clean the slates while the cleaning is good?

PAPER now costs three and a quarter times what it did before the war and to get it in quantity one must not only pay promptly and with apparent cheerfulness, but must wipe his shoes and take off his hat when entering the paper dealer's office.

THE telegraph delivery feature of the retail flower business is growing rapidly, so rapidly, in fact, that some of those who use it give the details less thought than they should. Florists in small towns may be able to make profitable delivery of $2 orders, but in the big cities distances are so great and costs are so high it is impossible to break even if an order is for less than about $5. And by the same token the city florist should not expect his small town confrere to be carrying a stock of everything from American Beauties to gardenias when the telegram comes in.

To make mistakes is only human; to correct them promptly is only just.

THE trade will not need to be warned so strongly this summer to buy coal early after last winter's experiences.

IF the boys on the place are not satisfied, sell it to them; probably they'll pay well for your services after you have had a few weeks' vacation.

A CABINETMAKER'S services are not measured by the value of the wood he uses in one of his pieces, nor should the retail florist's be estimated merely by the flowers he employs.

MEMBERS of the Florists' Hail Association who have not paid the thirty-second assessment no longer are in good standing and are without protection. The spring hail season is near and a word to the wise should be sufficient.

ANY grower of young stock who has the moral courage and the business sagacity to refuse to ship until the stock is thoroughly ready, and who does not promise more than he can perform, will find it easily possible to charge profitable prices.

THE postoffice service, once the pride and reliance of every American business man, has fallen into decay. It no longer is safe to count on the prompt delivery even of first-class mail. Guard against disappointment by allowing an extra day.

To justify in customers' eyes printers' increased prices, a typographical publication cites figures of 1914 and 1920. They show increases in labor, paper and engraving costs all over 100 per cent. Publishing is not a cheap operation today, as catalogue houses have become aware.

THE trade feels in many ways the shortage and high price of all kinds of paper. Retailers feel it in the cost of boxes, of tissue and of kraft; wholesalers feel it in the cost of kraft and of old newspapers, and growers share in the tripled expense of the newspapers used in large quantities for box lining.

A LIST of the best chrysanthemums in French cultivation, prepared by the chrysanthemum section of the National Horticultural Society of France, includes Mrs. Gilbert Drabble as the best white; Mrs. R. C. Pulling, best yellow; Captain Fox, best red; Mrs. James Gibson, best pink; Undaunted, magenta, and Queen Mary, white. All are English varieties.

CONSULAR reports state that window glass production in Belgium has probably been more completely revived than any other important Belgian industry. At present two-thirds of the existing furnaces are in operation, but the average production has been so increased that output has now practically reached the level of July, 1914. It should be remembered, however, that in the period immediately preceding the war there was a slump in the Belgian glass industry; in the early part of 1914, for instance, only about two-thirds of the working force was employed.

NO BACK COPIES.

The need for the conservation of paper prevents printing a greater number of The Review than are called for by orders in hand when printing of each edition begins. It therefore is impossible to start subscriptions with back numbers, or to supply missing numbers when subscribers fail to renew promptly.

TIME FOR STEAMER ORDERS.

"Befo' de wah," but in this case the late war, the number of tourists departing for Europe at this season made the steamer business of florists at ocean ports and the telegraph business incidental to it a quite respectable item. Now, after a lapse of five years, it is returning. The spring rush of trans-Atlantic tourists out of New York, as in the pre-war days, started April 17 with sailings of 5,600 passengers on five liners. The sailings were: American liner Philadelphia for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton; White Star liners Baltic and Cedric for Liverpool, the Anchor liner Columbia for Glasgow and the Italian liner Taormina for Naples and Genoa.

The Philadelphia, Baltic and Cedric take 1,440 cabin and 2,065 third-class passengers; the Columbia, 950, and the Taormina, 1,200.

The steamer Saturdays are here again. Paste up in your store the steamer sailings published in The Review; acquaint the public with the facilities for handling bon voyage gifts of flowers. The time of bountiful steamer orders is here again.

MAKE IT PERMANENT.

The wave of prosperity upon which this country has been riding during the last several years has carried the average retailer out of the almost age-long and perilous habit of extending excessive credit to customers into the safe harbor of short-time credit and cash over the counter. In consequence, today the retailer occupies a financial standing never attained before.

This relatively sound financial position is directly attributable, in part, to three influences:

1. The governmental conservation plans in the war period.
2. The additional earning power of the people—the retailer's customers.
3. The urgings that the retailer put his house in order in the day of opportunity.

If the retailer can maintain the custom of the new order of things and keep down the total carried on his books, he will continue to be in far better financial shape than he ever was. A return to "normal," or to lower prices, however it is achieved, will not find him badly off, if he attends to that phase of his business.

IT CERTAINLY PAYS.

You've often heard it said: "It pays to advertise." But all advertising doesn't pay. If you advertise tomato plants in a coal magazine, it doesn't pay; the right people don't see your ad. But if you advertise what you have to sell where the people see it who want to buy, it works like this:

Kindly discontinue classified ad on tomatoes, as I am booked to the limit from all over the United States. My first order was for 10,000 plants alone and they have been coming in on every mail. It certainly pays to advertise in The Review.—C. W. Paige, Tivoli, N. Y. April 16, 1920.

Please discontinue our classified ads under ferns and begonias, as we are sold up as close as we care to be. We are well pleased with the results from our ad, having had several reorders.—Linwood Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo. April 16, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Cook.

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Cook, the wife of John Cook, internationally known as a producer of some of the best roses known to floriculture, died at her home, Edmondson avenue and Cook's lane, Ten Hills, Baltimore, Md., on the morning of April 14, at the age of 81 years. Mrs. Cook had been ill for over a year, but from time to time had rallied, when new hopes were aroused in the hearts of her family for her ultimate recovery. She passed peacefully away, surrounded by her large family.

The writer made a trip to the home the day before the funeral, and saw in the parlor a mass of the finest funeral offerings he had ever seen. A great many of the offerings were made from flowers grown at the Cook range, by the hands of her children, all of whom are connected with the business.

Mrs. Cook was extremely proud of her husband's success as a rosarian; she was the inspiration which prompted him to delve into the unknown in the rose world. In recent years, since Mr. Cook had, in a measure, relinquished the active management of the business, he and his wife had been much like boy and girl again, always together. In the fall of each year they would go to Florida and spend the severe winter months at play in that balmy climate. Mr. Cook, though five or six years her senior, was still hale and hearty, but naturally misses the companionship of his life partner.

The funeral was held Saturday, April 17, from St. William's church, just opposite the Cook residence, where solemn high mass was offered by the rector, Rev. T. D. Williams.

Besides her husband, she is survived by seven daughters and three sons: Mrs. Chas. Egner, Mrs. Thomas McCormick and Mary, Catherine, Anna, Ida, Belle, John, Joseph and Herman Cook; thirteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. The funeral was largely attended by members of the trade. The pallbearers were John Gerwig, Thomas McCormick, Christopher McCormick, John LaBrau, John Egner and Frank McHugh. Tate.

Richard Jaenicke.

Richard Jaenicke, foreman of the Port Wayne, Ind., city greenhouse, son of the city forester, Adolph Jaenicke, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., was killed in an accident March 29, when an automobile which he was driving crashed into an interurban car. He was 28 years of age.

Mr. Jaenicke was the only occupant of the automobile and witnesses said that he was driving at a moderate rate of speed when he crashed head-on into the interurban car. The automobile was demolished and he was thrown with great force against the car. He was treated with first aid and placed in a police ambulance, but died before a hospital was reached. The coroner, on examining the body, found that death was caused by a compound fracture of the skull and a broken neck. The right leg was also broken just below the hip.

Mr. Jaenicke is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Jaenicke, three sisters and one brother. The funeral services were held March 31, at the residence, 4025 Calhoun street, and at St. Patrick's church. Burial was in Lindenwood cemetery.

Charles Ammann.

Charles Ammann, a veteran florist of New York, died at his residence, Central avenue and Tuckahoe road, Yonkers, N. Y., Saturday evening, April 17, at 80 years of age.

Mr. Ammann established himself in business many years ago, before the days of elevated railroads and with no other transportation facilities than one street car line anywhere near him, on Seventh avenue, in the block between One Hundred and Nineteenth street and One Hundred and Twentieth street. In his time he was one of the best known men in Harlem.

Funeral services were held at his home Wednesday, April 21.

He is survived by one son and one daughter. J. H. P.

William N. Crompton.

William N. Crompton, one of the oldest gardeners in Rhode Island, died at his home in East Greenwich, R. I., Tuesday, April 6, at the age of 75 years.

Mr. Crompton had been a resident of East Greenwich practically all his life and for many years was head gardener for the late Thomas P. L. Goddard. Under Mr. Crompton's supervision the grounds of the Goddard estate became famous throughout New England. He is survived by his widow and several adult children. The funeral was held Friday, April 9, at St. Luke's Episcopal church, East Greenwich, and burial was at Greenwich cemetery. W. H. M.

John H. Winter.

John H. Winter, only son of Herman F. Winter, proprietor of the Winter Floral Co., Charleston, W. Va., died April 11, after a short illness. He was 19 years of age.

Mr. Winter's mother had died only a short time before him. The funeral services were held April 12 and the body was taken to Newcastle, Ind., for burial.

Charles R. Steinbach.

Charles R. Steinbach died at his home on Mechanicsville turnpike, Richmond, Va., March 25, after an illness of several years. He was 49 years of age.

Mr. Steinbach, who had been a resident of Richmond during his entire life, is survived by a widow, three daughters, a sister and a brother, Frank Steinbach, also a member of the trade.

Mrs. Sophie H. Dole.

Mrs. Sophie H. Dole, founder of the Dole Floral Co., Beatrice, Neb., died suddenly at the age of 83 years at her home in that city.

Mrs. Dole, with an investment of $1 for flower pots and 75 cents for seeds and a hotbed sash for a greenhouse, established what is now known as the Dole Floral Co. in 1891.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

Carnations are in plentiful supply at the present time. Although bulbous stock has nearly disappeared from the market, sweet peas, calendulas, roses, violets, snapdragons, etc., are plentiful enough to meet all demands. With the exception of wedding, funeral and table decoration orders, general business is quiet. However, now that the Easter rush is over, this is to be expected. Prices also have dropped and are again normal. Some of the stores, depending on the wholesale market for supplies, had some difficulty in getting shipments on account of the railroad strike.

Bedding stock is coming along in good shape for the spring trade.

Various Notes.

James E. Beach is preparing for the spring trade. Funeral work still holds up.

The Park Gardens & Flower Shop reports that it has been difficult to get roses from out of town, because of the difficulty of transportation.

James Horan & Son furnished flowers for a number of small weddings in the last few weeks. They had a number of large floral designs for the Bishop funeral, among them a huge wreath of tulips.

Robert Hawkins says that business is quiet, but that cut flowers are plentiful and prices much lower than those asked at Easter time. He designed a beautiful casket cover for the Bishop funeral.

John Reck & Son used large quantities of roses, Easter lilies, southern smilax and sweet peas in the home and church decorations for the Lasher-Weed wedding. I. L. B.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been a considerable recovery in business since last report, but the demand has not yet become sufficiently strong to create anything approaching a shortage of cut flowers or to materially advance the prices. There is a big volume of shipping trade and city demand is consuming large quantities of flowers, but there is room for much further improvement. It is the general report, however, that the situation has been growing better day by day and that Saturday, April 17, saw the market more thoroughly cleaned up than at any time since Easter. The present week opened with a good Monday, April 19, and reduced receipts due to cold, dark weather.

The carnation continues to occupy the leading place in the market. Since Easter the quality of the stock has been of a character to make it easy to fill orders and the supply has been so great that it has not been possible to sell out at any price without having recourse to the department stores, something the wholesalers seem determined to stay away from this year. It is said by most growers that their carnation crops now are going down and that the probability is for slightly reduced supplies from this time on. The carnation is the principal item of interest as regards Mothers' day and there is a wide variety of opinion as to what may be expected. Bearing in mind the experience of Easter, most of the wholesalers are disposed to book up a good share of their expected supply at moderate prices, counting on bringing up the average by charging the late comers whatever the traffic will bear.

The supply of roses also is on the down grade. A number of the large growers were cutting the tail end of a crop at Easter and they will not cut another before Mothers' day. Those who were in full crop for Easter are now cutting less heavily, though the reduction in supply has not been enough to create anything that looks like a shortage. The weather has been highly unfavorable, both for supply and demand, but the quality of roses has held up surprisingly well. The demand is principally for Russell, Premier and Columbia and growers apparently are cutting down on the others to increase their plantings of the three leaders, particularly of Premier and Columbia. Many houses already are replanted, which has been a factor in reducing the supply.

Next to carnations and roses, the sweet pea stands as a leading item. The supply never has been so large as this season, nor have peas ever been so popular with the public. They are selling well, but would sell much better with nice spring weather to let the ladies one or two special kinds of work being done and it is almost useless to cut the price on them; no price is low enough to effect a clearance. Bulbous stock is on the wane. There are still some fine Darwin tulips from indoors, but most of the bulbous flowers now are narcissi from the south. Nearly everyone wishes they would not come to this market, even the retailers saying they are a detriment to the business under ordinary spring conditions.

There are moderate supplies of cat-tleyas, valley, freesias, snapdragons, callas, stocks, calendulas, poppies and other miscellaneous items. Asparagus is more plentiful, but adiantum is scarce.

While conditions have been bad and are not yet good, anyone who compares the business this month with business in the spring glut last year will find it was much worse then. We have progressed.

Growers Meet.

The Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago met at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, April 15, with President Joseph Kohout in the chair and an attendance clearly affected by the bad weather.

An interesting talk was given by Gordon B. Fisher on "Artificial Ventilation and Its Possible Application to Greenhouses." To illustrate the complexities of the whole question of ventilation, he told of various problems which the Ilg Electric Ventilating Co., of which he is Chicago sales manager, has been called upon to solve, in connection with the warming and cooling, the drying and humidifying, of the air in factories to suit particular industrial requirements. He then suggested that a system of ventilation which would keep the temperature, the humidity and the supply of fresh air under strict control, without letting valuable warm air out through the ventilators at the top of the greenhouses, should save coal and might easily be the means of increasing production. The whole matter, he said, was in its first stage and it would be impossible to make definite assertions until actual tests had been made by the installation of a ventilating system in a suitable greenhouse. The sentiment of the meeting seemed to be that such tests would be worth making. The exhibit of the evening consisted of several pots of double cinerarias raised by Frank A. Volz, of Cincinnati, O. These were in violet, blue, lavender and various shades of red. They were sturdy in growth and highly decorative in appearance. Peter Pearson, when called upon by President Kohout for his opinion on the exhibit, said that the plants seemed to be of good habit and, because of the season at which they came, should fill a distinct demand.

A discussion, participated in chiefly by Otto Amling, Peter Pearson and N. J. Wietor, of prices and of ways of educating the public to a wider and stronger demand for flowers, was of interest and value to all present. The desirability of large sales at a comparatively small profit per flower rather than small sales at a large profit per flower and the need of stressing in the public mind the value of flowers for their own sake rather than as "accessory to the accessories" are two points which received emphasis.

The Carnation Sale.

Last week's carnation sale failed to realize high expectations. It was agreed that all the members of the Allied Florists' Association would coöperate in pushing carnations, the wholesale price to be $3 per hundred and the retail price 75 cents per dozen. Some large and attractive advertisements were published in the daily papers. The meeting at which the matter was arranged was lightly attended and only a small number of the retailers coöperated. These reported only small sales, some of them alleging that other florists in the neighborhood were holding independent sales at a lower price. Others said that the sales days the first part of the week were ill-advised, their experience having been that successful sales are held only at the end of the week. At any rate, the demand did not suffice to clean the market or hold the price. It seems, however, that the effort was a commendable one and that it will pay the trade to work along these lines until it is found just what can and what cannot be done.

The directors of the Allied Florists' Association felt that the carnation sale had done enough to warrant a further attempt with a rose sale this week. An extremely attractive advertisement is running in the newspapers, telling of a rose sale to last all this week in all Chicago retail stores at $1.50, $3, $5 and $7 per dozen. "Chicago, the largest flower-producing center in the world, offers an opportunity to everybody to have elegant roses this week. You may have the choicest—the very finest," says the advertisement. Also, "Note—This sale is for the purpose of multiplying the use of flowers—that everyone may know the incomparable joy, happiness and cheer that flowers always bring." It is good work.

Various Notes.

Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, are trying a new plan this season, having bought the entire stock of one of E. G. Hill's new roses. It has been christened Victor and is in color most resembling Premier, but the differences are sufficiently pronounced to make it quite distinct. One house was filled with plants of the earliest delivery and a second house soon will be full. The first cut is being made from the early benches. The idea, of course, is to provide an exclusive novelty, one which can not be obtained elsewhere than of the wholesale house handling the Wendland & Keimel output.

The funeral of Roger C. Sullivan, April 17, created a call for flowers which would have made a squeeze with the market less well supplied. There were hundreds of large designs and the number of telegraph delivery orders was greater than for any similar event in the history of the trade in Chicago. Arthur Weatherwax, of W. J. Smyth's, was called to the Sullivan residence the morning after the demise to advise in the matter of the floral arrangements.

August F. Poehlmann and Mrs. Poehlmann celebrated their silver wedding April 18.

How necessary the automobile has become in the affairs of the busy florist is illustrated by the action of W. J. Smyth, who last week bought a used Buick touring car with the intention of running it only while his big Pierce-Arrow is in the shop for overhauling and repainting.

J. L. Raske, who for many years has been located on Jackson boulevard, between La Salle street and Fifth avenue, is looking for a location where the opportunities for transient trade are better. At present his business is almost wholly of the regular-customer, charge-account class.

Perhaps changing the name from West Twelfth street to Roosevelt road had nothing to do with it, but since the thoroughfare was improved Joseph Sikuta's store has had a steadily increasing business. Mr. Sikuta formerly ran four stores, but has abandoned the chain idea. He has concentrated his in-

Eric Johnson has word from the Gould Nursery that the peony crop at that concern's southern establishment, Halls, Tenn., will be about 12,000 dozens, or nearly twice what was cut last year. It is expected that this crop will be in for Mothers' day.

Danford J. Abrams, of the Lombard Floral Co., was at Richmond, Ind., April 20 for a look at the E. G. Hill and other establishments there.

"Look at these; they are the best in the market," said Robert Northan, and they certainly were beautiful examples of what medium-stemmed Russell is when grown cool. The color was exquisite.

Edward Schultz, of the E. C. Amling Co., has been south to see the peony shippers in the Evansville district. He sees the prospect of an unusually fine crop, larger than last year and the first important cut about Mothers' day.

A. Henderson has been on the sick list since April 13. It is thought he may require a minor operation on his nose.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. expect to be located in their new store, room 218 in the Atlas block, directly across the street from the present location, by April 30.

A. F. Longren, who is in town this week, says one of the delights of life on the road is waiting two or three days to get a hotel sample room in which to display one's line.

George Ball is driving his new Moline Six and is more than pleased with it. Frank Schramm, who ordered one of the same kind, has not yet received delivery, but is not anxious about it as long as the weather stays so bad.

pea will afford the retailers their best chance to boom their business during the next few weeks.

"It looks as though the whole trade has gone 'nuts' on California," said one of the local wholesalers; "practically every grower in the neighborhood would sell out if he could and go west." Unquestionably the operation of green-houses at this center now presents enough difficulties so that a good many growers wish they had their money out.

One cannot be a florist on a farm in Idaho, but C. A. Samuelson is sticking as close as possible to his life work by growing seeds. Last season he did especially well with a crop of alfalfa seeds, sold to the Albert Dickinson Co., and this year the entire 200-acre farm, except for some forage crops needed on the place, is in alfalfa, clover and peas for seeds.

ness as unusually brisk for the fortnight after Easter.

Fred Burki and his son were here last week on their way to Pittsburgh from their new home in California, where they have spent the winter. Mr. Burki, senior, soon will return to the coast, but it is probable the young man will take up an active connection with the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

H. O. Bock, of Burlington, Ia., spent several days here last week, combining business and pleasure. He reports trade active in Iowa and his purchases indicated confidence in the permanence of the condition.

Miss L. Lambly, of the American Flower Store, Birmingham, Ala., spent several days in this market last week. Largest of her numerous purchases was a new Rando display refrigerator.

Among the week's visitors is W. Cleveland Johnson, secretary and treasurer of Johnson's Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Johnson is a rather frequent visitor, but this time his errand is of unusual importance. He has secured the lease of a 3-story building almost double the width of the present store and located only a few doors away. He plans to fit the new quarters up in first-class style during the summer and to be ready by autumn with one of the most completely equipped and most thoroughly modern retail flower stores in the south.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market has been seriously handicapped during the last week by the switchmen's strike, but, fortunately, the express service resumed its regular activities at the end of the week and the termination of the trouble appears to be in sight. Many out-of-town growers, living at a distance of twenty to thirty miles, were obliged to deliver their stock by automobile and this, combined with the weather, made things bad.

Business throughout this section has been poor for at least a week. Since the heavy rush at Easter trade has not been good and, were it not for funeral work, stock would not have moved as it did. A good supply of stock has arrived daily from the local growers, all of which has moved satisfactorily.

Roses have possibly stood in first place and include Columbia, Dunlop, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Ward, Sunburst, Martinet and Killarney. Bulbous stock, which had a remarkable season and has sold at good prices, is slowing up a little now and does not move so readily. There is a large supply of Easter lilies on the market, with only a medium demand. Callas are also plentiful. Sweet peas are in fair demand and the supply is large. Carnations are plentiful and sell well. They are exceptionally fine this season and retain their good qualities. Violets are not so good, nor is the demand large. Orchids and gardenias move slowly. Daisies, mignonette, calendulas, freesias, pansies and forget-me-nots are all in good demand and sell well. Green goods are more plentiful.

Various Notes.

Julius Berg, of Lion & Co., New York, and S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y., were visitors last week.

The carnation house of Harry Merritt, Summerville boulevard, is well filled with flowers and during the months of February, March and April has been a paying proposition. His cuts during Easter week were enormous, considering the size of the house. There will be several thousand more blooms before the plants are taken out and planted in the field.

George B. Hart is cutting a fine crop of Ophelia roses at the Fairport greenhouses each day. They have excellent color and sell well. He has a fine crop of hydrangeas coming into bloom, as well as several thousand Easter lilies, which unfortunately missed the holiday. The window of the store of Salter Bros. has, during the last two weeks, been greatly admired, having had as an attraction a large limb of a cherry tree in full bloom. Combined with vases of tulips, hyacinths and jonquils, its springtime effect was encouraging.

A. Rayton, Irondequoit, N. Y., has grown some excellent sweet peas and freesias this year, which have netted him good returns. His retail business has been good and considerably in advance of its size in previous seasons. Several fair-sized church and home weddings have taken place during the week and for the decorations a great many lilies have been used. This, fortunately, has reduced the stock of several florists. Valley is fast coming back into prominence and much of it is being used.

Now that Easter is over, Mothers' day is being planned. According to local reports, there will be plenty of good stock on hand from which to draw and it will include a good supply of carnations.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The "outlaw" strike on the railroads paralyzed business during the entire week, April 12 to April 17. Flowers reached the city regularly. Getting them out of the city to their various destinations was extremely difficult. The transportation companies accepted perishable stock only at shipper's risk, without receipting for them. Often they would not accept them at all. The parcel post furnished some relief, but there were at times delays that were always exasperating and sometimes ruinous. The wholesalers met the trying conditions manfully, exerting every endeavor to market the stock entrusted to their care. The fact that the florists' supply houses were unable to move their orders was no consolation. They greased the express machinery diligently with moderate success. The greatest difficulty, the difficulty that was hardest to overcome, was that the out-of-town trade knew that there was a big railroad strike going on and would not take a chance by ordering flowers that might not come in time. It was better, the buyers thought, to refuse orders altogether than to risk injury to reputation through failure to fill orders on time.

Under existing conditions the wholesalers may well be proud that the market was not even worse. Each met the matter in his own way. Their combined efforts kept the market from going all to pieces, although a rainy Saturday was a discouraging close to a disastrous week. Sweet peas and snapdragons suffered most of all, because they were in heavy supply. Prices tumbled down, down, with recovery only on choice stock in moderate quantities. There were annoying losses in transit due to delays and there was waste of unsold stock. Greens were in demand.

The outlook for this week is more promising. There is some business in sight. There is also strong probability that the strike will end this week. Then the express service will gradually be resumed on perishable and on non-perishable stock.

A Removal.

This week Berger Bros. have removed their wholesale cut flower business from 1225 Race street to 1609 Sansom street, where they opened for business bright and early Monday morning, April 19. The firm of Berger Bros. was originally formed by Harry Berger and John Berger two years ago. Harry Berger withdrew to carry on the retail florists' business of William Berger's Sons. Since that time the business of Berger Bros. has been conducted by John Berger with marked success. John Berger is also managing partner of the Berger Fertilizer & Chemical Co., whose headquarters are also at 1609 Sansom

A Controversy.

There is a lively exchange of views going on in the daily press between James Grenshaw Scott and David Rust on the subject of the policy of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, past, present and future. Mr. Scott believes that the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society had no business to sell the property on which its house stood, that it cannot legally have a garden in Fairmount park, that it ought not to be allowed to lease and charge admission to Horticultural hall, in Fairmount park, and that it should have a home of its own in the center of the city. Mr. Rust defends the policy of

Various Notes.

Joseph G. Neidinger sailed for Europe on the steamer Mongolia from New York April 10. J. F. Neidinger went over with his brother to see him off. It is curious that the same steamer should have carried two such noted supply chiefs as Sydney H. Bayersdorfer and Joseph G. Neidinger, each going unknown to the other until they met on board.

Robert Craig writes from Porto Rico to Mrs. Craig in this city that the rush of tourists anxious to return home has caused an advance in steamer rates.

At the last lecture of the season at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Tuesday, April 13, Prof. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, spoke on gladioli. He gave a clear history of these bulbous plants, giving an account of the work done in hybridizing, naming the principal growers and the results that they had obtained. His talk was illustrated by slides. The exhibits staged at this meeting were of the usual high quality. Exhibitors winning prizes were William Comfort, Rosemont; Thomas Roberts, Philadelphia; Alexander MacLeod, Villa Nova; David Aiken, Rosemont; Axel Lindroth, Bryn Mawr; Frank Coll, Haverford; O. A. Muller, Ambler, and M. J. Flynn, St. Davids.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business was fair last week. While prices seem low when compared with what was secured during the winter, they are well ahead of former years at this season and there is no ground for discouragement. In addition to funeral work, there have been a good number of weddings, which have helped to use up the flowers arriving. April so far has been cool and cloudy days are more numerous than sunny ones. This reduces supplies, but keeps them of excellent quality.

Roses are somewhat lower and short-stemmed flowers have touched $10 per thousand in some cases. Quotations with select Columbia, Premier, Russell and Ophelia making up to $20 and $25. Some excellent Kaiserin made its appearance this week. Carnations have relapsed somewhat, white ones being particularly overplentiful. Matchless is now in heavy crop with everyone and supplies exceed the demand. Easter lilies are coming in far faster than they can be sold and prices are low, many going as low as $3 to $4 per hundred, due to large numbers failing to flower for Easter. Snapdragons are of exceptional quality, but are the hardest flowers to move in the market.

Sweet peas are in good demand and their quality is fine. Yellow marguerites are lower; so are bachelor's buttons. Narcissi hold up in price to $5 and $6 per hundred and supplies are not large. Darwin tulips are fine and entirely outclass the shorter-stemmed early varieties. Callas, with other white flowers, are lower. Cattleyas are shortening up and select flowers bring $9 to $12 per dozen. There is a good supply of valley and an equal demand for it. Flowering plants are coming in better than a week ago.

Florists' Association Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Boston

Florists' Association was held at the City Club April 13, with President Henry Penn in the chair. About fifty members were present and five new applications were read and accepted. This was to have been salesmen's night in the round-table series of discussions, but only William A. Hastings and Arthur W. Carr spoke for this branch of the cut flower industry, others being absent or considering silence the better part of valor.

Professor DeChant, who made a short address at the March meeting, spoke at greater length on "Coöperation" and his numerous pithy, pertinent points were well driven home and warmly appreciated by those present. The vases of roses adorning the tables, from Penn's and the Houghton-Gorney Co., were presented to the lecturer as a small token of esteem.

S. A. Dawson, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., one of the guests, also made some remarks on coöperation and thought that it was much needed among Boston florists. A general discussion on publicity for flowers for Mothers' day came up and a committee was appointed to solicit contributions from growers and others for this purpose.

At the May meeting W. H. McMasters will speak on "The Wit and Humor of Flowers." It was voted to hold a picnic, to which ladies would be invited, June 26. The place selected will be announced later.

Various Notes.

At Penn's one of the large show windows this week is devoted to a display of Darwin Tulip William Pitt, grown by the W. W. Edgar Co. Another window advertises Cedar Acres gladioli with a mammoth vase of handsome gandavensis hybrids in the center. In addition to funeral work, a large number of good wedding orders are now coming in. Henry Penn is captain of one of the teams selected by the Boston Chamber of Commerce to canvass for funds for the big, new building which the chamber will soon erect, to cost several million dollars.

The William H. Elliott Co. is receiving some handsome Kaiserin roses from its Brighton greenhouses. From Madbury, N. H., are coming specially fine

Wax Bros. note an increase in business since moving to their new store at 44 Temple Place, which is roomy and well equipped. For a funeral in Milton last week they had a handsome casket cover of 1,000 Hadley roses and Farley-ense ferns. For another funeral, in Sharon, they made one of freesias, white roses and smilax, in addition to several other large designs. For the funeral of a prominent box manufacturer they had two large, square boxes of flowers, which were quite distinctive. April 17 they had a large wedding order in Ipswich and several more are booked for the present week.

Gordon Fisher, of Woburn, sends in large shipments of gladioli weekly, including some of the best hybrids. These were from bulbs which had been left over and had not been retarded. He

In spite of the scarcity and abnormally high cost of labor, landscape garden architects are exceptionally busy this season and have many large contracts. The freight embargoes have seriously delayed the arrival of nursery stock from New York, Connecticut and New Jersey and are greatly inconveniencing planters.

The Massachusetts department of agriculture has started sending out daily market reports to farmers and market gardeners sending produce into the Boston markets. The Boston Market Gardeners' Association is cooperating with the department in this work. The arrivals and prices of all locally grown fruits and vegetables are given, also shipments of fruits, potatoes, eggs, etc., sent in from other states. Prices of live stock and meats are also included once a week. In the report for April 15 arrivals of lettuce are given as 33,222 bushels at an average of $2.50 per bushel, showing how important an industry lettuce growing under glass is near Boston. If it were possible to tabulate cut flower arrivals in some such way it would surely be of great value to growers. The cost for daily market reports is $3 per year.

Miss Carrie E. Ball, of Southboro, is sending in extra fine lots of antirrhinums. She grows Phelps' White, Nelrose and Virginia. The latter is a lovely rich, clear pink variety and proves the best seller.

Extensive damage by field mice is reported from all local nurseries. Rhododendrons, retinisporsas, junipers and other evergreens have been destroyed in great numbers. W. N. O.

Continued cool weather is holding business back to some extent, but there is a fair demand that keeps stock cleaned up each week. Lack of sunshine has shortened the sweet pea crop and several lines of bulbous stock are over for the season. Carnations are the most plentiful flower on the market. Frank Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo., was a visitor last week.

No great inconvenience was caused by the switchmen's strike. Only for two days were express shipments refused. The rest of the time boxes marked for funerals were received and went through as usual. Friday, April 16, the embargo was lifted and all shipments went out.

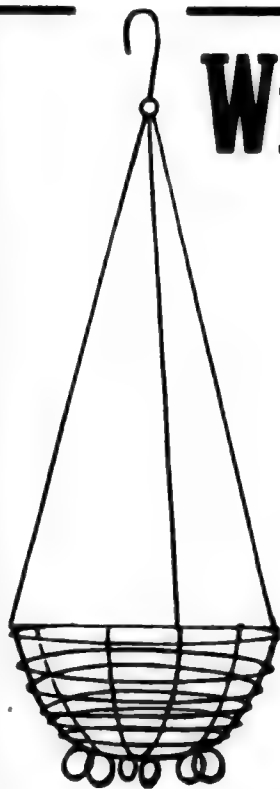

T. J. Noll & Co. sent a truck load of supplies, in various-sized packages, to out-of-town customers the day the express embargo was lifted.

James D. Ragan will plant 20,000 carnations within the next ten or fifteen days. He had his field all ready to begin planting several days ago, but because the ground was soft from heavy rains he had to delay planting.

Carnation planting is being done at different times in different localities here, owing to the rainfall. Last Thursday night, April 15, there was a heavy rain and fall of hail in the eastern part of the city and around Independence, Mo., while in the southwestern part of the city not enough rain fell to settle the dust.

A. F. Barbe had his field ready for planting carnations and expected to begin work last Friday, April 16, but he will not be able to do anything for several days. He expects to put in 10,000 plants.

William Foith began planting Saturday, April 17, as he is in the dry section. He is putting in 15,000 carnations, besides sweet peas, snapdragons and gladioli.

The Market.

The conservative opinion is that, considering the post-Easter season and the unsettled conditions in general, trade matters are as satisfactory as could be expected. The railroad strike is, of course, having its effect on the trade in general. Prices continue about the same as last week.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams had the floral contributions at both the home and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial hall for the funeral of Dr. J. A. Brashear. Notable among the many elaborate pieces designed in Mrs. Williams' establishment was one for the American Engineers' Society, composed of white roses, Easter lilies and lilies of the valley. There was also a magnificent wreath of bronze magnolia leaves and cattleya orchids, designed by Manager Harvey Sheaff.

Spiro Kaps is reported as being in a favorable condition, following an operation in the Mayo hospital, Rochester, Minn.

Joseph Fineberg, who was operated upon at the Passavant hospital last week, is convalescing nicely.

Andrew Drzewiecki and Stanislaw Puwalowski recently bought the flower shop and equipment of the late Samuel Cape, 4019 Butler street, Lawrenceville. The greenhouses at Woodville are still in the hands of the estate. The stock, however, has been purchased by Gustav Snyder, who has gone into the wholesale business at Bridgeville.

Mrs. John M. Foss, Sharpsburg, reported satisfactory business for the season. Following the Easter rush Mrs. Foss was ill, but is again able to supervise the work.

SAHLI'S SALMON-PINK SPORT.

Like a child that is enthusiastically admired before there has been time to christen it, the carnation shown in the accompanying illustration has already met a ready sale, although it has not yet been named. The photograph could not indicate its deep salmon-pink color, but shows the general gracefulness and length of stem. It is a sport from Enchantress Supreme and was raised by J. A. Sahli, of Kent, Wash. The blooms, he says, measure three and one-half to four inches in diameter.

Blooms of this carnation were first offered to the public at the Woodlawn Flower Shop, Seattle, Wash., where they sold readily, as they have since done in other Seattle shops.

Mr. Sahli has 4,000 young plants of this carnation in 2½-inch pots and about 3,000 in sand. He has not room enough to propagate it more extensively and, in addition, expects soon to move from his present location.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Strike conditions ruined the shipping business last week and at the end of the week wholesalers had no relief in sight. Stock piled up and was thrown away daily, while what little was shipped was taken only subject to delay and the territory for which pick-ups were made became daily more circumscribed. This is the second time within a year that Los Angeles wholesalers have found themselves with stock grown or contracted for, all overhead expenses going on and nothing selling.

Retailers are in a better condition, as the stock thrown on the market can be picked up for almost nothing and can always be used for funeral and other work.

Club Meeting.

The special meeting of the Los Angeles Florists' Club April 15 was one of the most successful and best attended in the history of the organization. It had been felt that the society was not broad enough in its scope and it was decided to approach the nurserymen and seedsmen with a view to getting their coöperation. The result has been most gratifying to everyone concerned.

Since President Walter Armacost was out of the city, the chair was taken by Roy F. Wilcox, the vice-president, and the following sat down to an excellent dinner: A. Goldenson, J. Maynard, F. R. Hills, J. Gibbs, of the Winsel Gibbs Seed Co.; F. Sperry, F. Liechtenberg, C. Gutting, D. Stathatos, F. Warner, R. Overstreet, A. Knopf; A. Reichart, of the Morris & Snow Seed Co.; Howard E. & Plant Co.; F. Howard, E. B. Washburn, J. Polder, H. Reeve Darling, and Mr. Wilkins, of the Los Angeles Ad Club, the speaker of the evening.

The subject of the evening was "Publicity" and this was well taken care of in a short and pithy speech by Mr. Wilkins, followed by a general discussion. Roy Wilcox and E. B. Washburn called attention to the fact that the matter of appropriations was one of the first points to be considered and in a short time it was evident, from the sums promised by several members, that if the rest helped along in the same proportion, or near it, there would be no trouble in raising sufficient money to take care of an effective campaign. H. Reeve Darling, who has had considerable experience along the line of florists' advertising, made suggestions as to how this could be arranged in local papers, while F. H. Howard was in favor of a broader scope, taking in both the seed and the nursery business. M. L. Germain proved by figures that the large appropriation spent by his firm for advertising had not proved a drain on resources, but had actually, with the increased sales, effected a saving of about five per cent in overhead expenses. There was considerable discussion anent the value of specific rather than cumulative advertisements and many interesting points were brought out by F. H. Howard, Howard E. Gates and others. Eventually the publicity committee, enlarged by the addition of M. L. Germain and E. H. Rust, was instructed to formulate a plan and present it to a full meeting of the society April 23.

Practically all the visitors were enrolled as new members and adjournment was called at 10:15 p. m.

Various Notes.

Owing to a new city ordinance, the parking of automobiles for even a few minutes in the downtown streets is prohibited and several of the principal retailers say that their business has been hurt by this. The traffic conditions were so bad that something had to be done; whether the order is too drastic or not remains to be seen. Florists just outside of the prohibited district will possibly be benefited, while the outlying sections will be put on a new basis entirely. If it is for the greatest good of the greatest number, those who suffer temporarily will have to put the best face they can on the matter, but, with the present high rents, the grievance will be a real one without a doubt.

Owing to difficulty in obtaining material, the plans of the Amling Co. may

The Market.

Heavy receipts of stock in the local market have threatened an oversupply for several days, but a decided break has been forestalled by the active demand here. With the resumption of eastern shipments, the peak of uncertainty seems past. Roses and violets probably suffered the most during the period when shipments were cut off on account of the railroad strike, due to the fact that the former are in strong competition locally at this time of the year with tulips, lilacs, iris and other seasonable flowers and the latter always have a heavy movement to eastern points. As would be expected, prices on roses have weakened a little, but not much, their fine quality no doubt helping them to maintain their position remarkably well under the circumstances. There is an especially fine cut of Russell, Ophelia and Beauty, while the other varieties also show good quality. Cecile Brunner is plentiful and good. With the rain last week, violets will probably continue plentiful and good for some time yet.

On the whole, stock is excellent here. Tulips are arriving in large quantities and never before were finer blooms offered in this market. Spanish iris is offered in fair supply also and snapdragons arrive freely, a large proportion of the spikes ranking as select stock. Lilacs are at the height of their season. Ranunculuses and anemones continue plentiful and are in good demand. Carnations are a little uncertain, but there are plenty of first-class blooms to meet requirements. There is a fine cut of long-stemmed Laddie carnations and this variety is especially popular just now.

The supply of orchids is about all the market will stand and gardenias are a little off crop. Potted plants make a splendid showing, including Easter lilies, rhododendrons, cinerarias and hydrangeas. Their sale has held up unusually well since Easter.

set out and the indications are for a large acreage this year, some of the growers estimating a twenty-five per cent increase over last year. It is pointed out that more chrysanthemums could have been shipped east last fall had there been ample stock to fill orders, so the acreage is being extended this season. The same applies to asters. The plants are being set out now and a larger acreage is reported than was grown last year.

MacRorie's father died in East Orange, N. J., just as he was getting ready to go east to see him. Walter Hoff buried his mother and George Duffy, manager of the stand in the Palace hotel, lost his father.

Los Angeles, Cal.

William Elliott, of William Elliott & Sons, Boston, has been visiting in the San Francisco district the last week, while on an extended western trip.

Julius Eppstein, located in the St. Francis hotel, reports business all that can be desired this spring. He enjoyed a fine Easter rush and has been busy since with table decorations, corsage work and other demands for flowers. He has been driving down to the flower market in a new 7-passenger Marmon car.

W. E. Kennedy, proprietor of an attractive florists' establishment at Sixteenth and Valencia streets, reports business good in the mission district, sales so far this year having shown a nice increase over the same period of 1919.

William Crammatte, who conducts a combined florists' and candy business in Aberdeen, Wash., was a recent visitor to the local trade en route to New York. He reported conditions favorable in the northwest.

Walter Armacost, of Walter Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, Cal., called on some of the local florists during the last week.

J. A. Axell reports business holding up well since Easter. He is getting a fine cut of roses from Ferrari Bros. and has a particularly nice showing of Laddie carnations from the Peterson place, across the bay. The railroad strike, he says, has interfered with shipments to a considerable extent, but orders are now being handled without delay to all points this side of Denver, which furnishes an outlet for enough California stock to keep the supply from getting burdensome here.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports roses in a weakened position on account of the heavy influx of tulips, lilacs and other spring flowers. However, he says that roses continue to clean up well from day to day, especially well considering that eastern shipments have been largely cut off by the railroad strike. The cut of Russell and Beauty is particularly heavy and the blooms of both these varieties show fine quality.

Enomoto & Co. regret the railroad strike more on account of the interference with violet shipments than for any other reason. They have a large number of standing orders for violets from eastern points, which they have been unable to fill in the last week or two. This is particularly annoying to them in view of the fact that the quality of the violets still on the market is unusually good for this late in the season.

Domoto Bros. have resumed shipping to a considerable extent and report business fairly active. They have an especially fine showing of potted rhododendrons and Easter lilies, both potted and cut from their own nursery. They figure that their supply of Easter lilies will last until about September.

The United Flower & Supply Co. says the railroad strike has hurt business to a considerable extent, but that shipments are going forward again now without much prospect of further delay.

Avansino Bros. are getting well settled in their new store on Geary street, facing Union Square, and find business inclined to increase in the new location.

A. O. Stein made the pall for the funeral of I. W. Hellman, a prominent San Francisco financier, and had charge of the floral arrangement at the home. Orchids were used for the pall. Some of the other florists had considerable work for this funeral also.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., left a few days ago for San Diego, Cal., and other southern points. Business is reported holding up well for this time of

The market now is normal, with possibly a little shortage in some lines, owing to the wet and cold weather for the last two weeks.

There are large quantities of carnations arriving on the market and they are of good quality. There are also plenty of sweet peas, but they are not so good, having short stems and flowers. Violets are plentiful, but not much in demand. Narcissi and daffodils, of which there are many thousands grown by amateurs, are selling in candy, cigar

A. Seamon, on the Pacific highway, is cutting some fine carnations and sweet peas.

Henry Benthien, at Gardenville, is a busy man these days, both in the greenhouses and in the nursery. He is expecting a large shipment of evergreens from the east and has many orders booked for out-of-town shipments.

George Seaverns, of Olympia, Wash., who is in charge of the capitol grounds and the governor's mansion, was in Tacoma calling on the trade last week.

The Smith Floral Co. reports that the seed trade, a new line at the store, is satisfactory and that business both in cut flowers and plants is good.

While sales were naturally less than the week previous, business during the seven days following Easter was larger than the trade expected and a number had not enough potted stock on hand to fill the orders they received. Cut flowers have also been selling better with the resumption of the social season.

The local cut of roses has been good of late, especially so in the case of Ophelia and Columbia, and one of the growers is sending in some fine Premier. Some of the late shipments of violets were of so poor keeping quality as to make the buyers wish they had not arrived. The local violets are not so fragrant as those shipped in, but they stand up better and are being used in baskets and corsage work. The stems of carnations have been much better and, in most cases, there has been an improvement in color as well.

Blooming pansy plants were the novelty of the week, but the boxes offered by the Japanese growers showed only about half of the plants flowered, and florists were wary about taking much stock. Potted tulips of the brighter hues have been big sellers and those having hydrangeas which stood up well reported no difficulty in selling them.

Sweet peas in the orchid shades were offered by one of the growers here during the week and these were of such quality as to rank with anything shown this season.

tions. Several of the local firms, which have made a specialty of this business, state that it has paid handsomely.

Potted hydrangeas were offered by Rosaia Bros. during last week and there was such a good sale that more stock could have been sold easily.

A falling wall of the Lincoln hotel, which was destroyed by fire last week, did several hundred dollars' worth of damage to the store of Felix Rosaia and prevented the shop from opening for one day after the fire. However, the stock carried through in good shape.

McCoy's has taken possession of the new store on Second avenue and within another week expects all of the finishing work to be completed. One of the finest refrigerators in the whole northwest has been installed here and the other fittings are to be in keeping with it. Good show windows are provided for and the manager, Fred H. Rowe, expects to see a steady increase in business.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, reports an increase in general business, especially in social decorations and in corsage work for the various clubs. The sales of potted plants have held up well for the period following Easter.

Max Smith, of the Rotary Florists, Portland, Ore., was a visitor last week, while William Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, spent the week-end in British Columbia, combining business and pleasure.

Miss Wharton, with the Hollywood Gardens, is in Portland, Ore., on a brief vacation. H. M.

The business purchased by Rosaia Bros. which has been referred to in these columns as the Woodland Park Floral Co. is correctly called the Orpheum Floral Co., in which S. Poolman, president of the Woodland Park Floral Co., was interested. The Woodland Park Floral Co. is still doing business at Sumner under the same management as in the last fifteen years.

ALL ABOUT BUSINESS.

George Betz, whose card describes him as "Portland's Pioneer Florist," in the Oregon city, prints on the back of that card a little talk that contains much matter for thought. He says:

IT IS BUSINESS.

The man of business is strictly business, understands business, talks business and is full of business. He minds his own business; he does not meddle in other people's business. To worry others with your business is not business. If you let others know your business you will soon be out of business. To get you into trouble is the lawyer's business. To tell others what to do but not do it himself, is the preacher's business. To not let others do, yet do it himself, is the policeman's business. To ask a stranger for the loan of a dollar is not business; to make that loan is poor business. We write this card as strictly business. We present this card as a matter of business. Save this card, as it is full of business.

Call and see us and we'll do business.

The wintry weather has suddenly turned into spring and, with beautiful sunny days, the local cut of flowers has been much heavier than usual. Hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and carnations have been heavy in cut and, consequently, the price has come down a little. Roses were good last week, with a good supply in all grades. Yellow and white marguerites sell well, as also do freesias. Potted plants sell well now. Daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, rambler roses, primulas and begonias are now in season.

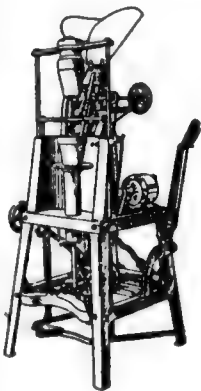

With the arrival of spring weather, the seed trade is moving rapidly, as many people are making gardens this year with the hope of beating the h. c. l.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Michigan to the Front.

A second time within a week or two we are pleased to note the progressiveness of Michigan florists. Albert G. Boehringer, treasurer of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, writes: "The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, by a resolution, instructs me to write a check for $25 and mail it to you as our subscription to the national publicity campaign for this year."

There are many other trade organizations in the country which could follow the example set by the two Michigan bodies.

Slogan Billboards.

It is a splendid time now to install one of the "Say It with Flowers" billboards. Many a florist's establishment furnishes an ideal location for a board and it might also serve to hide an unsightly shed or outbuilding. These billboards are attractive, painted in the official colors and serve their purpose admirably. They are supplied at actual quantity cost, $50 each delivered, and are worth this amount for the material in them. A large number of these boards are now complete and ready for immediate shipment. The Cleveland Florists' Club recently ordered twenty billboards and they were shipped on the day the order was received. Many other clubs could use a similar quantity. It would be a great thing for our campaign if 500 of these signs, distributed throughout the country, were flashing to a million or more people daily our message, "Say It with Flowers."

Administration Offices Moved.

Owing to lack of sufficient space for the requirements of our administration offices, the society has taken larger quarters in the old Siegel-Cooper build-

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WASHINGTON CLOSES SUNDAY.

By agreement, most of the florists in Washington, D. C., closed their stores all day Sunday, April 11. The petition was prepared and signed by the following members:

Geo. H. Cooke	Marche & Co.
Dupont Flower Shop	Leo Niessen Co.
Gude Bros. Co.	O. A. C. Oehmler
Stanley H. Holland	S. S. Pennock Co.
Louis E. Hoover	J. H. Small & Sons
F. F. Leapley	Washington Floral Co.
Louise Flower Shop	Z. D. Blackstone

An advertisement of this fact was placed in the leading papers Friday, April 9, and Saturday, April 10. In honor of the event the florists participating in the movement decided to hold a special service. An invitation was extended to them by F. W. Bolgiano, ex-president of the American Seed Trade Association, to hold this important meeting in his church, namely, the Foundry Methodist Church. The church is located on fashionable Sixteenth street. The florists made a beautiful decoration for the occasion and the pastor, at an appropriate time, paid suitable and eloquent tribute to the movement, which, as he said, the florists took up voluntarily, instead of waiting until they were forced to do so by law. A good number of the leading members of the trade and their employees attended the services and were unanimous in declaring it one of the most satisfactory Sunday mornings they had spent for many a year.

"Sunday closing," says Z. D. Blackstone, "is morally and legally right and in the end those who stick by it will win. It is the earnest belief and hope that all members of the craft, not only in Washington but throughout the country, will learn to look upon this subject in the same manner, for we believe the standing of the florists' business throughout the country will be thereby put upon a much higher basis."

WHY THE PINK PART GROWS.

The growth of the Pink Part of The Review has been one of the notable features of recent trade affairs—the colored section has developed so rapidly that the least interested observer has not failed to see it.

The reason for the growth of the Pink Part is to be found in the experience of those represented in it, one retailer telling another, with the result that most of the weekly accessions now come without individual solicitation.

How impressive the telegraph orders are is shown by the statement of Andrew Chronis, of the Alpha Floral Co., Chicago, who says that shortly after the store opened on Easter morning a telegraph messenger delivered forty-seven telegrams at one time—a good day's business in itself.

WIRE ORDERS CLIMBING.

Experiences related by retailers in actual figures confirm the statements of general character that the telegraph delivery business is growing more rapidly than any other branch of the retail florists' business. Larger expenditure by the public may be one reason, but another and more important one is the aggressive effort being made by florists in small towns as well as large cities. A recent statement giving actual and verifiable figures is that by the Blu-Maize Blossom Shop, at Ann Arbor, Mich. Though this store has been established only six months and there are several other live firms in town, the Blu-Maize Blossom Shop sent out over 100 telegraph orders at Easter, the average for the lot being over $6. This was a striking advance over the number sent out at Christmas.

The showing is particularly good when one remembers that Ann Arbor is a small town. Its location on the map is due to the presence of the University of Michigan. The 10,000 students are the raison d'être of the several good flower stores there. At Easter, however, many students had gone home for the holiday. At Mothers' day, says Alex Lurie, one of the proprietors, they will not and he anticipates, therefore, sending out twice as many telegraph orders for Mothers' day as at Easter. Moreover, the firm has definite plans to go after the large number of orders, so that Mr. Lurie's prediction is not based merely on hopes.

What is true in Ann Arbor is true in thousands of other communities throughout the country. Wherever there is a florist, telegraph orders are being developed—more rapidly in some places than others, it is true, but nevertheless developed. The degree depends upon each florist's efforts. Mothers' day looks like a big occasion in this department of the business.

HOUSTON HAS FLOWER WEEK.

Great Stimulus to Business.

March 15 to 21 was celebrated as "Say It with Flowers" week in Houston, Tex. It was declared by members of the trade to have been a great success. The slogan was given publicity and advertised from nearly every possible angle. The event was such a success and the cost found to be so small, compared with the results obtained, that the method may be a profitable way to handle this week in other cities.

The time selected for the Houston

What I Saw Last Saturday Afternoon

Last Saturday afternoon I stood across the street from Huyler's Candy Shop for an hour, and in that time counted 55 cars that stopped in front for a box of candy.

A week end box, either to enjoy in the car, or give to their week end host.

"Say, George," says I, "how come we florists are not getting more of this week end business to brace up business weakness during the Summer?"

Straightway came to the conclusion I long ago concluded, that we flower shop folks have been nodding at the switch and letting candy get away with it, while we looked smilingly on.

If my plan No. 2 works out as well as plan No. 1, Huyler may not sell any less candy, but we surely will sell more week end boxes of flowers.

Which may or may not hold a suggestion for you.

event was before Easter and it created a great demand for flowers and made a wonderful increase in business.

A series of musical entertainments were presented in the principal theaters and schools and also at the noonday meetings of the civic and business organizations of the city. Mrs. Mae Middleton Colley and Mrs. Huberta Read

Nunn, two of Houston's foremost artists, were engaged to sing the song, "Say It with Flowers."

Starting Monday, March 15, and continuing through the week, each theater was given an entertainment number during which the song was featured, at an afternoon and evening performance. Dainty flower girls, carrying baskets, Similar affairs were presented in all the public schools and copies of the song were given to the children, who were taught to sing it. Thousands of flowers were distributed to the children and were given to patients in the hospitals.

appropriate setting of floral arrangements and a surprise in the form of a living bouquet, in which Miss Kathleen Stephenson, completely hidden within a huge bouquet of flowers, sang the "Say It with Flowers" song and, gradually emerging, was joined by a chorus of maidens who sang and danced about the tables, distributing carnation boutonnieres to the members. Other numbers on the program were songs by Mrs. Nunn, interpretive dancing by Miss Elka Jacobs and the song, "When I Look into the Heart of a Rose," by Frank Colby. Everybody present was given a copy of the S. A. F. song. A similar program was given before the Salesmanship Club, the largest business club in the city.

The dahlia show will be held September 27 to 29 at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York.

Exhibition Rules.

It was decided that there would be three classes of exhibitors, namely, commercial growers, those who grow tubers for sale; private growers, those who employ gardeners, but do not sell stock, and amateurs, those who grow their own plants, individually, except for the work of plowing or spading and handling the fertilizer, who grow dahlias for their own pleasure and not for sale.

The exhibits of amateurs will be admitted free.

Garden clubs will be limited to 100 square feet at a flat rate of $10.

Competitive exhibits may be displayed in the trade space, so that exhibitors who enter flowers for display only and also flowers in competition can keep all their exhibits together to make the best possible general display.

The price of trade space is to be $1 per square foot.

or introducer and the tubers may be sent by mail to Storrs, Conn., or by express to Willimantic, Conn., prepaid, until June 1. Plants may be sent up to June 25. The clumps will be returned at the end of the season if desired. Tubers and plants will be properly planted and taken care of throughout the season. The name of the raiser and introducer will be posted on the stake.

Many visitors from New York, Boston and other points were at the garden last year making notes and the attendance this year will probably be larger than ever.

A charge of $1 is made for each variety entered. Not more than three tubers or plants of any one variety can be accepted. Flowers scoring eighty-five will be awarded the society's certificate of merit and the flowers will be exhibited at the annual dahlia show of the society.

All correspondence in reference to the trial garden should be addressed to Professor George W. Fraser, Storrs, Conn.

have not yet contributed to the campaign fund would now come across with the subscriptions so long anticipated from them. But it looks as though we may go on expecting. Expectancy is a bad habit. For years and years the florists have made expectancy the basis of operations. Now, when we have an active movement to turn expectancy into actuality, most of those who are to benefit seem unwilling to support the fund that is making the change. They are not helping to help themselves. The committee cannot pay our publicity bills with expectations. Why not help them toward materialization? Send a check right away for any amount circumstances will permit and it will be found to be a mighty good investment.

A Talk on Advertising.

I have been asked by the advertising committee to dispense with the market report and all news notes in this letter and have a heart-to-heart talk with the Baltimore florists through these columns on the subject of advertising. Having received the permission of the editor of The Review, which heartily lends its support to the Baltimore florists, I will this week talk on nothing but this important theme. We could not have a more opportune time for such a discussion. Before this reaches my readers the campaign will have been launched and the first advertisement will have appeared over the title of the Allied Florists of Baltimore.

The first point I want to impress upon you is that you are one of them and the success or failure of this campaign is in a measure dependent upon you. The Allied Florists are going to be heard from. Can you afford to say you are not one of them? Remember, this advertising committee was appointed by the Florists' Club in a regularly conducted meeting, for the specific purpose of advertising flowers. These young men took you seriously when you voted that a committee should be appointed for this purpose. They are to be commended for the manner in which they have taken up the work for which they were appointed.

In the Deatel Advertising Service they have a live-wire concern to handle this proposition for them. In the first place, this is a comparatively new concern in our city. By this I don't mean that its members are new at the advertising game, for every member of this service is a graduate of the best schools of advertising, but I do mean that they are more interested in the reputation of their new company than in the profits they may derive from this campaign. They have just got to make good, and they feel that they have enough of the florists behind them now to put "Say It with Flowers" across in fine style. Mr. Deatel, the head of the company, says that from now on he and every man connected with his company will be in the florists' business. In other words, they are now partners with you; your business is in a measure their business; your success or failure is their success or failure. Their one aim is to see the florists' business double in Baltimore in the next year, and if you will provide the means they have the way to accomplish this. They have their plan all mapped out. Mr. Deatel, at the last club meeting, told you that the foundation of this plan was "atmosphere," and what surer foundation could they build upon than this?

Remember that the florists' business is only about 50 years of age. Of course, I am speaking of the commercial end of the profession. We all know that gardening dates back to our first father. In other words, it is the oldest calling in existence today. Up to fifty years ago, however, most of the traffic in this calling consisted in selling one's labor to some one who was fortunate enough to be in a position to gratify this taste or hobby; flowers were not bought and sold as a means of livelihood. In the last fifty years the business has been worked up to what it is today. But stop and think how far short of development the industry is. Why, it is only in its infancy!

The greater number of your patrons today are the natural lovers of flowers; these are only a small percentage of the

But let us remember that in every instance two parties to a contract each covenants to perform specific parts. This agency agrees for a certain consideration to educate the people of Baltimore in the greater use of flowers. The Allied Florists of Baltimore agree to furnish the flowers that this greater education will demand, and the means that will make this education possible.

Now let us talk for a moment of some of the plans they propose for this education. Space will only permit me to mention a few. First, there will be newspaper publicity; in this way everyone will be reached. Then arrangements have been made with the largest banks, trust companies and theaters to have floral displays in their banking rooms, reception rooms and lobbies. These will bear the sign, "Say It with Flowers," furnished by the Allied Florists of Baltimore. These arrangements have actually been made and it is the desire of the company that a florist adjacent to each one of these institutions will volunteer to take care of it. They are situated all over the city; there is one of them adjacent to you; a list can be obtained at 16 St. Paul street. Think this over. Can you afford to have some florist come into your neighborhood and do this work? Some of the boys are already grabbing at the opportunity.

The success of this campaign is up to the Allied Florists of Baltimore. I have known them for a long time and I never knew them to start anything they could not finish. Tate.

large that local demand was not enough to make much impression. This condition, of course, caused a tumble in prices and stock in all grades was lumped in big lots for sale below quotations.

were Premier, Ophelia and Milady.
There was also a fine cut of Killarney and White Killarney.

The supply of carnations last week was larger than at any time for the last two years, with excellent stock in all Enchantress varieties. The whole-salers, in order to dispose of these, were compelled to job them off as low as $15 per thousand and even lower prices were recorded for those in other grades.

Bulbous stock is sharing the low prices with the other cut stock. There is plenty of seasonable stock in the market daily. There are plenty of Easter lilies, callas, valley and Emperor daffodils to fill all orders. A good supply of Darwin tulips also comes in daily.

Sweet peas have been in a glut since Easter and sell away below regular market quotations. Other stock includes poet's narcissi, calendulas, jonquils, daisies, mignonette, pansies and snapdragons.

In greens the market also has a good supply, but they seem to clean up daily, especially Asparagus plumosus, adian-tum and smilax, while the demand for galax, leucothoe and wild smilax is excellent.

at headquarters. The meeting was fairly well attended; the retailers were again noted for their absence. Jules Bourdet presided over the meeting.

The treasurer's report showed a healthy balance on hand, and Easter advertising bills amounting to $1,200 were ordered paid.

Advertising for Mothers' day then came up for discussion, which resulted in an order to spend $500 for advertising this event and the advertising committee was ordered to start at once with daily slogans in the newspapers announcing Mothers' day, May 9.

At the next meeting of this committee, April 27, arrangements will be made, in accordance with the request of the Florists' Club, for a big publicity night. All members are requested to be present at this meeting, for which special notices will be mailed out.

hospital, where he underwent a painful operation last week. From latest reports he is doing nicely and expects to be out by the end of this week.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained by Mrs. J. J. Beneke at her home April 14. All the members were present and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

Jacob Kauffman, who is with George Berner in the floral department at Wolff-Wilson's, is quite sick at his home, following a paralytic stroke. His friends are holding out hopes for his recovery.

The weather last week was just right for the nurserymen and landscape men, who report that they have all the business they can attend to, with experienced help hard to obtain at any price.

J. J. Windler has severed his connection with Windler's Flowers. He sold his interest to his brother-in-law, Edward Guntly, who will continue the business at 2300 South Grand avenue under the old name of Windler's Flowers. Mr. Windler leaves the trade to manage the business of a large local gum factory.

The big night of the "Say It with Flowers" Bowling League will be April 24 at the Western Rowing Club. For this all arrangements are complete. Twenty members of the bowling league will take part in the tournament. Sec-

Easter Business.

Splendid weather prevailed all the week preceding Easter until Good Friday, when an abundance of rain came, but Easter Saturday was fine and clear, although a little windy.

There was a feeling that stock would be scarce for Easter and storemen were especially eager to place orders for lilies in advance, as several local crops were reported to be behind time, and large quantities were brought in from Toronto and Brampton, Ont.

In some stores lilies were the leaders and were all sold, while in other places a few were left over. The main demand was for plants and any well grown plant was sold.

There were a good many yellow primroses to be seen and they sold well.

Primula obconica and genistas were to be had. Good bulbous stock sold well, but there was some of poor quality offered also. There were but few azaleas, rhododendrons and lilacs seen. Rambler roses were good and sold well.

In cut flowers violets were taken in preference to anything else and sweet peas followed closely. Lily of the valley dragged, owing to the price. Orchids sold well, but buyers do not care for Cattleya Schroederae, on account of its pale color. There was not a large demand for roses, although the quality was fine. Pansies sold well and there was a moderate demand for tulips and daffodils.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Hill, the Rosery florist, reports a big demand for corsage flowers. She was well satisfied with her Easter business, although a few plants were left unsold.

Mr. Ley, manager of Campbell's, reported a splendid sale of lilies and all potted stock. Violets took the lead in cut flowers.

Hall & Robinson enjoyed an exceptionally good business, disposing of large quantities of stock.

A large volume of business was transacted at McKenna's, Ltd., with lilies in the lead. Many thousands of violets were disposed of. Their bulbs were of fine quality and the best ramblers were seen at this establishment.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The market was on the long side last week and good stock in many lines failed to find a buyer. Roses were good, but even a sacrifice in price failed to move them. Carnations were also slow sellers, a great quantity of poor stock finding its way to the street peddlers. Bulbous stock is gone and violets are practically off the market. Snapdragon is a good seller and moves about at normal prices. Easter lilies are shortening down to somewhere near the point where the demand is equal to the supply. Calendulas are arriving with longer stems and bring $1 to $3 per hundred. The greens situation is not so favorable. Ferns are poor and have lost their keeping qualities. Leucothoe leaves are of poor quality and short-stemmed. Smilax is none too plentiful.

The retail trade is recovering from the slump following the heavy Easter business. Cincinnati was more fortunate than some cities, since the stormy weather did not visit us until everything was sold and delivered.

The large number of weddings seems to be general throughout the country. Funeral work has been above the average and a great many telegraph orders have been handled recently. While

Mothers' day is still some distance away, everyone is acquiring the necessary habit of making early preparations.
The outlook seems to indicate a heavier demand than last year.

Various Notes.

Peter Weiland has been strong on single daffodils. This stock moves well, as also do sweet peas.

E. G. Gillett is receiving plenty of southern plumosus and is better prepared to take care of the big demand.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some extra fine rose stock from the Joseph H. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind. Snapdragons, calendulas and marguerites are also of good quality here.

H. W. Sheppard supplied the decorations for the Graydon wedding, the biggest event of the season. Large quantities of lilies were used in the church, while handsome basket arrangements were used throughout the house. The bride carried valley and orchids, while her maids carried bouquets of variously colored sweet peas and roses. This firm also supplied the bridal outfit of five bouquets for the Richardson wedding at Glendale.

Myers & Co. Easter sales amounted to almost thirty per cent more than last year. They had just enough Easter lilies to keep prices right. The big demand was for roses, sweet peas and bulbous stock. They have their houses well filled with bedding stock and vegetable plants. One of the latest productions of this firm is a yellow sport of Bonny Best tomato.

H. Wiecking has his houses filled with geraniums and vegetable plants. He does a wholesale business in these lines.

The Market.

The call for spring plants is on the increase as the weather becomes warmer. Funeral work and wedding decorations are numerous. Spring bedding stock is bringing more money this year. Geraniums in 4-inch pots bring up to 50 cents each. The day of the 5-cent plant is past. There is a good prospect for a large crop of peonies this year, as all the large peony fields seem to be in fine condition.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler is enjoying a good business. He reports a scarcity of ferns. He is cutting extra good carnations.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are cutting large quantities of carnations, sweet peas, bulbous stock, etc. Business is good with them.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is having its usual big trade, with plenty of flowers of all kinds.

Karl Zeidler is cutting large quantities of carnations. He has several benches of tomato plants in fine shape. His stock of geraniums is looking fine.

Louis Fritsch, who has been in Chicago for the last few years, has returned to Evansville and is growing vegetable plants in his houses.

The Lockyear Floral Co. is having a large demand for spring stock.

The Market.

The call for spring plants is on the increase as the weather becomes warmer. Funeral work and wedding decorations are numerous. Spring bedding stock is bringing more money this year. Geraniums in 4-inch pots bring up to 50 cents each. The day of the 5-cent plant is past. There is a good prospect for a large crop of peonies this year, as all the large peony fields seem to be in fine condition.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler is enjoying a good business. He reports a scarcity of ferns. He is cutting extra good carnations.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are cutting large quantities of carnations, sweet peas, bulbous stock, etc. Business is good with them.

Karl Zeidler is cutting large quantities of carnations. He has several benches of tomato plants in fine shape. His stock of geraniums is looking fine.

Louis Fritsch, who has been in Chicago for the last few years, has returned to Evansville and is growing vegetable plants in his houses.

The Lockyear Floral Co. is having a large demand for spring stock.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, M. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.;
secretary-treasurer, C. M. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

UNSEASONABLE weather has proved a great disadvantage to seedsmen so far this season.

SOME American seed growers are offering to absorb half the variation in the exchange rate which operates against those in foreign countries who might be their customers.

CONGRESSIONAL seed distribution is receiving its annual hard knocks in the press throughout the country, but our representatives at Washington seem not deterred from playing the old joke on their constituents once more.

THE M. G. Madsen Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis., has leased a 40-acre farm near the company's greenhouses. This tract will be added to the land previously acquired and will be devoted to the growing of bulbs and nursery stock.

MOVEMENT of field seeds and onion sets has been much affected by the railroad men's strikes, unfavorably for the dealers in the larger cities, where the troubles centered, and favorably in many instances for the "home" dealers.

THE American Railroad Association, whose suggestions carry the weight of orders, recommended April 17 that when embargoes are placed field and garden seed and seed grain be given priority after food and fuel. The association's letter appears in the Nursery Trade Department in this issue.

THE Santa Cruz freesia district is experiencing the latest rains for many a spring season. These late rains will postpone the harvesting of the freesias, necessitating later deliveries than in the last two years. The crop is in excellent condition, although the outlook does not indicate more than a forty per cent crop of the larger-sized bulbs. Quality is fully up to prior years, the small bulbs being due to the cold and dry fall. Bookings are exceedingly heavy and it would appear that the entire crop will be placed prior to harvest. The narcissus bulb crop is favorable as to size and quality. Callas will be a limited crop this year.

FRENCH CANDIDUM PRICES.

The Japanese are not the only bulb exporters who think the 1920 crop should be worth more than any preceding crop was, as witness the following recent Paris quotation for north of France candidums for shipment in July and August:

Circumference in centimeters	Per 1000
18 to 19.....	$22.00
20 to 21.....	26.00
22 to 23.....	32.00
24 to 25.....	37.00
26 to 27.....	46.00
28 to 29.....	50.00
30 and over.....	54.00
35 and over.....	58.00

These prices do not include carriage, freight, packing or insurance.

WHAT WILL SEEDSMEN DO?

What is the seed grower to do in the face of advancing prices in all lines except that of his own production? A leading seedsman expresses his opinion of the situation thus:

"It seems strange to us that everything seems to be advancing in price, except garden seeds, which are getting lower and lower in price. There is just one thing that must result and that is the seed growers will have to be paid fair prices for their products or the time will come when the seed trade will go without adequate supplies. The farmers will not accept contracts at less than a stated price and, if the prices to the trade go any lower, the larger and more reliable growers will quit the game and the trade will have to depend upon the small fellows, who are not in a position, either in equipment or financially, to increase their business largely."

FRENCH SEED SITUATION.

Writing to a British horticultural publication, a French grower gives the following resume of the seed situation in his country:

"The situation of seed growing and of the seed trade has greatly improved in France since the demobilization.

"During war time, owing to the big proportion of farmers and growers who had been mobilized, the areas employed for seed growing were considerably reduced and, at the time of harvest, crops were sometimes lost on account of the impossibility of saving them in time.

"Owing to this cause, the French seed trade has been obliged to become importer for some sorts of which it was formerly exporter.

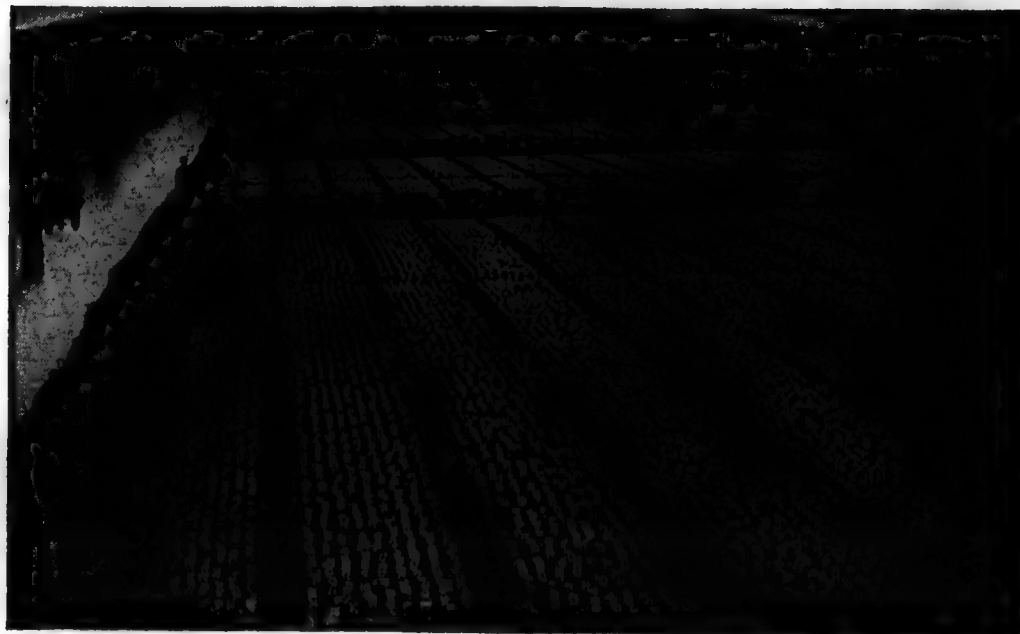

"In spite of the fact that not a year has passed since the last men over 25 years of age were demobilized and that France has lost nearly 2,000,000 men killed and that about 2,500,000 are disabled, also that the greater part of the killed and mutilated belonged to agriculture, there is a strong revival in France in agriculture and seed growing.

"Here are some results of the average crops estimated for this season:

Mangolds and beets, white.	Medium crop.
Mangolds, red and yellow.	Very small.
Carrots	Very good crop and low price.
Cabbages and savoy.	Medium.
Swedish turnip.	Good.
Chicory	Good.
Celery	Very small crop.
Beans	Medium crop.
Lettuce	Medium crop.
Turnips	Very small.
Onions, white varieties.	Very small.
Onions, yellow varieties.	Good medium crop.
Parsley	No crop.
Leek	Good crop.
Radishes	Medium crop.
Salsify and scorzonera.	No crop.
Tomatoes, late sorts.	Middle crop.
Tomatoes, early sorts.	Small crop.

"From information I have obtained from several sources it appears that contracts for next season are numerous and that the seed growing industry will take an important new development in France.

"I have also been informed that the French seed firms which contracted during the war in the United States for

ONE BAR DOWN.

In Illinois Corn Borer Ban.

The proclamation of Governor Lowden, of Illinois, March 24, which modifies the previous state quarantine against the European corn borer, shows in three principal ways the influence of the federal quarantine established March 15. The revised proclamation became effective April 1.

It adds Pennsylvania to the territory previously affected, including, however, the whole state, whereas the federal quarantine refers to only one town therein. It adds asters, cosmos, zinnias and hollyhocks to the flowers affected. The third and most significant change is that, while excluding the cut flowers and entire plants of gladioli and dahlias, it admits, in addition to their seeds, "the corms of gladiolus and the tubers of dahlia, when accompanied by a certificate of inspection of a federal or state inspector, certifying that they are free from stems or any parts thereof."

The Better Solution.

When the first Illinois quarantine, reported in The Review of January 15, was issued, objection was raised because gladiolus corms and dahlia tubers were subject to the quarantine provisions. P. A. Glenn, chief inspector of the Illinois state department of agriculture, replied that these bulbs "were included in this quarantine because we understand that a part of the stem is frequently attached to them when shipped, and it is this portion of the stem which is likely to carry the larvæ of the borer." To exclude from the state stem-bearing corms and tubers seemed the natural solution of the problem, a solution adopted in both the federal and the Michigan quarantines; now Illinois has also come into line.

accompanies the announcement of the second proclamation:

In case any person in the state of Illinois should receive any of the prohibited plants or plant parts above mentioned or the seeds of the same not thoroughly cleaned, or the corms of gladiolus and the tubers of dahlia not accompanied by a certificate of freedom from stems, he should immediately notify this office of the fact and advise whether or not he elects to have the products destroyed or returned to the original consignor, and he should hold the same for instructions from this office.

The Revised Proclamation.

The essentials of the new proclamation are as follows:

I, Frank O. Lowden, governor of the state of Illinois, do hereby prohibit and declare unlawful from and after the first day of April, 1920, until otherwise by me proclaimed, the importation into the state of Illinois and within the state of Illinois from the said states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania, of corn, broom corn, including all parts of the plants except the seeds only, celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oats and rye straw as such or when used as packing, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, geranium, hollyhock, gladiolus and dahlia, except the seeds of the above, seed corn when shelled and thoroughly cleaned, and the corms of gladiolus and the tubers of dahlia, when accompanied by a certificate of inspection of a federal or state inspector, certifying that they are free from stems or any part thereof; provided that in the case of all shipments of seed corn, containing packages of more than one quart, the consignor shall give notice of date and amount of shipment and name and address of the consignee to P. A. Glenn, chief inspector, division of plant industry, state department of agriculture, Urbana, Ill.; any shipments of the above products which do not comply with the provisions of this proclamation to be destroyed or to be returned to the original consignor as the owner may direct.

VEGETABLE SEED ACREAGE.

The prospective commercial acreage of vegetable seed crops for 1920 is given in the table below. These figures are based on reports received by the Department of Agriculture from commercial vegetable seed growers and are as accurate and complete as it is possible to obtain at this time.

Compared with last year, marked reductions are noted in the acreage reported for dwarf snap beans, all beet, carrot, lettuce, onion seed, radish, spinach, sweet corn and tomato seed, while a slightly increased acreage is reported for garden pole beans, cucumber, muskmelon, watermelon, parsley, pepper, pumpkin and Swede turnip seed.

The estimated prospective production for 1920 from the acreage reported has been computed on the basis of the average yield per acre for the 4-year period 1916-1919. Figures showing the commercial production for 1919 are given also for comparison.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

LACK of help is the greatest problem of nurserymen this spring.

Do your bulletins reach as large a number of buyers as do the offers of nursery stock in the pages of The Review? They cost a good deal more.

THE difficulty of getting printing done promptly, together with the high cost, has created a renewed demand for catalogues for use in the nursery trade.

NURSERY firms have ceased to quote prices in some trade papers to prevent such information going outside the trade. Do they watch their mailing list as closely?

ALLAN DUNSTER, formerly of England, has bought ten acres of land in the Imperial valley, in southeastern California, where he expects to grow ornamental trees, plants and fruit stock.

JOSEPH ZIMMERMAN is to be in charge of the Caldwell Nursery, at Cincinnati, O., where the park board has acquired 104 acres of land and plans to open a nursery where all flowers and plants for municipal parks will be grown.

THERE is a groundless fallacy prevalent that a publisher has not the right to refuse subscriptions. The Review accepts them only from persons who can give proof of their connection with the florists', seed or nursery trade.

EVEN high-priced efficiency experts would find the difficulty in determining production costs far greater in this business than in any branch of manufacturing industry, but the nurseryman who has some idea of them at least is more apt to be making a profit.

PRIORITY ON RAILROADS.

As a result of conferences with the Secretary of Agriculture, the Interstate Commerce Commission and other officials at Washington, the A. A. N. has secured action which practically gives priority to nursery stock on the railroads after vital necessities, such as food and fuel. This is in the form of a letter to all railroad officials from the American Railroad Association. Although this association now acts in an advisory capacity since the return of the railroads to private ownership, its suggestions have the weight of orders. The letter sent out under date of April 17 reads as follows:

Complaints in considerable volume are reaching us and the Interstate Commerce Commission as well, from nurserymen in various parts of the country, indicating that there is little uniformity among the various roads with respect to exempting nursery stock, a highly seasonal and semi-perishable commodity, from embargoes.

To establish a uniform practice, it appears to be important at this season, and it is therefore suggested, that whenever general embargoes are placed which exempt food, feed, perishable freight, live stock and fuel, that such seasonal articles as field and garden seed, seed grain, and nursery stock, be considered next in order of importance to receive preference in transportation.

CALIFORNIA BUD SELECTION.

Association's Work Begins.

Elimination of nonproductive strains of deciduous fruit trees of California by standardizing the desirable varieties to varietal name is the program of the leading nurserymen of the state, through the California Bud Selection Association, which was launched April 12 with the opening of offices at San Jose. In charge of the project is L. B. Scott, a Department of Agriculture specialist of experience in standardizing deciduous fruits, subtropical and citrus groves.

Although nurserymen are financing the movement, it has been placed on a public service plane and the Department of Agriculture will coöperate and conduct the work on the lines laid down for the citrus fruit bud selection investigation and program now being conducted for the citrus growers by the use of a congressional appropriation.

Plans of the association call first for an investigation of the varieties of fruit which the canners, dried fruit associations and various other associations of growers would rather handle. Then surveys will be started of the orchards of the state for individual tree-performance records. A bud selection orchard will be established near San Jose for research work and finally guaranteed, pedigreed stock of the most desirable qualities of each variety will be sold.

ciation, Mr. Scott illustrated by describing the citrus selection work. In 1909 the Department of Agriculture began an investigation of bud variations in different citrus varieties in California. In the case of the Washington navel orange it was found that there were thirteen distinct strains in one variety in the groves of the state. These strains were characterized by different fruit, different foliage and different habits of growth. Similar differences were found in other citrus varieties, and in each variety only one or two strains were found to be worthy of propagation. Other strains had their origin because of careless methods of propagation and unintentional selection of bud wood from the worthless or drone trees.

As soon as the citrus growers realized the importance of this discovery they began securing individual tree performance records, which means the recording of the actual amount and the quality of the fruit grown by each tree in an orchard. At the present time individual tree-performance records are being obtained in approximately 50,000 acres of citrus groves in California.

In 1916, as a result of this work, conducted in coöperation with the Department of Agriculture, the California Fruit Growers' Exchange organized a department known as a bud supply department. This department furnishes buds from performance-record trees to any nurseryman or fruit grower who desires to buy, the idea being that every citrus tree grown in the state will eventually be a high-producing tree and bear only the best type of fruit.

An investigation of the groves of Alabama and Florida by the Department of Agriculture has shown that similar variations exist in the citrus varieties grown in those states; also, an investigation of the apples and peaches of Connecticut and Michigan has revealed distinct variations within the standard deciduous varieties grown in those sections.

In California, in addition to the investigation in citrus fruits, work has been done in the olive and avocado groves and clearly defined bud variations have been found in the different standard varieties of these fruits.

The Deciduous Situation.

It has long been recognized by fruit growers and nurserymen that the variations in the different varieties of deciduous fruits in the state of California are as extensive as the varieties in the citrus fruits.

In 1919, W. T. Kirkman, of Fresno, Cal., originated the idea of forming an association of leading nurserymen in the state which would handle all of the bud wood used by the nurserymen. He discussed the project with other nurserymen, with fruit growers, with the agricultural college of the University of California and corresponded with the Department of Agriculture at Washington. As a result the California Bud Selection Association was perfected at a meeting held in San Francisco last December.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The first part of last week stock moved slowly and began to pile up, but retailers advertised a few sales and soon cleaned up the surplus, and Saturday found the market clean. Prices have been holding up fairly well. The railroad strike has slowed up shipping somewhat and many shipments go by parcel post. Incoming shipments are arriving in poor condition.

Roses are available in large quantities. Carnations have been scarce and realized $6 per hundred. Sweet peas are cleaning up well and bring from $1 to $4 per hundred. Snapdragons clean up readily. Lilies are available in large quantities, but few are in demand. Violets have been arriving in a poor condition, many being delayed in transportation. Calendulas are picked up readily, as are other novelties. Valley has been moving well. Greens have been scarce, especially ferns, of which there have been no shipments.

Various Notes.

Albert Barber recently returned from a trip to Chicago, where he found the market much congested.

L. Anderson and George Bate visited the range of the Reeser Floral Co., at Springfield, O., recently.

The Cleveland trade extend sincere sympathy to M. Wilson, Lakewood, O., on the loss of his mother.

Guy Bate, of Newton Falls, O., visited this city last week on business.

Albert Hart and his family have returned from their trip to California, where they spent part of the winter.

L. Anderson expects to have a large number of hydrangeas for Mothers' day trade.

W. F. B.

The Friedley Co. has a fine lot of hydrangeas for Mothers' day and Memorial day. Begonias Chatelaine and Mrs. Patten have been well grown in the bench, having been planted about March 14 from 2-inch pots in spaces about eight inches square. Within a month they were ready to be lifted for 4-inch pots, making fine plants for Mothers' day. A later batch will be treated the same way for Memorial day. Cyclamens to the number of 15,000 will receive similar treatment. Superintendent Shepherd Norris will have an up-to-date plant growing establishment for the members of the S. A. F. to visit in August.

Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., has kept the Cleveland market well supplied with blooming plants from Christmas on and has a choice lot of stock for Mothers' day and Memorial day.

While Adam Graham, of A. Graham & Son, is taking in the sights in the far east, Adam Graham, Jr., takes an occasional look over his farm of twenty-two acres at Wickliffe, O. Holiday trade realized fullest expectations and a repetition is anticipated for the coming special days.

W. M.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—Joseph Bancroft & Sons are using several sorts of slips to send out to customers and distribute otherwise. One is a well prepared advertisement for Mothers' day. Another now being sent out is more general in character, and is headed, "Flowers speak a universal language."

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Toronto florists had a busy week. There has been a big demand for funeral work, as well as wedding and other decorations. Stock has been plentiful; in fact, in some cases there has been a slight surplus, which was quickly sold.

C. H. A. Executive Meeting.

The executive committee of the Canadian Horticultural Association met at Hamilton April 12 and 13 to arrange for the convention to be held in that city August 10 to 13. Arrangements for papers and entertainment were left with the Gardeners' and Florists' Association of Hamilton.

Several important questions were dealt with at the meeting. One of the most important was a discussion on changing the name of the association to better represent the composition of the organization. As the association is largely made up of growers, florists, etc., it is proposed to have a name similar to the S. A. F. and this matter will be brought before the convention by the executive committee. The plan to establish a botanical garden was endorsed.

A report was given by the educational committee, after which it was asked to continue its work. It will approach the government and ask it to assist the florists by arranging a course either at Guelph or another college.

A report was given by the plant registration committee, which outlined a plan for the registration of plants, to maintain a record of plants, to encourage the introduction of new varieties and to work with the S. A. F. to secure a uniform plant nomenclature.

Prof. H. B. Dorner, of the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., gave an excellent address on educational and experimental work at college. The question of establishing a horticultural council in Canada was discussed and will be brought up at the convention.

The executive committee was entertained by the Hamilton florists at a supper Monday night, April 12.

Various Notes.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business here is good and both funeral work and corsages are in demand. Several dances lately have helped the corsage business. Carnations are still $2 per dozen and roses and tulips are $2 per dozen and up.

The railroad strike has not affected the supply here, as home-grown stock is plentiful. Chicago shipments are still arriving. The strike does not affect incoming shipments, but outgoing shipments are not taken here, as they cannot be moved.

A severe cold snap did a little damage last week, when the temperature went down to 19 degrees after several days of summer weather. The weather here is wet and disagreeable and the cash and carry trade is slack, but the unusual demand for funeral work in the last few days more than made up for this.

Various Notes.

J. A. Martin lost several thousand tomato plants which he had set out the night before the temperature dropped so suddenly.

Thomas J. Ludwig has been doing a big funeral business. He turned out four large double sprays Friday, April 16, besides numerous other large designs.

The Munk Floral Co. has a large crop of roses on now and they seem to be the best in this vicinity, both in size and color.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting some fine roses. J. W. T.

SHUT THE CHUTE.

The possible demand for good stock at this time is like the grain in a bin that empties through a chute in the bottom. The man who starts filling a bag underneath may be smothered by what he came for if he can't shut it in time.

If the chute is a big one and lets a lot come through, he's got to be quick to save himself. That's why advertisers in the Classified section of The Review do well to keep a pad of telegraph blanks close at hand. Then they use them. Like this:

Please discontinue salvia and verbena ads. Can't supply all the orders. Thank you.—H. J. Potomkin, Muncie, Ind., April 19, 1920.

BOILER TOO SMALL.

I have two houses, one  $16\frac{1}{2} \times 40$  feet and the other  $10\frac{1}{2} \times 110$  feet. The first house is nine and a half feet to the ridge and has a  $5\frac{1}{2}$ -foot northwest side wall and a southeast side wall that is two feet boarded up and four feet glass. The glass lights are  $10 \times 12$  inches. The side benches are three feet wide and the middle bench six feet five inches. There are six  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flows and six  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns, six pipes under each side bench, also one  $2\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pipe leading into the second house. The second house is seven and a half feet to the ridge and both side walls are boarded up two and a half feet. The glass lights on the southeast are  $16 \times 24$  inches and on the northwest  $10 \times 12$ . There is one solid bed, four and a half feet wide, and one high bench, two and a half feet wide. The house has one flow on each side under the gutter, one return on the northwest side just above the ground and two  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns on the southeast side. The pipes have no shut-off. To keep the temperature in this house at 45 degrees at night, the first house registers 65 to 75 degrees.

These houses are shady, having the sun only four or five hours daily during the winter. What would you recommend growing in these two houses?

I use a No. 50 Spence hot water heater. Is this boiler large enough to heat three houses, one  $16 \times 110$  feet, another  $12 \times 110$  feet and the third  $10\frac{1}{2} \times 110$  feet? If not, what size of boiler should be used? Would this Spence boiler be large enough to heat two houses, one  $18 \times 110$  feet with two  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flows and ten  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns and the other  $20 \times 110$  feet with ten  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch pipes? How should I make the connection? I plan to have three  $4\frac{1}{2}$ -foot solid beds. H. C.—Mass.

The sizes of the flow pipes in the narrow house are not stated, but, unless they are larger than  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch, it must be an exceedingly efficient heating system if it will maintain a temperature of 45 degrees in zero weather with three such returns.

As I remember it, a No. 50 Spence heater is rated for 950 square feet of hot water radiation. The letter does not state what temperature is to be maintained in the three houses mentioned, nor is the amount of glass and board surface in the walls stated. But even if there is no exposed wall surface, it would require about 1,150 square feet of radiation to heat these houses to 50 degrees, which is over one-fifth more than can be handled by a No. 50 Spence boiler. If the houses are to be heated to 60 degrees, about 1,500 square feet of radiation will be required, and allowance will still need to be made for any exposed wall surface. At least 100 square feet of radiation additional will be needed for each foot of glass in the two side walls.

The two houses described would require about the same radiation as the three narrower houses. The Spence boiler is about large enough to heat one of these houses to 60 degrees, if the No. 50 boiler has a grate about twenty-five inches in diameter and five horizontal sections.

It is not clear what is meant by

"How should I make the connection?"

If the method of connecting the boiler with the coils in the greenhouse is what is meant, this will depend upon the openings in the boiler. If there is one 4-inch flow outlet and a return opening of the same size, it would be best to start with a main flow and a main return of that size and take off a 3-inch supply pipe for each house. For the radiation in the houses we would use three 2½-inch flow pipes and six to nine 2-inch returns in each house, the number of the returns depending on the temperature desired and the amount of exposed wall surface. For the narrow house two flows and four to six returns will answer. In case there are 2½-inch outlets, pipes of this size may be run directly to the houses.

With the temperatures mentioned, the shaded houses could well be used for palms and ferns. The cool house might also be used for plants to be rested, or for starting bulbs, geraniums and similar bedding plants.

Flora, Ill.—A. J. Kernstein has sold his range to George Van Dyke.

The Market.

Despite the many difficulties which came up last week, due to the railroad strike, business was satisfactory. All members of the trade were glad to see some progress made in getting this situation straightened out, as many large shipments were left in the hands of the express companies and, in most cases, the stock was sold at low prices. Out-of-town business was hard hit, but the local growers kept the Washington stores well supplied and there were enough greens tied up in this city to last through the entire week. The outlook is much brighter now than it was a week ago, when it was impossible to get a shipment through in any shape. The plant trade continues to fall off, but all cut stock is moving well. The rose supply fell off a little last week, but the gap was filled with the abundance of other stock. Sweet peas and carnations are still in abundance and clean up fairly well.

Various Notes.

Sunday closing was inaugurated April 11 and, from all indications, it agreed with everyone. The employees came in Monday with new energy and determination. Only a few local stores remained open at any time during the day.

Fred Leapley has been ill and confined to his home for several days, but his condition is reported as favorable and members of the trade hope to see him back in his place of business shortly.

W. S. Field, of Nuttallburg, W. Va., was a visitor last week. He visited several of the local stores on business. G. V. S.

Missoula, Mont.—The R. & S. Flower Store and greenhouses are for sale, F. X. Scully having taken the agency for the Beeman tractor, to which he plans to devote his whole time.

The regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held at Music hall Tuesday evening, April 13, was an unusually busy one. Special plans were made for coöperating with the Newport Garden Association in the school garden movement and with the Home Garden Association for the encouragement and assistance of home gardeners.

There were two exhibits at the meeting which attracted general attention, a vase of senecio, exhibited by Andrew Dorward, for which he received a certificate of merit, and a vase of single violets, exhibited by Charles Philpot, for which he was given a cultural certificate.

Take that button on your coat, for instance; if it is loose and you let it go at that, the chances are that it will be off and gone before you know it.

Result—a button gone and time gone as well.

Result—a leaky house, a lot of new sashbars, a lot of time gone to waste and probably a lot of valuable stock gone, too.

The Market.

Last week was uneventful. Business was about as good as could be expected after Easter.

The supply of carnations continues heavy. Roses and sweet peas find a steady market. Large quantities of Easter lilies and callas are coming in, but the demand is not sufficient to clean up the supply.

Shipping trade kept up fairly well, but express conditions at the end of last week were in bad shape. While perishable stock was accepted by the companies, there was considerable uncertainty as to whether shipments would go out on schedule time.

Fine hydrangea plants are coming in; these plants will be in good supply up to Mothers' day.

Various Notes.

At the recent meeting of the Florists' Club the principal discussion was on spring plants. It was generally believed that, with the increased cost of production and with a shortage of labor curtailing production, prices would be somewhat higher than they were last year.

William Zimmermann reported a big Easter, with a heavy demand for potted plants.

The force of William Lubliner, whose store is located in the busiest block on Grand avenue, was kept busy all day Easter Sunday.

The Boston Store had a special sale on lily plants at cut rates, but apparently it had no effect on prices in general.

There is a shortage of coal in this vicinity now and the general slogan is, "Stock up early." P.

The Edward H. Stewart Co. has opened a store at 538 Jackson street.

Cuts Out Rain Worries and Builds up Bank Rolls

You know the nerve-racking anxiety of cloud watchings.

Wondering if rain will come.

Watching your cut flowers, or carnation plants, or propagating stocks gradually stop growing, and begin to show that tell-tale yellowing of the leaves that means starvation.

Starvation in the midst of plenty, because there isn't enough water in the soil to dissolve the plant foods so the plant roots can take them up.

The day you put in a Skinner Irrigation System your rain worries disappear forever.

No more dread of crop losses because the rain they needed was a few days, or weeks, late,
But that's only half.

Just as soon as you stop rain-worrying, you start bank-rolling. Bigger crops, in more perfect condition, maturing on time—mean bigger profits.

A Skinner system generally pays for itself the first year. If you doubt it, send for our new book, "RAIN for the Asking."

THE ROSE BUG IS DOOMED

THE FLORO-CHEMICAL CO.

MELROSINE

(TRADE MARK)

The first real and only effective remedy for the destruction of the rose beetle or chafer

Reprinted from The Florists' Exchange,
February 7, 1920.

Is the Rose Bug Doomed?

If there exists anywhere around this section a more cantankerous brute—one that you cannot possibly have a sympathetic feeling for, as in the old way, you drop him into the can of oil—than the Rose bug, we don't know of it, him or her. You go over your Roses in the dewy morn or at nearly twilight and gingerly pick or shake him and her off the Roses until you can't see a last one remaining—but he and his wives and family (or their close relatives) are back again on the job next day about as numerous as before, doing their spiteful best to disfigure and destroy your Roses.

Once we thought we had a remedy. Fifty young chickens one day found their way down to big old Crimson Rambler, just when the bugs were coming to the surface. What a glorious time those chicks had that day! The second day they were not so keen on the Rose bug food. And the third day they absolutely refused to go anywhere near. However, that Summer that particular bush (which was isolated from the Rose beds) was little troubled.

This story is just en passant.

Seriously, any eradicator of the Rose bug pest will be hailed with joy by commercial grower, private gardener and amateur, whatever be the form it may take or the labor it may entail.

We follow with a letter from Mr. Wohliert, an old and esteemed subscriber for The Exchange, and wish only to add our hope that the preparation he mentions will be made known to the commercial man before the Rose bug makes its next appearance.

• • • • •

Editor The Florists' Exchange:

Rose bugs are surely difficult creatures to get away with and up to the present it has been almost impossible to eliminate them. Therefore, perhaps, you may be pardoned for your comment in your issue of Jan. 24, upon a remedy for Rose bugs in a manner which cannot but leave the impression that such a remedy or this particular remedy, is of but little value in ridding our Roses of this injurious insect. I hold no brief from the originator or introducer of this remedy, but having known the originator for many years and having watched with great interest his endeavors to perfect his remedy, I feel qualified and justified in stating that his remedy not only is an efficient one from my viewpoint, but know that it has been severely tested by many men well known to the trade who would not vouch for its merits as they have done were the remedy not a most excellent one.

It seems to me that your comment was not exactly proper, at this time, inasmuch as we should encourage any helpful endeavors to assist horticulture, and I am sure Mr. Barclay, the originator, should, by all means, receive a vote of thanks from all horticulturists for doing something for us which has heretofore not been done, particularly as he did not allow the remedy to be marketed until it had been tested out by such authorities as Theodore Wirth, J. Horace McFarland, Bureau of Entomology of Pennsylvania and others—this relieving buyers purchasing a pig in a bag.

I have no financial interest in this preparation, but know it to be of commercial value, also I understand a New York seedsmen has thought well enough of it to pay a good price for it.

A. E. WOHLIERT.

Narbeth, Pa.

The product of a private gardener, Mr. Hugh Balfour Barclay, of Merion, Pa., to whom horticulture owes an everlasting debt for his discovery.

Mr. Barclay conducted exactly 872 experiments before he was satisfied that his product was really effective and good enough to be placed on the market, assuring the public of an article which fulfilled every need demanded of it.

In 1919, samples were sent to the most eminent Rosarians and Horticulturists in America for tests, and all have voiced their approval by word and letter. To the skeptical ones, we will gladly mail copies of written testimonials.

MELROSINE while destroying the Rose bug does not leave a blemish or spot on the flower, nor has it any odor.

MELROSINE when used is diluted with twenty times the amount of water. Full directions for use on each can.

MELROSINE is sold as follows: Sample cans, enough to make a gallon of diluted mixture for thorough trial on a number of plants, 50c; per pint, $1.00; per quart, $1.75; per 2 quarts, $3.25; per gallon, $6.00; per 5 gallons, $25.00; per 10 gallons, $45.00.

A special discount of 10 per cent is allowed to florists and growers and a further discount if put in stock for selling over the counter.

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY to make an extra dollar when trade is dull.

The Market.

Business has dropped to a normal basis and the florists all have their eyes on Memorial day. There is an abundance of regular stock and prices rule steady. Reports indicate that there will be a full supply of potted plants for Memorial day, while the supply of bedding stock is said to be larger than ever before. All the seedsmen report heavy demands, both for seed and for garden tools and implements.

Various Notes.

Notice has been served on Smith the Florist, 25 Washington street, to be ready to vacate at short notice after May 1, as the building is to be razed.

John Burke, of the Burke & Burns Rose Co., has returned from a several weeks' visit in Arizona.

W. E. Barrett Co. has engaged several additional men during the rush on seed orders.

Rubbish in the basement of the building occupied in part by Joseph E. Koppelman last Wednesday, April 14, caused several hundred dollars' damage by smoke.

W. S. Pino reports the heaviest call in his experience for seeds this season.

Elias Pickles, formerly with W. S. Pino, is now in charge of the seed department of the Dudley Hardware Co.

Joseph Smith spent the last week-end with relatives in the vicinity of Boston.

Thomas Curley has reopened his greenhouses on Harkness street, which have been closed for two seasons.

Johnston Bros. had the first arbutus of the season last week. It was especially fine and sold readily.

Stephen Green, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in the city last week calling upon the trade.

Edward C. Scott is giving up his position as manager of the Westminster Greenhouses and is going to devote himself to farming in Connecticut.

T. J. Johnston & Co. are receiving some unusually fine geranium plants in 5-inch pots for bedding purposes.

Smith's Flower Shop, Westerly, R. I., has taken the local agency for the American Seed Tape Co., Newark, N. J.

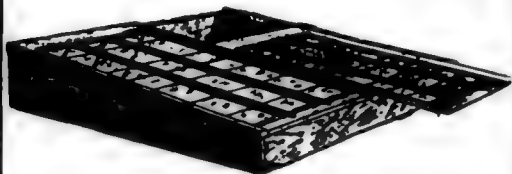

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was a business visitor in this city last week.

King GREENHOUSES

Strong, Sunny, Commercial Houses that Pay Dividends.

King Greenhouses have for years had the reputation of being wonderful growing houses.

The reason for this is that we pay as much attention to the development of the details of construction in our commercial greenhouses as in our private estate work.

Strength is the first characteristic of every King Greenhouse and yet our type of construction enables us to build durable light framing members which cast very little shade.

Sway bracing, gable bracing cross ties from eave to eave and yet very little shadow—that's why King Greenhouses produce so many first quality flowers that although their first cost may be a trifle more the returns pay much greater dividends in the long run.

EVERTITE

GLAZING CEMENT

Here's the story:—

The reasons why Evertite Glazing Cement has largely displaced putty in greenhouse construction are apparent to anyone who has had Evertite on his sash bars.

Putty consists of whiting and boiled linseed oil. Linseed oil evaporates and when the oil is gone from putty, only whiting remains. It isn't any wonder it lets go and the glass blows out.

Evertite Glazing Cement is made of pure rock asbestos, combined with non-drying adhesive oils and Gilsonite. It will not run or harden under either extreme of temperature. It will not check, crack or let go, but always retains its plastic, rubber-like condition.

The only chance to make putty hold is to put it under the glass. Quite the opposite, Evertite is run around the edges, lapping over on top of the glass. The glass really holds the putty in (for a while); but Evertite holds the glass in—for years and years.

Evertite Glazing Cement, remaining always rubber-like, will contract and expand as the greenhouse roof heaves under the wind. The glazing cement does not crack—nor will the glass.

The correct way to apply Evertite Glazing Cement is through the "Oh Boy" glazing gun. The cement flows in a pencil-like stream and stays where you put it. There is no other gun so good.

Heretofore the chief use of Evertite Glazing Cement has been to repair roofs weakened, loosened and leaking by the disintegration of putty. But many hundreds of thousands of feet of new glass this season will be glazed with Evertite. Their owners can forget the glazing problem for the next five to ten years.

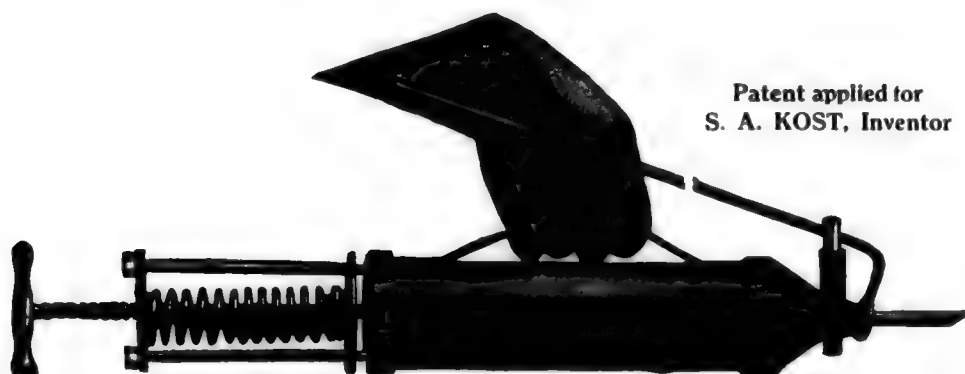

Evertite Glazing Cement will cost no more than first-class putty, but if putty were free, Evertite would be cheaper—because of the saving in labor, not to say worry.

Evertite can be had in kegs, half barrels and barrels. The "Oh Boy" glazing gun is furnished only with Evertite Glazing Cement.

Grant, Neb.—The business, land and equipment of the Aurora Floral Co. have been sold by F. A. Davidson and Mrs. Davidson to Frank LaBelle, who was for eleven years connected with the Green Greenhouse Co., of Fremont, Neb.

Creal Springs, Ill.—Minnie Lilley Copeland, proprietor of the Marion Greenhouses, Marion, Ill., established in 1901, has purchased the idle establishment here known as Beal's Greenhouses, consisting of about 20,000 feet of glass. She will start up the new place with a general line of cut flowers and plants and run the two establishments in connection.

AJAX BLACK GLAZING CEMENT

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load them—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

LOW COST

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again, and we can prove it.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

PROPAGATION BY LEAVES.

A writer in a British horticultural journal points out that at the present day propagation by means of leaves is found to be quite practicable in the case of many plants, notably a number of the gesneriaceae and several of the begonias. "In the case of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine," he states, "some growers prefer to increase the plants from leaves, while others use cuttings of the young shoots. One thing to bear in mind is that where stock is limited a greater number of young plants may be grown from leaves than from cuttings. The various garden forms of Begonia Rex may also be increased in this way. In the case of these plants, several specimens may be obtained from a single leaf. The method generally employed is to take a well-matured leaf and lay it on a bed of cocoanut refuse or on a pan filled with sandy soil, holding it in position by two or three pegs. Then, with a sharp knife, the midrib is severed in three or four places and, to a lesser extent, the secondary ones. In a warm propagating case a young plant will be formed from each cut, so that a single leaf will yield several plants. Some cut up the leaves and insert them as cuttings, but this method is, as a rule, less satisfactory than the other.

"In the case of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, single leaves with their petioles are taken, these last being dibbled into the prepared soil up to the blade of the leaf.

"Gloxinias are readily propagated in the way recommended for Begonia Rex and its varieties, but in the case of the gloxinia it is best to make cuts only in the midrib. Many other gesneriaceous plants are increased in this way, but gloxinias are almost the only ones propagated by leaf cuttings, and even for these the practice is less followed than it was formerly.

"Many of the numerous succulent plants can be and are propagated from leaves—in their case a simple matter. The leaves may be pulled off the stem and dibbled as cuttings into pots of sandy soil, standing them on a greenhouse stage or in some similar position. They do not need to be kept in a close case, or even shaded. The grower must guard against the plants receiving an excess of moisture, which would cause the leaves to decay.

"Crassulas, cotyledons, Rochea falcata and others may be increased in this way. The showy-flowered Pinguicula caudata is another subject that may be propagated by means of leaf cuttings. The leaves should be dibbled into clean, well drained pots or pans filled with a mixture of peat, sphagnum moss chopped fine and silver sand. After the leaf cuttings are inserted they should be well watered and the pots or pans placed in a propagating case where gentle warmth is maintained."

The Market.

For the time of year, the average prices are excellent. This is a fair indication that the stores are doing a brisk business and using most of the production. Occasionally there is an accumulation of some kinds of stock, but it does not last long enough to reduce prices seriously. Roses and lilies of the best grades have suffered the most. All roses selling at $12 per hundred and less have a waiting market; the extras and specials do not average so well in proportion to their quality. Last week an abundance of Easter lilies came in. These were of exceptional quality and were considered real bargains at $12.50 per hundred. Many of the stores took advantage of this oversupply and staged lily windows. Callas were also overplentiful and good stock sold as low as $15 per hundred. The supply of carnations continued to be a problem to move, but Saturday most of the stores staged these flowers as their week-end leader and thus moved a large part of the supply. A strong effort is being made at the wholesale house to hold the best at $6 per hundred, but the supply of other stock at popular prices attracts the buyers and the everyday carnations remain weak.

Valley at lower prices is again in popular demand for brides' bouquets; however, sweet peas have been so widely used during the last two or three years that it is doubtful if they will ever be displaced to any extent, even though valley again becomes obtainable at low prices.

F. P. A.

Evart, Mich.—Samuel Shore says business is just beginning to pick up and that he anticipates an active season. Mr. Shore believes that city florists do not always appreciate the problems of their confreres in the small places, especially in the towns that have no factories to pay high wages. He says such florists have great difficulty in selling stock at midwinter city prices.

CYPRESS FOR STAKES AND CYPRESS FOR LABELS

A tree or plant Label is a small matter, just a thin strip of wood with notches near one end. A whole pocketful may be bought with a penny or two, yet the cost of them counts in the year's expenditures. And there's no need in buying new each year, unless you really prefer to spend your money. Get them of Cypress and they will last. So with stakes—they are made of Cypress and cost little more than those made of woods that begin to rot as soon as they are placed in the soil. Every dollar you save in these small matters stays in the bank to help swell your balance.

JUST ONE TESTIMONIAL

C. E. Robbins, 4 Vanden Bosch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y., writes: "My attention was first drawn to Cypress several years ago by using some of it for dahlia stakes, along with some pine, etc., and after the pine had rotted away the Cypress showed no sign of decay. Since then I have used it for boats and canoes, and it has been very satisfactory." This is a small matter, but it is worth while to listen to the experience of others.

HELP YOURSELF TO THE BOOKS

Vol. 3 is a greenhouse story. Vols. 4 and 20 are for farmers, containing plans for all sorts of farm outbuildings. Vol. 36 is the Carpentry Book, and 37 is the big Silo Book. ## The Two Column 78-Foot House Gives a Side Walk Of 2 Feet

Mind you there are only two columns across the entire 78 feet width, the space between which is about 40 feet.

This brings the distance between the column and post 16 feet 2 inches.

When you stand at one end of our houses and look down their length, you are impressed with the combined look of sturdiness and lightness.

You just know they have the strength to stand and withstand, and a surplus to spare for exceptional snows or blows.

As a result of which sturdiness, the glass stays tight. Does not slip.

In our next Ad will tell you some specific facts about our rafters, which are unlike other rafters used in other houses.

In the meantime remember that we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business,

What's the right thing to do about your houses?

You know the cost of greenhouse materials is higher than formerly.

Of course some men don't care about that if they are sure they can get their money's real worth. But, on the other hand, most men want to save—they want to reduce the high cost if they can.

AGMCO HOUSES DO BOTH FOR YOU.

They give you your real money's worth in materials, designs, construction, details and space economy, and they do really, absolutely and invariably reduce the high cost to reasonable cost, because the after cost is less and the durability is greater.

Of course you can't get an AGMCO house this spring, because the demand for them has been so great that the output is sold up for the first half of 1920. But—

You'd better begin planning right now for the AGMCO house you want erected this fall or next spring. Lots of growers wanted AGMCO houses erected this spring, but failed to say so until too late.

You won't repeat their experience. You'll get your request in to the AGMCO when it should go in—

The Two Column 78-Foot House Gives a Side Walk Of 2 Feet

Mind you there are only two columns across the entire 78 feet width, the space between which is about 40 feet.

This brings the distance between the column and post 16 feet 2 inches.

When you stand at one end of our houses and look down their length, you are impressed with the combined look of sturdiness and lightness.

You just know they have the strength to stand and withstand, and a surplus to spare for exceptional snows or blows.

Our All Steel Greenhouse Is a Lasting Investment

In 1914 we furnished Mr. Neil Nielsen of Mankato, Minnesota, two of our all steel greenhouses, 34 x 240 ft., and now he has ordered another house, to be attached to the present ones.

Mr. Nielsen paid more money for these all steel greenhouses than the ordinary pipe frame style would have cost him, but in the long run he will be money ahead, for they are much stronger and a better permanent investment.

The Interesting Instance of Rheinhardt & Son, of Merriam, Kansas

Merriam is five miles or so from Kansas City. The Rheinhardts are one of the oldest families in that section, and large owners of farm lands.

Year by year, Kansas City has gradually crept out their way, doubling and tripling their land values.

There came a time when a golf club wanted to rent a big slice of farm land, and so Mr. Rheinhardt and his son concluded to give up extensive farming and do a little intensive.

They already had built one of our Pipe Frame Houses by way of experiment.

It proved so successful that last fall they completed two more of the same construction.

Bought the materials of us and did their own erecting.

It was along in early November when I happened around there one morning and had a most delightful talk with both father and son.

The father had that brand of rare solid sense which comes to men who have had years of looking things straight in the face.

The son was all enthusiasm.

Not the bubbling kind, that just spills over and nothing much else. But the brand that keeps on smiling and climbing while he's smiling.

A combination of Dad and Son like that, just can't help making the cash register merrily ring up profits.

When I came away, it was with an armful of choice mum blooms, which certainly did gladden up my hotel room.

After which, sent them to the hospital to bring sunshine to some poor cuss or other.

If you are thinking of building and live within going distance of Rheinhardt & Son, take time to go and talk with them. You will sure get some solid, sound sense on greenhouse building.

Gould's "Selects" have been an example to the florists of the country that our claim, "America's Finest Peonies," is justified. This is true simply because we have specialized.

Gould's "Selects" are at your disposal continuously from May 1st to August 1st, because of our continual daily cut. The earliest blooms are cut from our most Southern Peony Farms. The next crop is produced from a farm a little farther north, and others at still higher latitudes. Gould's Peonies are therefore in crop always under ideal climatic conditions. The unusual service that we give you in growing Peonies is rounded out by the marketing service for Gould's "Select" Peonies, offered exclusively through the A. L. Randall Company.

Order early from A. L. RANDALL COMPANY, Chicago, Ill.

Just as we have specialized in the growing of Peonies and their proper handling before shipment, so has the A. L. Randall Company specialized in the marketing, packing and shipping of these flowers. So important do we consider this phase of the question, that we have selected the A. L. Randall Company as the exclusive marketers of Gould's "Select" Peonies. Owing to constantly increasing demands, our sincere advice is that you order early.

This is the age of specialization, and through specialization men have evolved better products in all lines of endeavor. We are successful Peony specialists, and for years the

Gould's "Selects" are at your disposal continuously from May 1st to August 1st, because of our continual daily cut. The earliest blooms are cut from our most Southern Peony Farms. The next crop is produced from a farm a little farther north, and others at still higher latitudes. Gould's Peonies are therefore in crop always under ideal climatic conditions. The unusual service that we give you in growing Peonies is rounded out by the marketing service for Gould's "Select" Peonies, offered exclusively through the A. L. Randall Company.

Order early from A. L. RANDALL COMPANY, Chicago, Ill.

Just as we have specialized in the growing of Peonies and their proper handling before shipment, so has the A. L. Randall Company specialized in the marketing, packing and shipping of these flowers. So important do we consider this phase of the question, that we have selected the A. L. Randall Company as the exclusive marketers of Gould's "Select" Peonies. Owing to constantly increasing demands, our sincere advice is that you order early.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases.....$1.50 each

Three-quarter size cases..... 1.00 each

Small size cases..... .50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

New Carnations

For 1921

Edna

Ever since Mr. Zweifel exhibited his new scarlet carnation, Edna, at the Indianapolis A. C. S. meeting in 1917, we have kept our eye on it. When we learned that he had sold his business, all except the stock of Edna, we at once opened negotiations for the privilege of disseminating it. We had it sized up from the beginning as a commercial variety. Its fine color, rigid stem and great substance appealed to us and a visit at its home verified Mr. Zweifel's statements regarding productiveness, etc. To make doubly sure, we grew some two hundred plants here during the past season and they have more than verified our good opinion of the variety. We are now receiving the young stock and will disseminate Edna next winter. A portion of the stock will be grown for bloom, but most of it will be kept cut back for propagating and we will be able to deliver it in quantity.

THE HARVESTER

Maine Sunshine

We will have growing here next season a large bed of Maine Sunshine, Strout's fine new yellow. This already famous variety has attracted attention at all the principal exhibitions these past two years, winning medals and prizes, among which were the Dorner Memorial Medal, last January, also the Kerr Special for the best keeping carnation. In the latter competition it scored 90% perfect after being packed up for 93 hours and on exhibition 30 hours. We couldn't wait another year for it, so we arranged for enough stock to plant a bed this coming season.

The Harvester

While we were doing our crossing in 1915, it occurred to us that if we could secure a Matchless with the speed and earliness of White Wonder, or a White Wonder with some of the good qualities of Matchless, we would have a winner. We pollinated a number of blooms, crossing the two varieties both ways, and out of a large number of seedlings we have saved this one as being the best. It seems to just about combine all the good qualities of both parents. It comes into crop as early as White Wonder. The color is pure white. The calyx does not split. It propagates as easy as Matchless and makes a fine plant in the field. The Harvester should make a hit with the grower who wants an easy doer, a heavy producer and a good keeper. We will have ample stock to deliver in large quantity. Ten per cent of next season's propagation is already booked up.

We will be glad to book your order for the above three varieties at $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1,000. Come and inspect the stock at any time. Order early for early delivery.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

HOW TRADE MADE MOTHERS' DAY

In Mothers' day one can watch the beginning and growth, in little more than a decade, of a leader among the trade's big business days. The story of past achievement will inspire to yet greater future development of this ample opportunity to bring the people to flowers and flowers to the people.

AMONG the many ingenious uses to which motion pictures have been put is the recording of the growth of flowers. Separate photographs taken at successive stages of development are combined in one film to show the visible unfolding of the bloom. Somewhat the same kind of record might be made of the growth of Mothers' day since its germination in 1908. The story of that growth is a fascinating tribute to the hard work and skillful advertising which the trade has done all over the country. To take the tiny seed of an idea thrown to the winds in the "vox pop" column of a Philadelphia newspaper, bring it to earth by appreciating its widespread commercial possibilities and cultivate it carefully in newspaper advertising and other publicity until it develops the notable business of the present Mothers' day—that is indeed an achievement. That is what has been done by the trade since The Review brought Mothers' day to its notice.

One day in the early part of May, 1908, a letter came to the office of The Review from Chapin Bros., Lincoln, Neb. It enclosed the proclamation of the mayor of Lincoln recommending that Sunday, May 10, be observed as Mothers' day, that on that day every man and boy should "wear a white flower in honor of his mother" and that flowers be sent to invalids and orphans, both in their homes and in hospitals. The letter of Chapin Bros., which was published in The Review of May 14, 1908, and constituted the introduction of Mothers' day to the trade as a whole, read as follows:

"Again Nebraska is ahead. We enclose a proclamation that cleaned out every florist in Lincoln, cleaner than has been done for years.

"It's a sentiment that appeals to every man and boy, and people bought flowers that never bought before. The florists' stores were crowded from early Saturday morning until Sunday night.

"We hope to make it a holiday for the United States. Crowd it and push it; it has Memorial day beat a mile, and comes when flowers are cheap and plenty. Get a swing on your pen, but give Lincoln, Neb., the credit. We grow big men and big ideas here."

Hunting a Parent for Mothers' Day.

The breeziness of this letter was but the beginning of a wind which blew other letters into the office of The Review, inquiring about the origin of the day. While Mothers' day certainly did some tall growing in Lincoln, Neb., it was a hybrid in origin and the rest of its parentage was yet to be discovered.

membered the name of the sender. The clue seemed to end in an impasse. However, hope was not lost. Uncle Sam's postal service afforded one opportunity. In those days its efficiency was notable and the ingenuity of its system admirable. A registered letter requires a signature before it can be delivered. If one were addressed to "Secretary of the Mothers' Day Association, Philadelphia," where would the postoffice deliver it, or would it come back to the sender as undeliverable? Here was a chance. The Review seized it. Such a letter was mailed. Days later, a reply came. The postoffice had discovered the founder of Mothers' day, and the letter in response, from Miss Anna Jarvis, at last revealed the holiday's origin.

The story of the letter which Miss Jarvis sent to the correspondents' column of a Philadelphia newspaper, suggesting that the second Sunday in May be observed each year as Mothers' day, has been told several times before. The idea came to her from her desire to commemorate the death of her own mother.

The Seed Sown.

As a result of her letter to the Philadelphia newspaper, the celebration of Mothers' day occurred Sunday, May 10, 1908, in Los Angeles, Dallas, Brooklyn, Providence and other cities. The mayors of Omaha, Lincoln, Hastings and Fremont, in Nebraska, and Council Bluffs, in Iowa, issued special Mothers' day proclamations. Brand Whitlock, then mayor of Toledo, O., directed special attention to it. But it was not until the year following, when The Review pointed out the possibilities of the day for the whole florists' trade, that Mothers' day began to receive adequate recognition.

In its issue of April 29, 1909, The Review explained to the trade the opportunity that lay before florists. Here was a day to which the strongest of all sentiments was attached. If its observance could be made general, tremendous possibilities awaited the trade. But it was a frail child, with no one

The Review's Pioneer Suggestion for a Mothers' Day Advertisement, in 1910.

The Review started on a hunt for it. "Mother" naturally suggested "woman" and a member of the staff of The Review spent much time canvassing the chief women's clubs of Chicago in an effort to trace the origin of this new day. They willingly approved it, but could shed no light upon its beginnings. Neither could the Federation of Women's Clubs or the Congress of Mothers. The search seemed fruitless.

Stumbling on a Clue.

But a visit on another matter to the editorial office of a Chicago daily led to the chance discovery that a circular about Mothers' day had been received from Philadelphia. The circular, however, could not be found and no one rebut a Philadelphia woman to sustain it. Should the trade give it nourishment and life, the reward would be a hundredfold to florists. This The Review pointed out, and the trade warmly responded.

By the requests of florists, mayors in various cities issued proclamations, reviving interest in the day after it had lapsed since the year before. Heads of the G. A. R. and the Sons of Veterans requested members to wear flowers on Mothers' day. Governors proclaimed its observance. Local trade bodies were active everywhere at The Review's suggestion and the results of that first campaign, in 1909, were remarkable.

All Flowers in All Colors.

In its issue of April 21, 1910, to aid further the trade's development of the day, The Review offered a suggestion for a Mothers' day advertisement, in which the individual retailer's name could be substituted for "Posey & Blossom" and any other necessary adaptations made. This advertisement, which is reproduced on the preceding page, was used, in part or in whole, by many florists and, directly and indirectly, influenced most of the newspaper advertising for that day which was "to honor the best Mother who ever lived—your own." An essential feature of this suggested advertisement was the lines:

"A white flower for Mother's memory.
A bright flower for Mothers living.

The inclusion of these lines was due to the fact that Miss Jarvis, in her original plan, had suggested the use of white carnations as the most fitting token for Mothers' day. The Review realized that the observance of this day would far outrun any possible supply of white carnations and that, consequently, the development of the day would be greatly retarded, if not made impossible, so long as a single flower of a particular color was regarded as the only proper one for use at that time. So The Review urged florists to suggest that other flowers were equally well fitted to convey the message and that a variety of color would give greater pleasure and brightness to the day and make easier the satisfying of different tastes. Reports each year since then have shown the dominating use of this couplet and its effect upon the character of Mothers' day business. In 1913 the wording was slightly altered and the order changed to throw emphasis on the colored flowers, as follows:

Bright flowers for Mothers living;
White flowers for Mother's memory.

In the following years the couplet was put in the following rhymed form:

For Mothers at home, flowers bright;
For Mother's memory, flowers white.

Such is the history of the trade slogan for Mothers' day.

Mothers' Day Publicity.

In one of the first years of the development of Mothers' day two Maine towns learned of the day from another town near-by. They decided that they would not be outdone. So they celebrated the following Sunday as Mothers' day. But each succeeding year has seen Mothers' day firmly established on the second Sunday in May.

Chapin Bros., Lincoln, Neb., whose letter in 1908 first called attention to the day, wrote of Mothers' day of 1913:

Every flower in the city was sold, and of every color. There was as much call for colored as for white flowers and it was the easiest big day of the year. Saturday's sales this year were seventy-five per cent of the total Easter Saturday sales.

All we have to do now is to see that the governor and mayor issue their proclamations, and have the ministers announce it in the churches, and publish a little advertisement, and the crowds come.

One point greatly in favor of Mothers' day is that its appeal is so broad and, at the same time, so elemental that social agencies like the church and the school have gladly worked for its extension at florists' suggestion entirely on moral grounds. Much of its advertising has thus been free and spontaneous rather than paid for and deliberate. As already pointed out, fraternal organizations have given it wide publicity. Organized labor has endorsed it, through the editorial columns of the American Federationist, the official or-view of last week. Notable examples of such advertising appear each year and multiply season after season. The larger cities have done much in this respect, but any town having more than one retailer supplies a field for coöperative effort.

The seed of Mothers' day, sown long ago by The Review, has been well cultivated by the trade. Further progress of this holiday is assured by the extent to which the members of the trade, individually and coöperatively, advertise the day to their customers, find new ways in which to impress it on the public's mind, and methods for developing the day's business. The trade has made a holiday that is of immense benefit to its members and given the public an occasion for the observation of a high sentiment.

POETIC PROPAGANDA.

Combining two arts, W. J. Olds is able to aid one with the other. Examples thereof have been printed before in these columns. Now he comes with a poetic offering for Mothers' day, which he, and other florists if they wish, will use to spread the propaganda of flowers for the second Sunday in May. Here it is:

MOTHERS' DAY.

Let every heart today remember mother,
The sweetest word yet framed by human tongue,
A truer lover yet than any other
Beneath the skies, since this old world was young.
The fondest memories of our hearts enshrine her,
Her breast, our fount of life, our couch of state.
Ah! if today our arms may not entwine her,
We still may wear a flower for mother's sake.
Though far from mother's arms you may have wandered,
Yea! though the skies have curtained her from view,
Let not her wealth of love be thankless squandered;
Her fondest, latest prayer was still for you.
So if today a flower you may not send her,
Token of love, her joy to consummate,
Let memory still this loyalty extend her,
And wear a flower today for mother's sake.
—W. J. Olds.

BALTIMORE'S CAMPAIGN.

Gets Under Way.

The fifth city to inaugurate a local publicity campaign, tying up with the national campaign and following the examples set by Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee and Buffalo, is Baltimore, Md. The florists of Baltimore recently formed an organization, named the Associated Florists of Baltimore, under which they are conducting their campaign.

The plan which this organization uses to procure funds is the same as that used in other cities, the percentage plan. The growers pay one-half of one per cent and the retailers pay one per cent on all stock that passes through the wholesale houses. While not every florist in Baltimore is a member of the organization and contributes to the campaign, though all reap its benefits, it is hoped that all the florists will be in it before the campaign gets well under way.

This association had $4,000 to start with and no doubt this sum will be doubled soon. The enthusiastic members of the organization say that before long the members will insist that the percentage be doubled.

The task of educating the people of Baltimore to "Say It with Flowers" has been entrusted to the Deatel Advertising Service, an organization which gan of the American Federation of Labor. Each year an increasing number of state governors and city mayors issue proclamations calling for the celebration of Mothers' day. And, finally, Congress has passed a resolution recommending its observance.

Working Together for the Day.

One natural feature of the growth of Mothers' day, as of the growth of the trade, has been the increased use of coöperative advertising, a medium of publicity briefly described in The Rehas gone into the campaign with heart and soul. In line with the advertising effort, arrangements have been made with the largest banks, trust companies and theaters to have floral displays in their reception rooms and lobbies. These displays will bear the sign, "Say It with Flowers."

First Lesson.

The public's first lesson, in the form of an advertisement, eleven and a half inches deep and three columns wide, appeared Tuesday, April 20, in the Baltimore Sun. This advertisement, reproduced on this page, made its appeal for the desire of flowers with the coming of spring.

Another product of the coöperative campaign is a weekly offering, at the stores of all members of the Associated Florists of Baltimore, of a box of flowers for $2. Saturday morning, April 17, an advertisement, reproduced on page 18, was inserted in the Baltimore Sun announcing the special Saturday box of flowers. It is said that this advertisement is to appear each Saturday morning and in a short time will, no doubt, be the means of bringing back many Baltimore people to the habit that was lost when the dollar box went out. To move as much stock as possible through the regular channels and keep the surpluses from the street men at the week-end and in time of glut is the motive of these sales.

ATTENTION, GROWERS!

We Are Now Ready for Action.

There are, in every community, some men with a vision for the future of their business, who can look and work toward perfecting it with not altogether a selfish purpose, who are willing to contribute some time for the good of the trade at large.

I am writing this with a view to getting such men in each community interested in the forming of a local growers' organization to work with the National Flower Growers' Association.

If you already have a growers' organization in your vicinity, of either plant or cut flower growers, the writer would like to get in touch with its officers with reference to having a committee appointed whose duty it would be to come to Cleveland, O., next August to assist in the adoption of a constitution and in perfecting a permanent organization of the National Flower Growers' Association.

We are exceedingly desirous of having a number of locals organized, at least temporarily, before the national convention in August, so that a committee can be named from among the growers of each locality, which will have a part in this work at Cleveland.

The writer will be glad to assist growers in this work if you will kindly address him at 501 Bank of Edwardsville building, Edwardsville, Ill.

May we not depend upon you live wires in the progress of trade matters to comply with this request promptly?

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

APPEAL FOR SOLIDARITY.

As a newcomer in the business and as one who is only in it temporarily, there are many things that are new to me and rather amusing and tragic at the same time. My father has been a florist for a great many years, but never had I been in close enough touch with the entire business to realize so many of the intricate parts. I should like to make one suggestion, that will do much toward putting the business as a whole on a better basis, and that is, have a "sense of honor" code.

We have in this vicinity, and I presume there are others of the same type in every locality, florists who have established a peculiar form of competition. The market price is a certain figure in Buffalo, the same in New York, the same in Jamestown, Elmira and, in fact, all of the large controlling wholesale houses. A retail florist who grows his stock has more than he can dispose of; he finds out where the local wholesale florist is selling, rushes in and underbids the market price by, not 1 cent, but 2 or 3 cents, in order to break in. As a good many of our retail florists who have only stores have not had the experience of the hard labor connected with the growing end of the game and money is their only reason for being in the business, their word of contract is of no value as long as they can get cheap goods. They cut their regular wholesaler, even though the wholesaler has given them a reduced rate during the busy season because they have taken the entire stock. The wholesaler must either oust this little retailer (who in time of glut has too much stock for his local trade) from the wholesale business or else hold him to the market price. There are many men who think, because they are getting something for their surplus, it is better than nothing and therefore try to "get something," even though it is under cost of production. Their brains work about like that in their business.

Until these florists realize that solidarity in business methods is as important as the petty cash handled for surplus stock, there will be fewer and fewer men going into this business. Just this morning my regular buyer called and said that if I would not give him carnations for 2 cents (market price is 6) I need not ship. Stock was practically ready to box. He had given me the warning three days before, so that I knew that the other florists in the vicinity had found out where I was shipping. Do you call this competition? It is not my idea of what any business could term legitimate competition at least.

E. K. Angell.

CUT PRICE CARNATIONS.

We have been reading about the united effort of the wholesale and retail florists of Chicago in making a uniform cut price on carnations for certain days. We should like to state our experience when we had a heavy cut of carnations and were not able to ship any of them on account of the railroad strike.

We advertised that Friday and Saturday, March 19 and 20, carnations would be sold at 75 cents per dozen and two dozen would be given to each church that would call for them. We had a big trade and furnished sixteen churches with the flowers. The following Friday and Saturday, March 26 and 27, we advertised them for sale at 50 cents per dozen and that two dozen would be given to each church that called for them. We sold over 2,000 and gave to twenty-five churches. We believe that this is the best and cheapest advertising we ever did.

E. B. Morgan Floral Co.

ABOUT SUNDAY CLOSING.

It has been noted in The Review that numerous stores throughout the country are going to adopt the plan of Sunday closing. Many have had that rule for a long time. Would it not be wise for the rest of us to adhere to it?

When once the public learns that all stores will be closed, customers will make an effort to order on Saturday. If grocery stores were open on Sunday, they would be thronged, but the public has learned, in that case, to buy on Saturday or go without. Various other sorts of stores could do big business on Sunday, if they were to put before all else that slight material gain which would be theirs. But there are other things to be considered.

If we are to demand respect for our profession, we must be independent—not insolent, but self-respecting—and no man can be that by being a constant slave to the whims of others. Sunday is the day which has been set aside to close all shops, a day of rest, and by keeping open our stores on this day we are putting ourselves on the level with the peanut vender on the corner, who finds it necessary to snatch at the passing pennies of the more independent persons as they pass on their outings on Sunday. E. E. Temperley.

KOEHLER IN GERMANY.

In view of the present demand for cyclamen seed in this country, the report of the visit of Albert Koehler, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, to the German cyclamen growers, which appeared in these columns two weeks ago, was read with particular interest by the trade. One of the establishments which he visited was that of Ferd. Fischer, at Wiesbaden, who was widely known in this country as one of the biggest sources of supply of cyclamen seed before the war. The illustration on this page shows Mr. Koehler standing just in front of Ferd. Fischer in an aisle in one of the German grower's big cyclamen houses, this one filled with salmon-colored blooms for seed. To the right is seen a member of the second generation, Carl Fischer. In common with the other growers of cyclamen seed, Ferd. Fischer has more orders than he can possibly fill this season. Whether the supposed demand is due to duplicate orders placed by American seed houses with several growers or whether there is so striking a shortage as there seems to be, will be determined later.

Mansfield, O.—Edward M. Lintolt has sold his interest in the Mansfield Floral Co. to his brother-in-law, Carl Kopanka, of Howell, Mich. He has not decided where he will locate, but will remain with the firm until the new member arrives.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.—The greenhouses of the Jagers Floral Co. were destroyed by hail April 16. A crop of tomato plants, ready for market, was ruined. The hail beat down and broke the greater part of the stock in the houses. The loss was estimated at $3,000.

HELPING HORTICULTURE

OUR trades or professions are directly interested in ornamental horticulture. The business of the florist is to produce or grow plants and flowers and to use them, especially the latter, in artistic arrangements for various purposes; his chief work may be described as the forcing of flowering plants. The nurseryman is also interested in the production of plants, but particularly plants for the decoration of the yard, estate, park or avenue. It is the business of the landscape gardener or landscape architect, whichever you choose to call him, to paint living pictures, using for his material the plants grown for his use by the nurseryman and florist. The gardener's forte is mainly to care for plants and to carry out the ideas of the landscape architect. The landscape architect and the gardener differ from the members of the first two groups by not being venders of the plants they grow.

One may become proficient in any of these trades or professions either by the apprentice method or by means of a college training. I am omitting mention of the vocational school, since it has not become so important in America as in Europe.

The apprentice usually starts out at an early age to receive his training by direct contact with his work or, in other words, by means of manual labor. His first work is usually washing pots, pulling weeds, wheeling soil or some similar occupation. He continues at his labor from day to day, absorbing what he may, but mainly doing as he is told without being given any explanation. If he is faithful in his work, he is too tired at the end of the day to attempt to improve his mind or his work by study, unless he is an exceptional man; then he studies in addition to his work and so advances more rapidly. At the end of a long term of years the apprentice may be judged to be proficient enough to be placed in class A.

Learning Why.

The college man, on the other hand, has been continuing his education, training his mind and collecting data and learning how to use them. He is working at his mental up-building without being hampered by overtired muscles. At the end of his college career he is ready to take up his work, but from a different viewpoint; he not only strives to do things, but tries, also, to understand the why and the wherefore.

The address, on "Educational and Experimental Work," delivered by Professor H. B. Dorner, head of the division of floriculture of the University of Illinois, Urbana, at the meeting of the executive committee of the Canadian Horticultural Association, Hamilton, Ont., April 12, 1920.

To express it in another way, the apprentice, at an early age and with no training, attempts to climb the ladder of success. The climb is a hard one. The college man, on the other hand, prepares himself for the ordeal and, when he begins to climb, climbs with greater ease and rapidity.

Three Fields of College Work.

All educational institutions, or at least those giving attention to agriculture, should offer courses in ornamental horticulture and every man interested in floriculture, landscape gardening or nursery work should be back of them, insisting on the best of instructional work and research. Improvement in agriculture helps to feed the people better, but ornamental horticulture, in conjunction with music, painting and literature, stands for higher civilization.

Good staffs and well equipped research laboratories are essential and should be established, since the average commercial man has neither the time nor the training to do accurate experimental work.

The work of any school or college attempting to be of service to ornamental horticulture may be divided into three branches—instruction, research and extension.

If instruction in ornamental horticulture is to be offered, shall it be vocational, that is, teach the student how to do things, or shall the university method be employed and the student taught why to do things? I am of the opinion that the two should be combined. Above all things, teach the theory, but add enough of the practical to help fix the theory. There need not be enough of the practical to lower the work below the dignity of university grade, unless the course be purely vocational. Where nothing but the theory is offered the student often loses the benefit of it before he has an opportunity to apply it.

There is another distinction between a vocational and college course that should be recognized. The graduate from a vocational school is recognized as a machinist or a gardener, while the college graduate, at the end of his four to six years, has merely laid a foundation upon which to build. The tendency of the employer is to expect too much of the college graduate and if, after graduation, he is not able to do everything that it took his employer from twenty to forty years to learn, his education is considered valueless. The employer, on the other hand, who looks upon the college training merely as a foundation soon perceives its value.

The question might well be asked, then: "What is the student to study in college in order to fit himself for his chosen branch in horticulture?" The courses which the student will choose will naturally come under three heads: First, informational courses; second, courses to train the mind, and third, courses which will teach him to express his thoughts clearly and forcibly.

Getting Facts.

I have intentionally placed the informational courses first, not because they are of the greatest importance, but because they are easily recognized as being essential to the best understanding of the work. If it is merely information that the student wants, however, there is no need for his spending his time and money at college. He can easily get that by reading and by contact with his fellow men.

The development of the reasoning powers, the ability to think clearly and the ability to draw conclusions correctly are surely the most important. These powers can best be de-

When the subject matter is to be considered, it may be taken for granted think. It outsells S. A. Nutt because it has a darker ring in the leaf and last year it was full of blooms when S. A. Nutt had few showing.

J. T. & S.—Ill.

I cannot see any difference between the variety sent and S. A. Nutt. In comparing it with our own stock of S. A. Nutt, I find they are as much alike as two peas. Referring to the blooming qualities of S. A. Nutt, we have not found any variety of its color that will throw as many flowers during the summer. The principal fault that we have to find with Nutt is its tall growth, especially when planted in partial shade. As regards blooming and furnishing cuttings, we find it about tops the list of geraniums.

LEAF-SPOT ON GERANIUMS.

I am sending some geranium leaves that are affected by some disease. Could you suggest a treatment to overcome this disease?

E. S.—Ind.

The geranium leaves are affected with leaf-spot. Among the principal causes for this trouble are the following conditions: Overcrowding the plants on the benches, wet foliage during dark weather, and low temperature and damp atmosphere in the house. To overcome the trouble, remove the affected leaves and give the plants more room on the bench, so that the air can circulate freely among them. Follow clean cultural methods. Water the plants with care, as they need it, and ventilate as freely as the weather conditions will allow. Spraying the affected plants with Bordeaux mixture will check the disease and prevent it from spreading.

M. P.

GERANIUMS CHILLED.

I am sending you three geranium plants to find out what the trouble is with them. The top leaves showed tiny light spots through them. I sprayed them with Bordeaux mixture and they seemed to do well. I repotted them and they are coming along nicely in bloom, but the edges of the leaves are turning red. What is the cause and is there a remedy?

L. E. B.—N. Y.

The geranium plants appear to have been chilled. A low temperature, together with overwatering, may also be the cause of the edges of the leaves turning red. The roots and stem of the plants seem to be all right and the fact that the top leaves are most affected leads me to believe that your plants have been touched with frost at some time. I should advise raising the temperature a little and withholding water from the plants until the condition of the soil shows that they are absolutely in need of it.

M. P.

SOIL TROUBLES GERANIUMS.

We are sending some geranium leaves showing bad color, due, we think, to disease or to the soil. The plants did well until recently, when some of the leaves showed a reddish tinge, finally turning yellow. If this is caused by the soil, would an application of lime to the top of the pots be of advantage or, if it is disease, what can be done? We also notice some of our calceolarias, pelargoniums and hydrangeas showing too light green foliage. Could this condition also be caused by the soil?

R. & S.—Mich.

The trouble with the geraniums may be caused by either of the following conditions: Sour soil, overwatering and low temperature after repotting, before the plants have had time to gain control of the new soil; or, crowding the plants and keeping them extremely wet at the roots. The trouble will also occur when the plants have been neglected in the repotting and held in small pots crowded together on the bench, thus causing the lower leaves to become soft, so that when spread out they turn yellow.

To overcome the trouble I should suggest the following treatment: Loosen up the surface soil a little, so that the air can penetrate into it, and then spread the plants out on the bench so that there is about a 2-inch clear space around each pot; water sparingly until the roots are firmly established in the soil, and, last but not least, give plenty of ventilation as weather conditions permit. This is a backward season for all plant growth, both inside and outside, but it is reasonable to expect better weather with bright sunshine from now on, which will help geranium plants greatly and, if the treatment suggested is followed, they should come through all right.

According to the condition of the calceolarias, pelargoniums and hydrangeas, as described, the trouble evidently is caused by sour soil, due to excessive watering, and I should advise a treatment for these similar to that suggested for the geraniums. All of these plants are free growers, but they need careful watering, because as soon as the soil becomes a little sour or stagnant, the growth of the plant is checked and the foliage quickly turns yellow.

M. P.

S. A. NUTT AFTER ALL.

We are sending you a geranium which we should like to have identified. We have had it for about four years and we find it produces more cuttings than S. A. Nutt and is a shade darker, we

Sweet Peas

SWEET PEAS YELLOWING.

I should like to know what the trouble is with my sweet peas. I have been giving them cow manure water every ten days and several days ago I gave them a light mulching of soot. In a week's time they turned yellow in spots; the foliage looks as if it had been scalded. We have had a great deal of cloudy weather this winter, but had sunshine all last week and the temperature in the house rose to 96 degrees, with the ventilators open. I have a good crop of buds on the plants, but the leaves are yellow two-thirds of the way up the plant and the stem is a dark brown.

H. L. U.—Kan.

I am inclined to think that the top-dressing of soot is mainly responsible for the condition of your sweet peas. The high temperature would hardly be responsible for the browning and yellowing of the foliage, but an overdose of liquid manure with a top-dressing of soot added would make the plants soft. The ammonia in the soot would be largely responsible for the damage, particularly if applied on a cloudy day which was followed by a clear, hot one, causing a great variation in temperature. Under such conditions, abundant ventilation and plenty of moisture in the atmosphere are necessary; if these were afforded, your feeding is surely at fault. Under the circumstances, I fear there is little you can do to improve your plants, except giving them fresh air, avoiding feeding and providing as equable a temperature as possible. I would suggest trying a mulching of some old, well decayed manure, which would prevent the soil from drying out so much and help to keep the roots cool; it would also feed the plants moderately, but not enough to make them soft.

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

FUNERAL PIECES.

Search for Novelty.

The progressive florist will always be on the alert to give his patrons something new and different in funeral offerings. The public becomes just as tired of the same wreaths, crosses, stars and anchors as you would of sitting down to the same dishes for your meals on a given day each week. There are some florists who go on from year to year arranging the same old designs in exactly the same old way. It may be a bit far-fetched to say that the public likes a change of style in funeral offerings as they do in everything else. You may say that when people are in bereavement they are not thinking much about style. This is just the time when they are most sensitive and quickest to notice anything that may be unique or out of the ordinary, and they are just as quick to note any shortcoming or defect.

Even if you are obliged to use some of the old and oft-used designs, don't be afraid to arrange them differently. Some of the best florists of the country are today using baskets for funeral offerings, made in such a manner that the only thing that distinguishes them from use for some festive occasion is the surroundings and the word "Sympathy" instead of "Congratulations" on the card.

Family Offerings.

Always remember that in every funeral design, and, in fact, every arrangement of flowers you may make for any purpose, you are giving someone a lesson in how to "Say It with Flowers." Let us see for a moment what this education amounts to. I will cite just one instance, how one woman in Philadelphia impressed on the mind of the public that the proper thing to wear on Mothers' day was white carnations. It is impossible to tell the time, money and effort that have been spent to counteract this impression and it has not been entirely eradicated yet.

But let us get down to the actual offerings themselves. In this article I am only going to speak of the larger, or perhaps the more expensive, ones, those that would come from the immediate family or close friends. Smaller designs and those that can be arranged in times of scarcity and high prices, at a comparatively low price, will be taken up in a later article.

Making the Pall.

The pall is perhaps the first thing mentioned in a family conference when it meets to talk flowers. Often the entire family will pool their contributions in order to have something fine. I know of nothing in which the florist has a better opportunity to display his artistic ability than in one of these. At the same time there is nothing that shows more clearly how slow some florists are to learn. Only last winter I heard of one being made for a prominent man on wire chicken netting. In these days it is possible to get netting in the regular sizes from any supply house. The size I like best is  $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7$  feet; this does not interfere too much with the pallbearers' handling the casket. I can remember the time when it was necessary to go around the docks and buy enough seine to make one.

Have a frame much like one of the old quilting frames our mothers used. Run a row of smilax, or whatever green you are going to use for a bed, around the edges. Fill the center well, having it well wired. You are now ready for the flowers. These will only be limited by the price you are receiving for the pall.

A description of what I considered the finest piece of floral art I ever saw will perhaps be as good as anything I could say on this subject. While this was an expensive piece of work, the principle can be worked out at almost any price. In the center was worked out a cross of orchids; remember, no frame was used. The orchids were tied to the netting just as the smilax was. This was about thirty or thirty-five inches long. Then a border about four inches wide, of valley, was run around the entire pall, about twelve inches from the edge, giving it the appearance of a blanket, which the pall is often called. Inside each corner of this border an orchid wreath about twelve inches in diameter was worked; these hung over corner posts of a specially constructed casket. Then the entire green bed was dotted over with maiden-hair fern. When it was in place the four wreaths hung on each corner of the casket, with the cross in the center, and the border of valley came just about to the handlebars. There was nothing gaudy about it; its very simplicity made one feel that it was the work of a true artist. The most careful measurements had to be observed in this particular pall. This should be done in every case; access to the casket can always be had from the undertaker.

Casket Cover.

Then there is the casket cover. Most florists use a wire design for this. Often it is in two parts; the foot can be placed on the casket as soon as it is received, and the head put on when the casket is closed. Again I will describe what in my estimation is one of the finest casket covers you can make. This is made by a florist who only uses a design when she cannot avoid it. It is nothing more than a spray with sago leaves for a back, made from both ends and tied in the center. It covers the entire top of the casket. The point I wish to emphasize is, could you get such an effect if a frame were used?

Casket Cross.

Another popular design for the family is a casket cross. Again the possibilities are only limited by the price, and space will only permit me to describe one. Have your cross mossed so that it will be half round; that is, as though it were made from a sapling cut from the woods. Cover this with English ivy leaves, but let the leaves be selected with care. Some people oil them with olive oil. Don't do it, for it gives your work an artificial appearance. To oil them you have to take each leaf separately. It is just as easy to take a sponge and water, and wash each one separately; you can do one as quickly as the other. But now comes the important part, the finish. A spray of Easter lilies, with some myosotis on your background of ivy, makes a fine design. Any good combination will do. This can be worked out in galax or magnolia leaves, but try the ivy once and see if you will ever be satisfied with the others. And remember, let your work always be neat.

BIG STEAMER MONTHS.

The next few months are going to be as busy ones as retail florists who cater to the steamer business in ocean ports have experienced, even in pre-war years. All cabins and berths are booked for three months ahead on outgoing boats and the travelers are not the summer-time excursionists of old, but all of the wealthy class, for whom orders for bon voyage tokens are many.

The demands for passage to Europe are so great that all of the liners operated by the three largest steamship companies sailing before the middle of July have been booked full. The International Mercantile Marine Co., the Cunard Line and the French Line, the three largest carriers of passengers, announced last week that virtually all of their cabins and berths had been reserved for sailings scheduled up until the latter part of July. While it may be possible to obtain passage on some of the ships by virtue of cancellations and eleventh-hour changes, the steamship companies admit that they can not assure advance accommodations.

In the pre-war days, when the steamship lines were seeking to attract tourists by bargain offers, a large percentage of the travelers were school teachers and college students. The character of the tourist trade has changed. It is generally admitted now that only the rich are traveling, because the rates of passage are much higher and the living expenses in Europe are soaring. In spite of these seeming obstacles, the steamship lines are deluged with Americans who want to go to Europe and with the more well-to-do foreign-born who desire to return for a visit to the land of their nativity. These are the classes for whom bon voyage tokens are ordered from florists and the business for outgoing steamers will be large for the next few months, yielding warm-weather profits to the florists who make efforts to get this business, either at the ports or by telegraph from inland cities and towns.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM.

After the last few years of constructive work of the F. T. D., on the enduring foundation which had previously been built and on which our F. T. D. has flourished and is still furthering its purposes, may we not feel doubly proud of our accomplishment and progress?

With the ever growing volume of telegraph business in flowers, who can afford to say that he will not join the association? During the last year many vicissitudes have arisen, due to strikes, storms, etc., which would have made the sending of flowers impossible, yet through our organization we were able to cope with almost every situation.

Occasionally, however, a florist sends an order to someone who evidently has not the slightest conception of business. A floral piece is ordered and, because of the scarcity of flowers, or something else, several days afterward a note will come saying that it was impossible to fill the order, the recipient not having the foresight to use something else to fill the want as best he could.

The purpose of this article is to urge that in the event of your receiving an order, regardless of conditions, you fill it as best you can, but send something, so that the customer on the other end will feel that you did the best you could. Do not come back with the answer, "No flowers to fill your order." Use leaves, foliage, plants, or whatever possible, under the circumstances, but do something to prove that at least you had some conception of the other fellow's feelings. This will go a long way towards helping our F. T. D. orders.

Unquestionably many of you have had this experience or a similar one and if this simple remedy is applied to the case it will go a long way toward helping the small difficulties we have had happen several times.

With the hope that this will attract the attention of those who have had this occur and that they will profit by past experience and the desire to remedy one of the petty troubles that have crept into our F. T. D. business, I feel that we are to be congratulated on the wonderful strides already made. We are also proud of the fact that florists generally are on the job in regard to the promptness of meeting their obligations when bills are due one another. This is particularly gratifying, as it is one of the most encouraging steps to furthering progress. It reminds me of John Randolph, who said, "I have discovered the philosopher's stone that turns everything into gold. It is, pay as you go."

This is one of the essential steps to progress; so keep it up for further success.

AMERICAN LEGION PIECE.

New organizations call for new styles of funeral pieces and the latest is for American Legion pieces. Of course, the organization's pin serves as the basis for a good design. This was used in a piece made by C. I. Switzer, proprietor of the Monticello Floral Co., at Monticello, Ind., for the funeral of a former soldier in that town. The piece showed a white star raised in a field of blue immortelles, with a raised red wreath around it. The finished product measured five feet over all.

FOR CALIFORNIA WEDDING.

A casual look at the illustration on this page would give you the impression that somebody had a nice garden, but it is not a garden scene, it is a California wedding decoration. The wedding of Miss Arabella Schwerin and Lawrence McCreery at San Mateo, Cal., April 10, was one of the most brilliant social events ever held in California. The floral decorations were supplied by the MacRorie-McLaren Co., of San Francisco. Five men from this firm's store and the entire nursery force worked for two days carrying out the elaborate scheme of decorating the church and the Schwerin home and transforming the grounds into a mass of blooming plants.

In the landscape work 300 Cineraria hybrida grandiflora plants, forty rhododendron and twenty-five large blue hydrangea plants, which were kept over from Easter for the purpose, were used. In the house about thirty dozen cut Easter lilies, ten dozen potted lilies, fifty rhododendron plants and eight dozen palms of all sizes, together with 100 pots of lotus for window-box work and two dozen rambler roses, were used. On the tables, part of which were in the house and part on the lawn, spring flowers were utilized, mammoth tulips and long-stemmed anemones predominating. In the church the main decoration at the altar consisted of Easter lilies and rambler roses, while in the aisles were two huge vases, each containing four or five dozen Easter lilies. Palms, rhododendrons, hydrangeas and lilies extended around the church. The bride carried an armful of Easter lilies and the bridesmaids carried lavender lilacs. The two flower girls had baskets of spring flowers.

AN ADVERTISING TRADE.

Florists have made themselves felt as advertisers, not only to an extent appreciated by themselves, but to a degree that has brought them to the attention of the greatest of advertising media, the daily newspapers.

Do florists realize this? Perhaps not. But from a trade that advertised least of almost all lines of retail merchandising, ours has become a conspicuous advertising power. The effect has been wrought in a cumulative manner. National advertising, city coöperative campaigns and liberal use of space by individual retailers have combined to bring flowers forcefully into the public eye.

The column of advertising talk in the New York American, April 20, was distinctly complimentary to the trade in its recognition of florists' advertising strength. It is for this reason that we reprint it below. We have no stock in this particular daily and no family connection with Mr. Hearst—the remarks concerning the paper's value are its own. They are beside our point, that florists have in a brief space of time won conspicuous recognition as an advertising trade. Here's the evidence:

PICK YOUR FLOWERS WITH CARE.

We all need flowers in our lives. They take us out of the roar and strife of the city life into fragrant bypaths and untrodden ways. They bring sunshine and glory into every day. But how can this be done without too lavish an expenditure? To buy flowers to the best advantage, you should read the advertisements in the New York American. It carries the message to you of enterprising florists who offer the best flowers at prices consistent with quality.

Since nothing puts more cheer into the home, nor more fittingly conveys a message between friends, they are an essential part of life, and buying opportunities should be just as carefully are set out in the beds until marketed, or through the cooler winter months, at all events. Too much water may have caused the stem-rot. Sometimes too deep planting induces stem-rot. Water watched as in the case of shoes or clothes, or other essentials.

It is by reading the New York American that you will see these opportunities whenever they appear.

In fact, whether it is flowers or shoes, or whatever the merchandise, you can purchase most satisfactorily through advertisements in The American.

The American is the right newspaper for every New York florist because it has the largest and most responsive reading clientele in New York. Practically 300,000 families daily—1,000,000 Sunday—read The American because they prefer it.

They are progressive, prosperous people to whom the finer things of life make a potent appeal. That is why florists find The American the medium best suited for flower announcements.

And that is why readers may find in The American the announcements of florists whom they can patronize most advantageously.

STEM-ROT ON LETTUCE.

What is the cause of stem-rot on greenhouse lettuce? This has been an exceptionally good winter in which to grow lettuce, with little cloudy weather, but a number of our plants have died from stem-rot. We have used fresh horse manure for fertilizing. Do you advise the use of that, or is well rotted manure better? Also advise us as to whether the use of pulverized sheep manure and commercial fertilizers would be better. One of the houses is new and the ground has never grown lettuce before. We give careful attention to the watering and ventilating, but the trouble appears in spite of all we can do.

J. H. S.—Kan.

Partly decayed or well rotted horse manure would be decidedly preferable to fresh manure for lettuce, and neither pulverized sheep manure nor commercial fertilizer would be so good, as they lack the humus of the horse manure. If you have an ample depth of soil, one thorough soaking should carry the plants from the time they collecting in the hearts will also cause it. You will be much less subject to this and other affections of lettuce if you sterilize your soil with steam each season before planting time arrives.

POWER FOR WATER PUMP.

I have a flowing well and during the firing season I use a steam pump to water, which I find satisfactory. When I stop firing what system would you advise putting in to save the expense of firing up during the summer months?

G. H.—Ill.

While a small steam boiler might be used with the present pump, from the fact that it would be necessary to get up steam every time it is necessary to use the pump, it will be more satisfactory to put in a gasoline engine and pump, with a small storage tank to furnish water when the pump is not in use, and to rely upon direct pressure from the pump for watering and syringing. A storage tank of capacity sufficient for at least one day's watering, and elevated twenty-five feet, would furnish sufficient pressure for watering purposes and a considerably smaller engine and pump would answer for filling the tank than would be required to supply direct pressure for watering.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. F. P., Kan.—In 1912. You would not confuse Ricard and Helen Michell growing side by side.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Did you ever see anything like the weather we are having?" asked L. C. Hecock, Elyria, O. "And yet the cut averages well. Funeral work has kept us busy right along."

The Wagner Greenhouses, Sandusky, O., report excellent business, with bright prospects for Mothers' day.

"Sweeten up, send flowers," is the slogan seen in the window of the Navarre Flower Shop, Toledo, O. A model of a lighthouse arranged for a fountain, with a base of rocks, is attractive.

The Freeman Flower Shop, Toledo, O., maintains an attractive window display, in which is seen the handiwork of Mrs. Freeman, who is well pleased with the season's business.

Schramm Bros., Toledo, O., are taxed to the limit for space. "If the spirit of dad could return and see the old place now," said B. Schramm, "what a change would be seen!"

"I never had a finer stock or better business," said Mrs. E. Suder, who can justly claim to be the oldest in years, though youngest in spirit, among the florists in Toledo, O.

G. Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich., recently made a big change in the store and wonder why they did not do it long ago. If business continues to increase as it has recently, further improvements will be necessary.

S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek, Mich., will be satisfied if Mothers' day business shows up as well proportionately as Easter sales.

A. Cowgill, Canton, O., commenting on the season's business in general, believes that the demand is larger in proportion to what it is in some big towns. A fine crop of carnations is in sight for Mothers' day at the greenhouses at Salem, O.

The J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., is making a feature of a Saturday special dollar box of roses. There is a large sign across the window announcing the fact and an attractive display of the goods. "Prices are down," said Manager Brown, "and we are acquainting the public of the fact."

John Bockmann, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called attention to the new nemesis, which promises to make a splendid bedding plant, being similar to the single petunia in habit and embracing a variety of beautiful colors. Some of these will doubtless be selected and sent out separately.

"Plenty of assorted cut flowers for week-end specials," said Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit. "Even if the former price of $1 were raised fifty per cent, with an attractive display it should create a demand for the week-end surplus."

J. A. Bissinger, Lansing, Mich., is the recipient of considerable praise for the fine display of spring stock in the houses located in the shadow of the capitol, always kept attractive.

Harry E. Saier has two stores in Lansing, Mich., a flower store elegantly equipped, under the supervision of Mrs. Saier, and near by, a seed store of four stories, headed by himself. He also has a nursery and a farm in connection, each giving tiptop returns.

Alfred Hannah, of A. Hannah & Son, Grand Rapids, Mich., in commenting upon the various problems in the business, took occasion to remark that in his experience of almost half a century as a retailer there has come about such a radical change that the present methods of publicity will have but little effect upon it. One cannot, he stated, close one's eyes to the fact that even today the use of cut flowers is not so common as it was a decade ago and in his opinion nothing but education and example will help bring about the desired improvement. Strenuous efforts should be made this spring for outdoor planting to keep the appetite whetted, as it were.

A TRADE-MADE MOVIE.

Sending the following clipping from the local paper, S. J. Huber, of the Huber Floral House, Portage, Wis., adds that the leading man in the drama happens to be his father-in-law:

Daughter registers delight and admiration on viewing flowers at greenhouse. Flashes ad lib. of the girl and the posies. She selects bulbs of narcissus, hyacinth, tulip and so weiter. Arriving home, she lays them on table in kitchen, awaiting the morrow for planting. It is evening. Father is absent. She and mother go downtown to the movies. Dear old dad appears on the screen in the agonies of hunger. He is beating it home from the office at 9 o'clock p. m. and hasn't had a bite to eat since he left the supper table two hours before. He is almost faint with emptiness. Flashes show him groping through the dark of the south side to the family domicile. He opens the door. Good night! Nobody home! ### COVER ILLUSTRATION.

WHAT'LL YOU HAVE?

I read with much interest recently an article on the origin of the "Home of Primroses." Jacob Rupp, of Shiremanstown, Pa., had the distinction of being the originator.

I noted in particular that many persons, through seeing Mr. Rupp's shipments at various railroad stations, have followed his example in using the expression, "Home of," and now I should like to add to the collection. My place is the Home of Booze-Bearing Plants. Here are a few which can be grown and will relieve the thirst:

Hop vines (Humea Lupulus).....for beer.
Grape vines .....for wine.
Apple trees .....for cider.
Apricot trees and blackberry bushes, for brandies.
Junipers (Juniperus) .....for gin.
Rye and corn .....for whiskey.
Mint (Mentha riparita)....for creme de menthe.
Caraway (carum).....for kimmell.
Wormwood (Artemisia Absinthium), for absinthe.
Plum trees .....for slivowitz, a Russian drink.
Rice .....for areck and sake.
Cornmeal .....for muscatel.

And not to neglect the drug addicts, grow poppy (Papaver somniferum) for opium.

Why make the proprietor of a cafe liable to a heavy fine when you can produce all of the above yourself?

SEPARATING DAHLIA CLUMPS.

The dahlia clump can be properly separated by anyone if the following instructions are carefully followed:

Take the dahlia clump as it was harvested, with the portion of the original stalk, from which the top was removed. Upon examining the clump you will notice that the tubers formed at the base of the stalk and that each tuber has a crown, neck and body; the crown being the bulging portion that is connected with the clump, and the neck being the small portion between the crown and the body of the tuber. By examining carefully, small eyes, or sprouts, can be detected on the crowns and stalk base. These eyes produce the new plants; so, in separating, it is necessary that each tuber have an eye. Without an eye the tuber is worthless.

In separating, a sharp knife should be used and great care taken. The best way is to remove each tuber individually, but in cutting, it is necessary that each tuber have a crown, or a portion of the stalk, as it is upon this that all the eyes grow.

First, select the tuber you think can be most easily removed. With the point of your knife, cut deeply into the base of the stalk, so as to leave an equal amount of the stalk base for each tuber and so that each tuber has its crown. By cutting deeply into the stalk base on both sides, the tuber becomes separated from the clump, leaving a V-shaped portion of the stalk base as a crown or head, upon which the eye is found or will grow.

The next tuber favorably located from the separating standpoint can then be chosen and removed by again cutting the stalk base, and so on until the stalk base becomes the crown of each individual tuber.

When the tuber is planted it should be laid flat, six inches deep, so that the crown, around which the new tubers form, will be sufficiently deep to receive plenty of moisture, which is necessary that the new tubers may develop properly. The sprout will grow from the crown and soon reach the top of the ground, producing a plant the stem of which, when full grown, becomes the stalk.

The Market.

There is an abundant supply of flowers at present, but also a good demand for them and no glut has developed. Carnations and sweet peas are fine. Snapdragons are arriving on the market in fine quality. There has been a good demand for funeral flowers, which has kept most of the stores busy.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club of Hartford held ladies' night Thursday evening, April 22. The ladies must have been looking for this time to come, when their husbands would take them to one of the club's famous dinners, and they were out in force. Dinner was served at the City club. The dinner table was in the shape of a hollow square. This square was prettily filled, having an electric fountain in the center, banked with rambler roses. At the ends were large baskets of Laddie carnations, surrounded by genistas. On the tables were strings of smilax with carnations and roses. Each of the ladies, about thirty of whom were present, received a corsage of purple sweet peas and each gentleman wore a white carnation. The ends of the room were banked with large ferns. An orchestra played during the dinner. After a delightful dinner, President Joseph F. Coombs welcomed the ladies on behalf of the club and reminded them that there was a summer picnic coming and hoped that they would all be present at that time. At 8 p. m. they adjourned to Parsons' theater, where they witnessed "Chu Chin Chow." There were several out-of-town guests present. N. C. Osborne and G. B. Marchant were in charge of the arrangements and Vincent Olmstead did the decorating.

Various Notes.

The greenhouses of Thomas Dryden have plants for spring trade coming along in fine shape. The Easter trade was satisfactory here.

Frank Richardson, East Hartford, has a remarkable display of geraniums, which are his specialty. His greenhouses are located at an advantageous place on the Connecticut boulevard, where there is a trolley transfer point, and the display is a fine advertisement.

Mrs. E. M. Welch has sold her greenhouses on Annawan street. She will devote all of her time to her new store in the Allyn House. It is a store with all the latest improvements and is always prettily decorated.

Lane the Florist has been treating the public to some unusually fine window displays.

John Coombs' greenhouses, on South street, are a fine sight at present. The carnations are excellent, having both stiff stems and good color. The roses are growing well, too. The Benton street range, which was damaged by the ice and snow, is being repaired. His bedding plants are in good shape and he has a large number of geraniums, which are fine. The house of sweet peas is coming into crop with long stems and large flowers. He has renewed his mum stock this year. The young plants are healthy.

The rose gardens at Elizabeth park, for which Hartford is noted, have come through the winter in fine shape. The display will be larger than ever this year.

Pansy plants are beginning to appear in the stores again. They are of good quality and are retailing for about 75 cents per dozen.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Did you ever see anything like the weather we are having?" asked L. C. Hecock, Elyria, O. "And yet the cut averages well. Funeral work has kept us busy right along."

The Wagner Greenhouses, Sandusky, O., report excellent business, with bright prospects for Mothers' day.

"Sweeten up, send flowers," is the slogan seen in the window of the Navarre Flower Shop, Toledo, O. A model of a lighthouse arranged for a fountain, with a base of rocks, is attractive.

The Freeman Flower Shop, Toledo, O., maintains an attractive window display, in which is seen the handiwork of Mrs. Freeman, who is well pleased with the season's business.

Schramm Bros., Toledo, O., are taxed to the limit for space. "If the spirit of dad could return and see the old place now," said B. Schramm, "what a change would be seen!"

"I never had a finer stock or better business," said Mrs. E. Suder, who can justly claim to be the oldest in years, though youngest in spirit, among the florists in Toledo, O.

G. Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich., recently made a big change in the store and wonder why they did not do it long ago. If business continues to increase as it has recently, further improvements will be necessary.

S. W. Coggan, Battle Creek, Mich., will be satisfied if Mothers' day business shows up as well proportionately as Easter sales.

A. Cowgill, Canton, O., commenting on the season's business in general, believes that the demand is larger in proportion to what it is in some big towns. A fine crop of carnations is in sight for Mothers' day at the greenhouses at Salem, O.

The J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., is making a feature of a Saturday special dollar box of roses. There is a large sign across the window announcing the fact and an attractive display of the goods. "Prices are down," said Manager Brown, "and we are acquainting the public of the fact."

John Bockmann, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called attention to the new nemesia, which promises to make a splendid bedding plant, being similar to the single petunia in habit and embracing a variety of beautiful colors. Some of these will doubtless be selected and sent out separately.

"Plenty of assorted cut flowers for week-end specials," said Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit. "Even if the former price of $1 were raised fifty per cent, with an attractive display it should create a demand for the week-end surplus."

J. A. Bissinger, Lansing, Mich., is the recipient of considerable praise for the fine display of spring stock in the houses located in the shadow of the capitol, always kept attractive.

Harry E. Saier has two stores in Lansing, Mich., a flower store elegantly equipped, under the supervision of Mrs. Saier, and near by, a seed store of four stories, headed by himself. He also has a nursery and a farm in connection, each giving tiptop returns.

Alfred Hannah, of A. Hannah & Son, Grand Rapids, Mich., in commenting upon the various problems in the business, took occasion to remark that in his experience of almost half a century as a retailer there has come about such a radical change that the present methods of publicity will have but little effect upon it. One cannot, he stated, close one's eyes to the fact that even today the use of cut flowers is not so common as it was a decade ago and in his opinion nothing but education and example will help bring about the desired improvement. Strenuous efforts should be made this spring for outdoor planting to keep the appetite whetted, as it were.

A TRADE-MADE MOVIE.

Sending the following clipping from the local paper, S. J. Huber, of the Huber Floral House, Portage, Wis., adds that the leading man in the drama happens to be his father-in-law:

"THEM ONION SANDWICH."

Near Drammer in Three Bulbous Reels, Featuring Herr Heinrich A. Schultz.
(Suppressed by National Board of Nonsenseship.)
Scenario.

ACK ONE—Dutiful daughter strolls through autumn-tinted landscape to Huber Floral House to obtain bulbs for the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la, and some that bloom in the winter-time, tra-loo. Daughter registers delight and admiration on viewing flowers at greenhouse. Flashes ad lib. of the girl and the posies. She selects bulbs of narcissus, hyacinth, tulip and so weiter. Arriving home, she lays them on table in kitchen, awaiting the morrow for planting. It is evening. Father is absent. She and mother go downtown to the movies. Dear old dad appears on the screen in the agonies of hunger. He is beating it home from the office at 9 o'clock p. m. and hasn't had a bite to eat since he left the supper table two hours before. He is almost faint with emptiness. Flashes show him groping through the dark of the south side to the family domicile. He opens the door. Good night! Nobody home! Poor father—'pears like no one cares if father is starving. Tensely expectant, he searches the larder. (Soft sob music here, Miss Pianoplayer, please.) Close-up shows father turned pale and trembling at the awful situation. With hands raised to heaven in supplication he exclaims (subtitle cut-in), "YE GE-ODS! NOTHING TO EAT BUT FOOD!" Limp and despairing, he sinks to a chair. The chair withstands the shock. His wildly roving eye lamps the kitchen table. (Cut in) "ONIONS! SAVED! GOTTE SEI DANK!" Tears of joy roll down father's classic phiz as he peels and slices and minces—adds the pepper and salt and vinegar—and carves the rye-loaf. (Piano will play something merry and mushy, like "When It's Onion

Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, Mich., thinks that those who have a supply of coal on hand are fortunate, saying that he was safe, but did not know about the future.

The Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., located in the big Hotel Pantland, finds it profitable to keep up an attractive display.

Henry Smith has the largest window frontage in Grand Rapids and it takes a large amount of stock to make a display, but he says that it pays.

Blessing's Flower Shop, Jackson, Mich., reports an excellent season, with much funeral work. Among the good things on the tapis are several orders for wedding decorations. W. M.

COVER ILLUSTRATION.

To some members of the trade the boy pictured on this week's cover is not a stranger. To many, many florists his father is well known. The boy is Max Schling, Jr. The photograph reproduced on the cover was taken a year ago on Mothers' day. The son of the New York florist is an able supporter of his father's business, or else Max, senior, gave some fine instruction in the art of posing—anyway, it's all in the family. So good a combination of youth and flowers is rare to see, as those who seek such illustrations know full well.

Tableau: Pop in his pajamas, wearing a beatific smile of satisfaction after eating four sandwiches, and about to retire to his downy couch. Some epicure! Some connoisseur—what! (Piano plays "End of a Perfect Day.") . . . Morning. Daughter seeks the bulbs. No can find. All gone. Kitchen table bare. Alas! (Piano to play softly Nevin's Water Studies, beginning with "Narcissus.") Pop in great good humor ambles down to breakfast. Brags about the lunch he fixed for himself last evening. Best onion sandwich he ever ate—yes. Takes a man, after all, to hurry up a real tasty buffet lunch—yes. Pretty wise guy is pop—yes! Daughter registers surprise, then sudden comprehension, then consternation, then bursting merriment. Whispers to mother. Mother registers like gamut of human emotions. Father registers curiosity, doubt, apprehension. Ladies continue to laugh—can't stop—fresh outbursts. "Wass ist?" inquires pop. (Subtitle) "YOU ATE MY BULBS!"

ACK 2—Christmas. Father finds hyacinth boutonniere sprouting out through buttonhole of coat. Knows now daughter told him right about those bulbs.

ACK 3—Business of dear old dad buying Niersteiner and Hahnheimer and Rheingold and Crown Select and Wauona for all the boys—and then some. (Piano plays "Oh, Home Is Looking Brighter Now Since Father's Blossomed Out!")

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

You usually get what you give—another phase of the golden rule.

BUSINESS is an exhilarating game if you play it according to the rules.

TRADE preparations and anticipations point to a record Mothers' day business.

MEMORIAL day is just three weeks after Mothers' day. No rest in between this year.

PRODUCTION is not likely to increase at a rapid gait when help is so hard to get as at present.

DISAPPOINTMENT, if not loss of sales, is sure to follow when an advertisement reaches The Review too late to be printed. Better be soon than sorry.

DON'T forget to emphasize other flowers for Mothers' day and soft-pedal carnations. You'll have more requests for them than you can fill, anyway.

THE Want Ad section of The Review has proved almost as useful as the Classified plant ad section or the Pink Part. It takes five pages to hold the Wants and For Sales this week.

DESPITE reports that the peak of high prices has been reached, the Department of Labor's statistics indicate an advance of four points in the index of wholesale prices, from 249 to 253, in March.

ONE by one the trade is closing the accounts of those who habitually are slow pay. If people do not pay now without compulsion, what will be the chance of getting the money after times change?

SINCE it was through The Review that Mothers' day was first brought to the attention of the trade, it is fitting that The Review should also publish the first Mothers' day special number this week.

GOVERNMENT figures show that lumber and building materials have made the greatest advance in cost of all commodities in the last year, amounting to ninety-seven per cent. Can flower prices absorb this increased cost of greenhouses?

If you are a member of the S. A. F., when your copy of the Journal comes to hand don't toss it aside without the reading it deserves. The pamphlet costs the officers much effort and the society and you a lot of money. Effort and money are wasted if the record is not read.

SNAPDRAGONS should not be cut too "green." They do not open in water as do some other flowers.

SEND to The Review clippings of the Mothers' day advertisements published in the local newspapers by florists in your city.

FOR a single issue The Review now pays as much for paper as a six months' supply cost in the early days of the publication.

IN the strong demand there is temptation to send out plant stock before it is ready, but the grower who resists it will profit in years when the call is not so heavy.

ALL the signs point to an impending change in the business situation. It behooves every florist to collect the money due him, to pay his debts and, if possible, build up a reserve in the bank.

BOTH the Want Ads and the Classified Ads are a record this week, while the Pink Part is a record for this holiday—but for that matter The Review as a whole never was so heavily patronized at this season in any other year.

WITH this issue The Review completes its forty-fifth volume—twenty-two and one-half years; the early ones strenuous in the effort to get business, the later ones still more so with the effort to provide promptly, regularly and accurately, under unusual conditions, the service the trade has learned to expect.

FEATURES of the expanded S. A. F. Journal for April are a reprint of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's bulletin on Kurume azaleas, an inquiry department and Secretary Young's page of notes and comments, covering the New York show and the new orchid society, which indicate the widening area of the parent society's interests. S. A. F. matters covered are the national show committee meeting, the Cleveland convention, plant registration and the publicity committee meeting, which were reported at the time they occurred in the columns of The Review.

GOT YOUR GLASS?

Scarcity of glass is the chief obstacle to those who wish to add to their greenhouse area this summer. The situation is already one of great difficulty for those who wish to build and the prospects do not seem brighter in the next few months. A report of the glass industry states:

"The chances are that the glass manufacturing season will be extended two or three weeks, possibly a month, from now until May 13. None of the manufacturers are accepting any new business for the next few months. This policy has been adopted in order to complete old orders. Fuel shortage, labor troubles and traffic conditions have made it impossible to keep up with demands and no new business will be accepted until next fall, when all the old orders are caught up. There will probably be a great scarcity of glass between now and October, especially window glass."

EARLY BUYING URGED ALREADY.

The trials and tribulations of the last winter have left their impression on others besides the greenhouse men, so far as coal is concerned. The campaign for early buying has begun in earnest already. To avoid the possibility of being unable to procure coal for next winter's consumption, early buying was urged by a committee of the American Railroad Association at a recent meeting held in New York.

The committee on the storage of coal reported that the storage of coal near the point of legitimate consumption should be encouraged, as storage at the mines was practically impossible because of the congestion on the railroads during the winter months.

The bituminous coal commission in its report recommended that steps be taken by all government agencies to lay in a three months' supply prior to July 1. Steps have already been taken by practically all of them to effect this. Similar action will be taken by the many florists whose experience last winter is still keenly recollected. It is not too early for all coal consumers in the trade to consider their next season's wants.

QUICK AND EASY.

The way you speed up your business, in store or greenhouse, is by keeping everything just where it belongs. You don't look for corsage ribbon in the cash drawer or for fertilizer in the boiler room. You put each article in its proper place, so that valuable time need not be lost looking in the wrong places and so that you will not have to go without when you want something in a hurry.

The same principle is applied in the Classified columns of The Review. Under a certain heading everything is put that belongs there and nothing is put there that belongs somewhere else—it is put in its own proper place. When a buyer wants a certain sort of plant, he need only turn to see what offers are listed under that name. He has the selection before him. He need not look to see whether it has been put somewhere else, upon some whim or to catch certain buyers' eyes by another classification. Only in the cases where the variety compels group classification need the buyer look for anything but the plant's own name—in such cases as aquatics, bedding plants, berried plants, hardy plants, nursery stock and vegetable plants.

This exact classification is part of the object of the Classified pages, to be a quick and easy reference section. It makes buyers' search for stock simple and gives sellers certain contact with such buyers. Adherence to such standard of classification seems amply justified by the general use and constant commendation of The Review's Classified pages by buyers and sellers alike.

HIBISCUS—HOT BISCUITS.

After you've said that caption fast three times, read on.

Sometimes speed helps you, instead of tying your tongue in a knot. When "time is money," as it so often is, the quicker the work is done, the less money is needed to do it. So that when hibiscus goes like—but read the letter yourself:

Please cut out hibiscus ad in classified ads. Sure went like hot biscuits, with two insertions. Good money-getter at little expense.—H. O. Hannah & Son, Sherman, Tex., April 19, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

James T. Copas.

James T. Copas, of Salida, Colo., died Wednesday night, April 21, at the age of 43 years. His death resulted from pneumonia, which was caused by exposure suffered while helping a stranger caught in a blizzard near Husted, Colo.

Mr. Copas, his wife, their 10-year-old daughter and a friend started early Saturday morning, April 17, to go by automobile from Salida to Denver. Near Husted the party was caught in the blizzard. A short distance behind them was a Ford sedan car, in which were a man, ill with asthma, his wife and two children. Mr. Copas decided to turn around, but after working almost an hour to help turn the Ford car around, he was too weak to turn his own. For nearly fifty hours, until the following Monday afternoon, Mr. Copas and his party had to stay in their automobile, almost covered by the drifting snow. They had only one sandwich apiece to eat and the water in their canteen had frozen. When the storm broke, they fought their way one-quarter of a mile to a farm house, where Mr. Copas fell unconscious; both of his feet were frozen. In a state of semiconsciousness he was carried to Colorado Springs in a wagon and later taken to his home in Salida.

Mr. Copas was at one time in business in Elyria, O. For three years he worked for the Espelin Floral Co., Fort Collins, Colc., and then for a while he was private gardener for Verner Z. Reed, of Denver. He bought the establishment at Salida last fall.

John Giles.

John Giles, formerly of Hoskins & Giles, Reading, Pa., died during the week of April 18. Mr. Giles retired from business several years ago. His son, Stanley Giles, is a prominent florist of Reading. Phil.

Joseph H. Campbell.

Joseph H. Campbell died at his home in Ambler, Pa., during the week of April 18. Mr. Campbell, who was before his retirement a grower at 3601 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia, is survived by four sons, all famed in flowers. Phil.

S. C. Nash.

S. C. Nash, Clifton, N. J., died at his home during the week of April 18, at the age of 79 years. Mr. Nash was an old-time grower and one of the early shippers of American Beauty roses to the New York market. J. H. P.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Market conditions throughout last week were, on the whole, fairly good. The supply of cut flowers of all kinds was quite heavy, and although movement at times was sluggish, little stock went to waste. The demand was occasionally spasmodic, with hand-to-mouth buying strongly in evidence, as it usually is when there is no scarcity in any line. Bulbous flowers arrived daily in large quantities and continue to arrive, with little prospect of an early decrease.

At the beginning of this week the market was well supplied with flowers of all kinds and the demand was about what is ordinarily expected at the opening of a week. Roses are fairly plentiful, excepting American Beauty, which in the special grades is rather light in supply. In hybrid teas all grades are plentiful, with splendid stock among the specials. The weather for many days has been favorable to roses, day temperatures being not so high as they ordinarily are at this season and nights quite cool.

Carnations are plentiful and move well. The price range at the beginning of the week was $3 to $6 per hundred. The latter figure, of course, was for selected stock and fancy varieties.

There is a good supply of orchids, cattleyas bringing from $25 to $75 per hundred, with especially large and perfect flowers a little more. Gardenias continue to arrive in quantities rather more than the market can absorb, and when the best are moved at $3 per dozen the balance moves at prices down to $5 per hundred.

Easter lilies are in abundance, but seem to clear out fairly well at 10 cents to 15 cents per flower and bud. Lily of the valley is also in good supply and of excellent quality, at the general price range of $2 to $8 per hundred, the latter for extra selected stock.

Sweet peas are especially plentiful and arrive in a variety of gradings, with stems three inches to fourteen inches long. The best bring $4 per hundred sprays; the rest go at prices down to 50 cents per hundred sprays. The weather is quite favorable to the sweet pea cut.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers continues heavy and embraces a great variety. Quantities of cut sprays of forsythia are this week added to the list of arrivals. Snapdragons, lupines, delphiniums, myosotis, wallflowers, calendulas, Spanish iris, stocks, pansies, daisies, gypsophilas, primroses, mignonette and a small quantity of the trailing arbutus make up the choice in miscellaneous flowers.

The New Market.

The new flower market in the old Siegel-Cooper building, Sixth avenue and West Eighteenth street, opened Monday morning, April 26. While some of the booth holders were a little behind as regards the completion of their quarters, few inconveniences were met with. Among the visitors early in the day was John I. Raynor, who retired from the wholesale business some years ago. Mr. Raynor expressed himself as pleased at the beginning of what he believed to be a concentration of wholesale interests, something which, he said, ought to have happened years ago. The facilities for the receipt of shipments proved to be all that was expected and the temporary telephone service was as good as could have been hoped. In a week or so everything promises to be in good shape. At the quarters of the S. A. F., on the mezzanine floor, there were many visitors during the day, although housing arrangements are necessarily yet incomplete. Roman J. Irwin, on the same floor, who is nearly set to rights, also had his share of visitors.

Various Notes.

The death last week of S. C. Nash,

Clifton, N. J., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

The Rosary furnished most of the decorations at the Tower-Whitney wedding last week. Lilies were used in great profusion.

Tuesday, April 20, Joseph S. Fenrich was receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter at his home.

Herman Schwarz, Central Park, L. I., has given the name Siren to his new carnation, which was awarded a silver medal at the recent international flower show.

NEW MAGNOLIA FACTORY.

The use of magnolia leaves in the trade has become so large that the Ove Gnatt Co., at La Porte, Ind., is erecting a "factory" plant at Evergreen, Ala., for the principal purpose of "preparing" magnolias. The Gnatt corporation has been putting up the leaves at its factory at La Porte, Ind., but with the present volume of business sees a large economy and the prospect for a considerable further increase in sales by going close to the source of raw material to do the work of perpetuating. In the item of transportation charges alone it will make a saving, especially to the eastern and southeastern trade. No care or expense is being spared to make the new establishment thoroughly up-to-date, according to Fred Henoch, who authorizes the announcement of the company's plans.

The Market.

There has been good business since last report, but the demand has not been strong enough to create anything resembling a shortage or to advance prices to more than a slight extent. Now and then a wholesaler has been able to close for the day with his ice-boxes practically empty, but the conditions scarcely can be said to have been general, and with an occasional exception it has been possible to find all the flowers wanted, of the quality wanted, at a price the buyer could afford to pay. Shipping has been, if anything, more active than city business, but shipping still is conducted under difficulties because of the express service. The embargoes have been removed in so far as concerns perishable stock, but pickup service is limited to 2 p. m. Many buyers failed to get their orders into the wholesalers' hands in time for the last pickup, with the result that the wholesaler has to get his boxes to the station the best way he may. It will be a material help if buyers will remember the short hours and get their orders in before noon, as far as they can.

Taking the stock as a whole, flowers are of excellent quality. There are roses of so good a character that it would be difficult to say in what manner they fall short of perfection, and carnations also average up unusually well for the season. One scarcely can say as much of the sweet peas, many of which are not good, although there are large quantities of first-class stock in all colors. These three are the big staples at present. They are the flowers with which the bulk of the business is being done. Their quality, abundance and moderate price make it possible to show a good volume. Most of the wholesalers are reporting aggregate daily sales somewhat larger than those of a year ago, when business was considered excellent. Our ideas have grown since then and it takes more and more to create enthusiasm.

The leading roses are Premier, Columbia and Russell, about in the order named, with Ophelia abundant in two or three of the wholesale houses and Sunburst showing up nicely here and there. The supply is not so large as it was, because Easter crops have passed off and many growers are drying off their houses or cleaning the benches for replanting. Indeed, replanting operations are well under way.

Carnations are selling well, if not at high prices, but it is noticeable that Enchantress hangs back. Sweet peas are more abundant than ever before at this time of the year, but some difficulty is experienced in shipping; they sweat and die in the box unless they are in the proper condition when packed. Easter lilies are equal to all requirements, but are not the burden they have been since Easter. There are plenty of callas, but they have been slow sale since the giganteums came in. The spring crop of cattleyas is coming on, gigas being the variety. The quality is fine. Bulbous stock has fallen to insignificant quantities. There still are a few Darwin tulips and an occasional small lot of indoor jonquils, but the early tulips, the freesias and even the outdoor narcissi have nearly disappeared for the season. Peonies are due next week, from southern fields, but locally the season is ten days late at present. Irises are limited to the variety filifolia, dark blue, which is seen in small quantity in most of the wholesale houses. It would sell better if there were not so many lavender peas. There are adequate supplies of valley, with no special demand thus far.

ings of the elaborate new store he will open before next season starts. W. Abrahamson, manager of the Randall fixture department, has been on a trip in Ohio this week to have a look at contracts that are in progress.

Cassimir Gouza figures that peonies will be good property for Mothers' day this year. There will not be many, because Mothers' day is three days earlier than the usual date and the peonies in most places in the middle south are ten days late.

Various Notes.

Mangel & Co., who operate the big store in the Palmer House and a smaller one in the Blackstone hotel, have made a contract for the flower store privilege in the new Drake hotel, now being erected on the Gold Coast. The new store is to be 20x30, adjoining the main entrance, where there are to be about a dozen specialty shops of the highest character. The date of the opening is tentatively set for November.

At Morton Grove Poehlmann Bros. Co. has been working full force at replanting. Between February 1 and 15 eleven houses were replanted with young stock of Columbia, a total of 100,000 plants, all of this variety. Was there ever a stronger demonstration of faith in a rose? Continuing the replanting operations, 75,000 Premier, young stock, have gone on the benches to date. To make room for the newer varieties, Killarney Brilliant, Richmond, Killarney and Ophelia have been reduced, the Killarneys now being practically extinct. Large crops now are being cut in the rose houses.

Eugene C. Bowen has sold the lease of the Argyle Posy Shop, 1046 Argyle street, and will vacate May 1. He figured that the profit on the deal would warrant a vacation and that he will start in business again when he finds another suitable location.

W. J. Smyth is moving this week. Not his store—his residence. The old home place in Englewood, where the Smyth family has lived for many years, was sold a few months ago and May 1 they will be domiciled in an apartment in Woodlawn.

WHOLESALE GROWER OF CUT FLOWERS

30 E. Randolph St.,

PHONES:
Central 2846 and 601

CHICAGO, ILL.

Arbor, Mich., is returning there to tackle the Mothers' day business after having spent several months with John T. Muir, in whose store he gained many useful ideas.

At Wilmette and Evanston John Weiland is joining the rapidly growing list of florists who obey the injunction, "Six days shalt thou labor." His stores will be closed on the Sabbath after June 6. He is giving his customers more than a month's notice, enclosing a card with each parcel sent out.

The Chicago Motor Club is fortunate in having enlisted the interest of John Ziska, than whom there is no florist with more friends or with a greater will to work. Mr. Ziska already has sent the club the membership applications of more than a score of florists and expects to make it fifty by the time the motor-ing season is fairly open. Let him have your application. With a good body of florists in the club, the trade can count on the club's support in any matter connected with the operation of automobiles.

Weiland-Risch Co. notes a coincidence in that the first flowers of Gladiolus Mrs. Pendleton were received at the store April 17 this year, the same date to a day as in 1919. John P. Risch says that however fine the stock and however well it sells, it is a question if it pays to force the flowers so early. He says that more than half of the plants are blind this year.

Who wouldn't be a traveling man? Certainly it sounds good to hear that J. C. Nielsen, who represents Poehlmann Bros. Co., on the road, has bought a Dodge coupe and plans to start out as soon as the roads dry up, accompanied by his wife and his sample case, for a tour of the middle west and southern states, which will bring him to Cleveland for the S. A. F. convention in August. Independent of trains, if he takes a camping outfit along he need not worry about crowded hotels.

A. Henderson is able to be at the store for a few hours now and then, but still is under the doctor's care. Counter trade has opened strongly, in spite of bad weather. There will be a rush when the sun comes out.

Joseph Foerster notes that the growers are replanting their houses considerably earlier this season than usual. This is true of carnations as well as of roses.

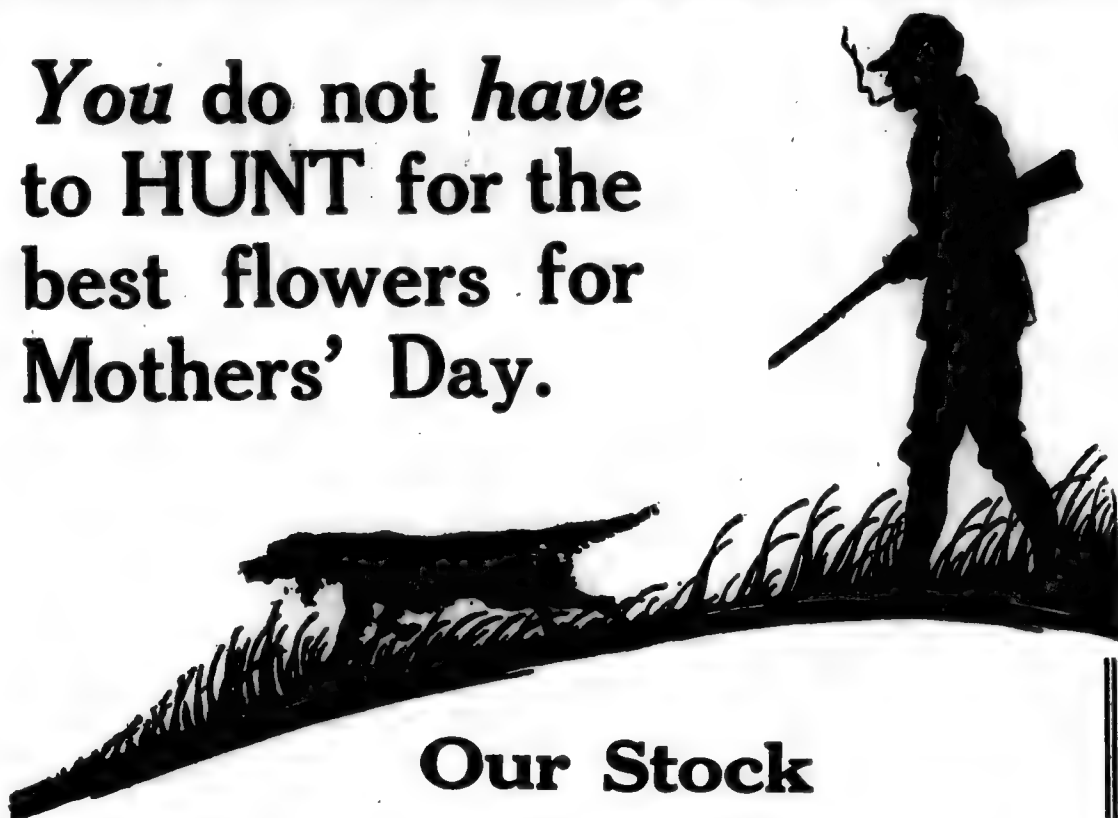

A. L. Vaughan has canceled his arrangement for moving to the Atlas block. It appears that the demolition of the building in which his store is located will not begin so promptly as was expected and Mr. Vaughan expects to remain in the old quarters indefinitely.

A new organization has been formed to do business as the No-Drip Basket Shop, marketing a self-watering hanging basket and plant basket that T. E. Waters says has proved to be a remarkably ready seller.

Wietor Bros. already have planted a quantity of their carnations indoors. V. Bezdek, the Gross Point carnation grower, says he also has planted a number of houses with carnations; instead of putting them in the field. One of his reasons is that labor is obtainable now, while he doubts that it will be so in July.

The monthly luncheon of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. was held at the Hotel Randolph April 24. L. E. Hooper, of the Louisiana Red Cypress

The Market.

The local wholesale market opened April 19 with a surplus, which has continued since in practically all lines. It was a great load off the minds of the wholesalers that the embargo on out-bound shipments had been lifted. While the volume of business was large, it was done at a low average price, as large lots were disposed of at low prices to the local trade. While shipping orders required prime stock, better prices had to be obtained on these orders.

The retailers report that business is not any too brisk and only special sales keep them busy.

The roses coming to this market are of splendid quality in all varieties. Premier is high in color, better than Russell. Ophelia is at its best, as are Milady and Sunburst. Good White Killarneys are excellent sellers. The supply is large in all varieties of roses.

Carnations are a glut at present, although first-class stock is scarce. Some have been jobbed off as low as $7.50 and $10 per thousand. All Enchantress varieties are in best demand.

Sweet peas are abundant each morning and come in all grades. Extra fancies hold their own at 40 cents per hundred and others are as low as $2

There are plenty of Easter lilies and callas for all demands and also snapdragons, daisies, narcissi, daffodils, tulips and pansies.

In greens the demand is still large and the market cleans up daily on asparagus, adiantum and smilax. There are plenty of good flat ferns, galax and other greens.

Visitors last week were Frank Johnson and Edward Galavan, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, looking after the opening of the factory in the south end, and Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York.

The death of E. C. Simmons, president of the Simmons Hardware Co., last week gave the florists plenty of work. Many telegraph orders were filled. Mr. Simmons was a member of the Garden Club and took an active part in arrangements for the flower show next month.

W. C. Smith reports that beaded wood for the making of wood easels is hard to obtain and the many advance orders will have to be held up until a new supply arrives. In the meantime the factory is at a standstill.

Reports came into the wholesale district April 20 that the Macon Greenhouses and the Still Hildreth Greenhouses, at Macon, Mo., had been wrecked by the heavy wind and hail storm on the afternoon of April 19, which was verified by the afternoon press.

Foster the Florist furnished the decorations for the christening of the new steel barges at the foot of Locust street April 19. The work was elaborate and highly commented upon. The big job was executed by John J. Burke, the company's designer. The cost ran a little over $1,000.

At a meeting of the East St. Louis park board last week Emmet P. Griffin was reappointed superintendent of public parks. Spencer Ellsworth was elected secretary and John H. Thomas president of the board.

George Deutschmann, on the Manchester road, in Kirkwood, has erected a large signboard in front of his place, using only the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." This is the first billboard among the county growers and it attracts a great deal of attention from passengers in the many pleasure cars passing there daily.

There is a movement on foot among the retailers, wholesalers and growers to have all delivery trucks in the trade painted the same colors, with the slogan "Say It with Flowers" in the center. This, they say, would create much publicity and the public would soon know a florists' delivery car by its color.

Albert Senger and C. E. De Wever have a fine lot of hydrangeas that came in too late for Easter. Of these the trade bought heavily last week and they sold well on special sales days.

Miss Esther James was crushed to death by an elevator April 25, at the store of Grimm & Gorly, where she was employed as a salesgirl. She had run the passenger elevator from the first floor to the basement and left it standing unoccupied with the door open. For some unknown reason, the elevator started to move back to the first floor. When the girl saw it starting, she ran and attempted to climb into it. The lower part of her body, which was suspended from the floor of the elevator cage, was crushed as the car moved up-

The Market.

The almost continuously rainy weather last week proved bad for business, and trade has only been moderately good since the last reports, although matters were a little more encouraging April 24 and 26. The demand has been largely for funeral work, although a few weddings have helped out somewhat. The steamer trade of pre-war times is practically dead, as few passenger vessels have made Boston as a port of late years. Now that more nearly normal conditions are prevailing, we seem likely to get a number of steamers soon, and this will help trade somewhat.

Roses are little changed from a week ago. The continuance of cool weather has kept the supply down and prices, all things considered, are not at all bad. Carnations vary from $3 to $5 per hundred, except Laddie, which remains the leader and sells at $10 to $12 per hundred. Violets are done for the season. Sweet peas sell well, some fancy stock realizing $3 to $4, at which prices the best yellow marguerites go, although some fancies made $5 last week. Daffodils are not abundant, and prices hold up to $6 per hundred.

Lilies continue in overwhelming supply and sell only at low and unprofitable prices, $3 to $5 per hundred being average figures. An abundance of splendid snapdragon comes in, but the demand is poor and fancy stock worth $3 per dozen drags at one-third this price. Pansies are nearing the end, but a good supply of English primroses and polyanthus is offered. Callas are of slow sale; so are forget-me-not and mignonne. Some good Cattleya Mossiae is offered. Valley averages $10 per hundred and is of fair quality. The demand for asparagus is light.

The pot plant trade is tolerably good, and baskets of pansies and forget-me-nots are selling well.

Club Meeting.

At the last meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, April 20, there was a good attendance for a particularly busy season. Two new members were elected. It was unanimously voted to hold the annual picnic at Cunningham park, East Milton, about July 20, and arrangements were left to the executive committee. Announcement was made of the conference of the National Association of Gardeners in Horticultural hall May 6.

W. N. Craig was the speaker of the evening, his remarks being entitled "Some Seasonable Thoughts and Suggestions." Quarantine 37 was discussed and the speaker said that the real fight against it would soon begin, although the Federal Horticultural Board had come to the conclusion that opposition was sporadic and would soon peter out. In connection with the labor situation, suggestions were made for inducing boys and youths to take up floriculture and gardening as a profession. We must train boys here; the supply from abroad has practically dried up. The great decrease in labor on farms the last two years was serious and threatened a decided slump in food production in 1920. Boys and girls were available and should be utilized through the vacation periods. A man should be sent with each batch of boys, and far more would be accomplished.

The enormous damage to trees and shrubs by field mice was referred to and the senseless killing of snakes, hawks, owls and other natural foes of the mice was condemned. Smearing trunks with a mixture of lime, sulphur, salt, soluble oil and arsenate of lead had proved an effective protection.

The New York and Boston spring shows were commented upon. The former city needed a breaking away from the rather stereotyped arrangements and there was a danger in the over-

Fairly Breathes With the Thoughts of FLOWERS

THE custom of observing MOTHERS' DAY, starting a few years ago with the wearing of a single flower, has broadened into one of the Nation's chief flower days—and now the best in floral tributes is none too elaborate for Mother's token. Don't forget the McCallum Company is prepared to furnish all necessary supplies and accessories that are needed for this day.

How are you fixed for your needs in BASKETS for this day? Here's something entirely new in Basket weaving. We just received a large importation of a host of new designs in Baskets from Czecho-Slovakia. May we send you a sample assortment of, say, $25.00 to $50.00 worth, from which you may order your future requirements? Understand, these baskets are entirely different from the conventional designs you are accustomed to seeing.

some interesting letters on his Pacific coast trip. Mr. Elliott is a keen observer and will come back with new ideas regarding the handling at wholesale of cut flowers.

At Carbone's, in addition to the usual sales of plants and cut flowers, there is now a large call for garden seats, statuary, bird baths and miscellaneous garden furniture. Business has been extremely good this season, both retail and wholesale.

Fred Holbrow is cutting a nice lot of Bouvardia Humboldtii, which is in active demand for wedding bouquets.

Local members of the National Association of Gardeners are cordially invited to the conference to be held at Horticultural hall May 6, when problems pertaining to the profession will be discussed. Nonmembers will also be welcomed.

orders booked. Mr. Eisemann says business shows a steady improvement.

The supply of labor here is inadequate this season and its cost constantly increases. Not much relief seems probable until large numbers of immigrants come in, and of this there seems to be no immediate prospect. Both florists and gardeners are hard hit and both are operating under serious handicaps.

John J. O'Brien, of Beacon street, states that, in spite of the unfavorable weather for retailing, business holds up well and he has some good wedding orders booked.

Daylight saving went into effect in Massachusetts April 25 at 2 a. m. Trains are to be operated on eastern standard time, but will start in nearly all cases an hour earlier than formerly. They are obliged to use eastern standard time because, when Congress repealed daylight saving, it omitted to repeal the clause obliging trains to conform to national daylight saving time. There is little confusion with the new change and it seems to meet with nearly general satisfaction. W. N. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The railroad strike is over, the express companies have resumed regular deliveries to many points and out-of-town orders are again arriving satisfactorily; yet business is far from good. It is not easy to explain just why. Probably the cause lies between the natural increase in the supply and the natural decrease in the demand as spring advances. Perhaps the heavy crops of snapdragons and of sweet peas are more than usually difficult to market. The fact remains that prices are low and irregular. There is some waste. Even the week-end special sales do not clear the surplus. The general feeling is that business will improve in May. This sounds odd and almost impossible. The belief is, however, held by some of our shrewdest traders. They say that the supply will fall off soon and that the demand will be strong for some time to come. They point out that indoor lilac and violets are over, that daffodils will soon be over and that present conditions are likely to discourage the production of sweet peas and snapdragons. We shall see.

There are several interesting features of the market that are unusual. The strike so discouraged the shipment of southern daffodils that the season has closed with only a few shipments arriving here. Southern lilac has come. Another unusual occurrence is the arrival in April of local outdoor sweet peas, frame-grown, so it is said, one month ahead of time. If this is correct and they are grown without heat, it must be through improved culture of improved varieties. The extremely low price of lilies is another striking condition, not wholly unusual after Easter, but a condition that did not exist last year in the absence of war importations. The lilies are, in many cases, poor as to bloom and short as to stem. This stock is terribly hard to sell, as there is more than enough good stock to meet all demands.

heavy with a number of the retail stores, as the recently elected city officials took office that day and this event is always big in floral orders.

Launch Local Campaign.

A meeting of retail and wholesale florists and growers of the two Kansas Cities was held April 23 in Henry Kusik's office, in the interest of the associated advertising plan which was started two weeks ago. About thirty-five were present. Miss Hayden, of Samuel Murray's, who originated the idea here and worked up the meeting, explained the plan and it was heartily indorsed by everyone present. Between $800 and $1,000 was subscribed to be spent in advertising for Mothers' day in the local newspapers. The advertising will begin a week before the day and the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," will be featured. A committee composed of Miss Hayden, M. E. Carter and W. J. Barnes was named to have full charge of the campaign and the expenditure of the fund.

Besides the good that will be accomplished by the combined advertising, it is highly probable that the meeting of the florists on this matter will result in the formation of a local club or association, something that is strangely lacking in a city of this size, with the flower business on the high plane that it is here. The lack of coöperation has long been felt and has often been deplored by individuals and the time seems opportune for the starting of an organization that cannot fail to result in much good to everyone concerned.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll is of the opinion that Mothers' day will exceed any Christmas business that florists have ever had. "The sentiment of the day is what makes it strong," said Mr. Noll. "It appeals to every class and the person who cannot afford a dozen flowers will not be ashamed to buy one. Christmas means a time when $5 does not buy many flowers and this is beyond the reach of a great many with the numerous other demands for the holiday."

Hundreds of dollars' worth of flowers were presented to the old and new councilmen and other city officials at their inauguration April 19. J. R. McGrail had the order for decorating the council chamber, where the ceremonies were held, as well as for many of the offerings, and he has received from Mayor Cowgill a letter of appreciation for the manner in which the work was done. Mr. McGrail and several helpers worked all day Sunday at the city hall. Smilax, ferns, daisies, lilies and hydrangeas were used for decorations.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop made for Alderman Bivona, who was re-elected from the Italian district, a floral piece consisting of the American and Italian flags, standing eight feet high. The flags were complete on both sides. Three thousand carnations were used, some having to be dyed to get the national colors. It took twelve hours to make the flag and the completed design had to be delivered in an open truck with three men to handle it.

C. L. Thomas has 4,000 gladioli planted in the space back of his store and greenhouse and 2,000 more bulbs on the way for later planting.

J. R. McGrail attended the state Democratic convention in Joplin, Mo., April 22 to 23.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley had a heavy week on funeral orders. Many of the flowers left over from Easter were used.

Increasing business has necessitated the employment of another bookkeeper at the Muehlebach Flower Shop. L. Zwislser has the position.

Among other orders Samuel Murray had for Mrs. Kenneth Snyder's funeral, April 17, was a pall of soft ferns and a large cross of lilies of the valley.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. will fill orders for carnations for Mothers' day with assorted colors and will allow only one-third white on any order. They are suggesting May day baskets and boxes of assorted old-fashioned spring flowers to offset the demand for carnations. J. E. K.

W. S. Dolan has come here to take charge of the Kansas City office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. He has had much experience in both the sales and the production departments of the company in the Chicago office. H. A. Alsapach is no longer with the company.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Left-over Easter lilies are gradually going. Snapdragons and sweet peas are arriving in quantity. There will apparently be plenty of flowers for Mothers' day. Carnations and roses are coming in quite well. Everybody is busy now getting stock in shape for Memorial day.

Club Meeting.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association met at the Merriam Park Floral Co. greenhouses April 22. In spite of bad weather, about twenty-five members were present. August Swanson, Gust Malmquist and Fred Busch, three of the oldest members of the association, were #### Close Season with Tournament.

The "Say It with Flowers" bowling tournament, which was held Saturday evening, April 24, at the Western Rowing Club, St. Louis, Mo., closed the bowling season of the St. Louis florists. Twenty bowlers who finished the season with the "Say It with Flowers" league participated. The rolling started at 8:30 p. m. and over 100 members of the trade were in attendance to see the fun.

The arrangements at the clubhouse were in the hands of A. Meyer and Ed Niebling and were exceedingly well made and carried out. The score card printed for the occasion was enlivened by the nicknames of the contestants. All in attendance said that they never spent a more enjoyable evening of fun and excitement. be devoted to it. From these subjects he secures information, but many of them will also give training in thinking and in expression.

Importance of Science.

In addition to the major subjects, the student should spend considerable time on the fundamental sciences, such as botany, chemistry and physics. The study of all phases of botany is necessary because botany deals with plant life and the horticulturist is a grower of plants. If the amount of botany must be restricted, plant physiology and pathology must not be omitted, because the student should know how plants function and how to recognize and treat disease. Chemistry, besides being a good cultural subject, is necessary for a thorough understanding of soils, the second important item to the horticulturist.

The student should not neglect the cultural subjects, such as English, public speaking, history, sociology and philosophy, since these subjects are necessary on account of their broadening influence.

In these days more and more emphasis is placed upon business courses. It is not only essential that the horticulturist know how to grow plants, but he must know how to organize his business and dispose of his stock to the best advantage. Too little stress has been laid upon this phase of our work in the past. Business training may be

Training for Leadership.

From this suggested curriculum it can readily be seen that the college graduate is not a finished florist, landscape gardener or nurseryman, but a man well equipped to enter his chosen field and to become a master in it. He, like the apprentice, is ready to climb the ladder of success, but is better equipped to reach the top and is able to do it more quickly.

A well rounded college education also tends to give a man greater confidence both in himself and in his work. Confidence accompanied by clear thinking, accurate judgment and breadth of view places him in the position of a leader in his community.

I was once questioned by a gardener, who had received his training as an apprentice, why landscape architects were asked by employers to pink teas and invited to smoke 50-cent cigars, while gardeners were not. The answer is simple—training demands respect.

Research Best Done by Colleges.

In planning instructional work one must not forget the need for experimental work, or research. Experimental work is of especial value to the commercial man as a means of solving his problems and of increasing his output. It stands, then, for the advancement of all phases of horticulture.

The man in business should not be compelled to work out research problems of general interest. Few horticulturists have the time or money to spend in this manner, if business is to be properly cared for. All experimental work of general interest should be carried on in institutions with thoroughly equipped laboratories and with well trained staffs free from the worries of commercial work.

The type of experimental work which is most important deals with the fundamentals of plant growing, with the idea of solving the problems of the plant growers. There is no doubt that a better understanding of greenhouse soils and fertilizers, of plant nutrition and of atmospheric and soil moisture may revolutionize our methods of greenhouse culture. Just the other day a correspondent asked the question as to whether the more rapidly growing roses, such as Premier, did not have different soil requirements. Is it not possible that the growth of greenhouse crops may be varied by modifying the carbon dioxide content of the greenhouse atmosphere?

Much has been done in an experimental way for the farmer, but little for the florist or nurseryman. While it is true that many of the results secured from work in the field may be applied to ornamental crops, our work has its own peculiar problems. We need to develop men capable of attacking our problems and recording the results

Extension Work Follows Research.

The results of experimental work may be brought to the notice of the commercial men by means of bulletins or by extension work. Extension work is of great importance in spreading the gospel of good horticulture.

To get the real value out of extension work requires extension workers with a thorough training, both in theory and in practice, a broad viewpoint, a pleasing personality, a keen business insight

The steadily increasing size of The Review, both in number of pages and in circulation, makes it imperative that advertising copy be obtained farther in advance of publication date. In order that forms may be held open as late as possible, advertisers are urged to send instructions (to start or change) to reach Chicago Thursday, Friday or Saturday, whenever possible. Monday is the last day on which instructions regarding display advertisements can be received for the issue of that week.

CALENDULA FOLIAGE BURNED.

I am sending a calendula plant and shall greatly appreciate it if you will tell me the cause of the spots on the leaves. Would they be caused by too strong a spraying of nicotine? They were sprayed with nicotine about two weeks ago. If not, what else might be the cause, and what is the remedy for this trouble? C. F.—O.

The leaves arrived completely dried up and it was impossible to tell the cause of the injury or even notice it. I have no doubt that a strong spray of nicotine would be the cause of the burning, as calendula foliage is somewhat easily injured. C. W.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Little, if any, change was noticed in the market conditions last week. Stock of all kinds is arriving in large quantities, exceeding the demand. Roses are good and the prices run from $6 to $15 per hundred for short to special lengths, while some extra special stock was quoted higher. Some extra fine Russell has made its appearance and brings top prices. Snapdragon in various stages of development is arriving in large quantities. Carnations are of varied quality and are plentiful and the same holds good for sweet peas. Outdoor daffodils have lowered the standard of the indoor stock and do not give satisfaction, especially in the stores catering to the better class of trade. The green situation is normal again. Ferns are losing their vitality and are about at the end of their usefulness.

Mothers' day is being looked forward to by all as bigger than ever this year and to all appearances a record-breaking business will be done. In blooming plants the only available stock is geraniums, hydrangeas and rose bushes. Geraniums are being offered for sale in large quantities and at prices about the same as last year.

Memorial day for the southern heroes, which was April 26, did not bring any perceptible increase in business in this market.

Various Notes.

William Murphy Co. is handling first-class sweet peas, stocks and calla lilies.

Peter Weiland has been receiving splendid single daffodils. Sweet peas are good here.

C. E. Critchell is receiving fine Russell roses from Newcastle, Ind. They are in big demand. He is also featuring fine snapdragons and calendulas.

T. W. Hardesty & Co. featured rose bushes in the windows last week. Mr. Hardesty says that business keeps up well.

Julius Baer is having a run on hydrangeas, his large windows being suitably adapted to displaying stock of this kind.

Edward Forter says that business holds up well in all departments, funeral work having the call.

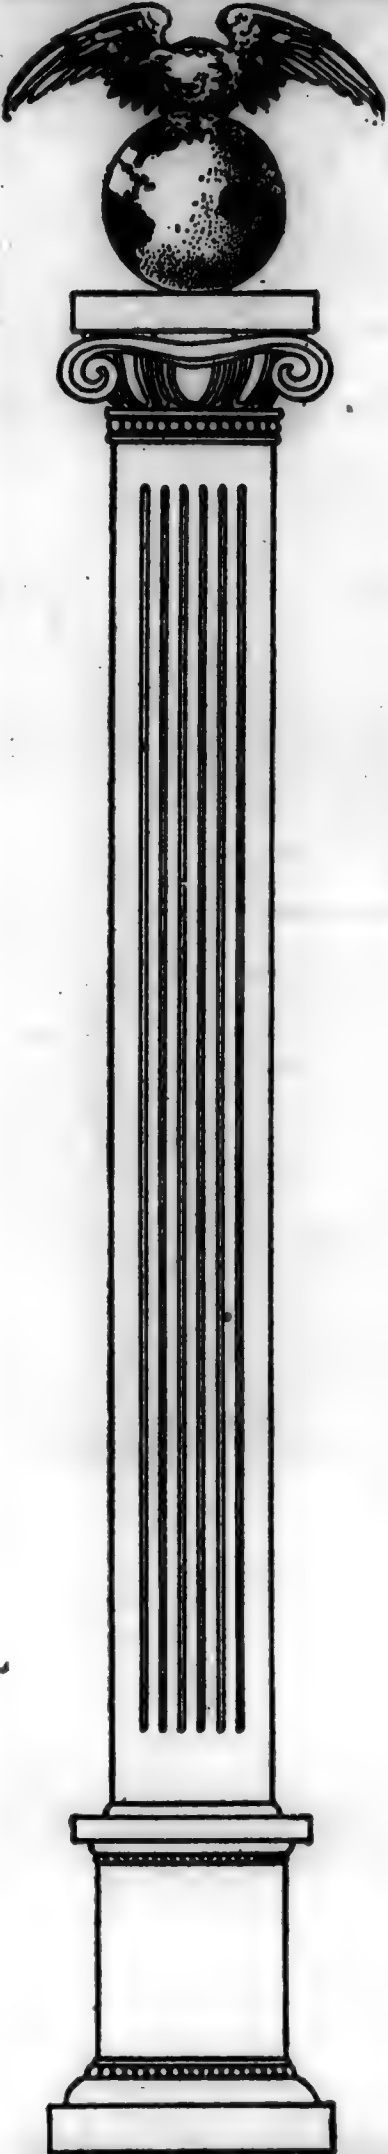

George Kessen, formerly of Avondale Floral Co., has joined the force at H. W. Sheppard's. Business with this firm is on the increase. H. E. K.

Sanborn, N. Y.—Frederick F. Rinz, who started in business two years ago, plans to move to Detroit, Mich., next fall or the following spring and erect a much larger greenhouse than he has yet had.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

An Opportunity.

To florists who wish to work up some local publicity in a novel way, it is suggested that they take advantage of the opportunity presented in most of the larger moving picture theaters, especially those having vaudeville, to feature the official "Say It with Flowers" song. An orchestra score, as well as the vocal score, is available through the publishers and the proper rendition of the song is demonstrated on the Columbia phonograph record now to be had of any Columbia dealer. This record is fully endorsed by the composer.

Several florists in the smaller towns have attempted this feature with great success and, with the distribution of a few flowers to an audience, it is said to be "big stuff." It is well worth a trial. Incidentally, it might be said that the song, as a headline feature at the Palace theater, New York, and at a prominent theater in Buffalo, last week increased its standing as a popular hit.

Poster Displays.

We are drawing near to Mothers' day, one of the two big flower days remaining for us this season. Florists who are not using the posters and other aids for this day's publicity, available at the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago, are making a mistake, as the day cannot possibly be overadvertised as one for gifts of flowers. Mothers, as a rule, particularly the older ones, have many loving hearts within their family circles willing to pay homage on this day, if they are not allowed to forget. A liberal poster display is equal to a good many finger strings for memory-jogging purposes. Again, these aids tie up well with the magazine advertising of our campaign.

Indifference to Fund.

Reference has frequently been made to the growing use of flowers as subjects for the embellishment of magazine advertisements. Who has not seen the beautiful advertisements in colors of a prominent corset manufacturer, in which flowers are made to dominate the design? Printers' Ink Monthly, a magazine advocating art in advertising, reproducing one of these advertisements as an artistic example, says: "This company is to be congratulated on getting away from the customary display of a corseted figure, for without question this picture of the corset and its container grouped with beautifully painted flowers on the blue satin background is a decided step forward artistically." All such advertising, of which this is only one of many examples, helps to keep flowers in the public mind and, perhaps not strange to say, the innovation is synonymous with our campaign of publicity for flowers.

Disappointment over the lax support

A Mother Thought for Mothers' Day

A couple of weeks or so ago, I wrote for our Mothers' Day circular a simple little tale, telling of a childhood experience.

Although it happened so many years ago, it's as vivid as if it only happened yesterday.

Something tells me you would be interested in it. So here it is:

"One morning, when a kid, care-free on my way to school, I spied, over a fence, Spring's first golden fleeced dandelion.

"To take to Mother the first-found bloom of the season was always one of my greatest delights.

"So I hastily clambered over the sharp pointed pickets and was just about to pick the flower, when a gruff voice, backed by a scowling face, ordered me out in no uncertain terms.

"Regardless of my childish plea for the remembrance to Mother, he shook me roughly and made me clamber back, flowerless.

"Childlike, I hurried home and told it to Mother, who although sympathetic, her face was filled with joy.

"Wondered why then—

"But now know it was because I had remembered to remember her love of flowers.

"So it is, that each Mothers' Day I am doubly reminded of Mother, and in turn send her flowers as their own best message of love."

So, my good friends, when you are sending so many thoughts for the Mothers of others, don't forget to send a floral thought to that Mother of yours.

given to our publicity fund continues. A week of good response is followed by one of absolute indifference. It is truly either a feast or a famine, instead of a steady stream of contributions, as our committee has the moral right to expect. We have never sought to criticize the amounts of contributions as they come in, but we have easily been able to distinguish those which come from the heart as well as from the pocket. When a florist writes, "I am enclosing to you my check for $5, all I feel that I can contribute at present, but am in hopes I shall be able to send more later," we feel highly gratified. We know that man's contribution is

MR. JOHN T. MUIR, 4647 Grand Blvd., City.

Dear Mr. Muir:

It might be of interest to you to know how much the officers of this bank appreciated the admirable taste which you displayed in the arrangement of the design and the beautiful flowers used in the floral piece furnished by you at the time of Mr. Lambert's funeral.

It was an occasion on which we felt that the best was none too good and we were very much gratified at your effort in that direction. It was also spoken of by Mrs. Lambert afterwards as being the most wonderful assemblage of flowers that she had ever seen.

Feeling confident that you would be pleased to know of these favorable comments, I have taken the liberty of writing you this letter.

Very sincerely,

H. R. KENT, V. P.

started from two points of his make-up. We believe in him just as he believes in our campaign. There surely must be many more such men, a little too proud, perhaps, to send so small a contribution. They need not fear criticism. If our committee could only depend upon sufficient help of this kind, its road would be easy traveling. Who will take this hint today? ### CANADIAN EXECUTIVE MEETS.

Plans for Convention in August.

The annual meeting of the executive committee of the Canadian Horticultural Association was held at Hamilton April 12 and 13. Judging from the tone of the sessions and the program which was arranged, a record convention in August is certain. E. B. Hamilton, the president, was in the chair at all the meetings.

The first session was taken up with reports from various committees which have been working since the last convention, the education, registration, statistics and press committees each receiving attention. The members of the executive committee were invited by the local committee to join them at lunch following the afternoon session. Major John Cannon, a past president of

H. B. Dorner on Horticultural Schools.

At this meeting an address was given by H. B. Dorner, professor of horticulture at the University of Illinois; it was a treat long to be remembered by those who heard it. He approached the subject from the highest viewpoint, claiming for the work of the colleges that, while the atmosphere was to some extent academic, the one product more than all others which they aimed to turn out was capable, broad-minded men, who, while they were horeducation committee has for some time been working to stimulate greater interest in horticultural education and its members were fortunate in again listening to Professor Dorner, who emphasized the points of his previous evening's address and dealt in more detail with the methods adopted at his college. It was difficult to decide whether to admire most the clear setting out of details, which were of great value, or the deep feeling with which the address was given. The work undertaken by the committee received the greatest possible encouragement from the visit of Professor Dorner, who was sincerely thanked for his presence. A brief discussion followed and it was decided to approach the department at once with a view to securing the appointment of a man to be sent around the province to report on conditions and

The concluding session was taken up with the remaining details in connec-

the report of the registration committee. A real effort is being made to have an efficient system of plant regis-committee is now being appointed and minor details are being perfected.The keynote of the meetings was "progress" and, with a continuance of the present marked enthusiasm, horticulture in the Dominion is surely going to take the place which it justly deserves. A hearty welcome awaits visiof the foremost men in the florists' business in North America were speakers. Seated at the head table were H. G. Dillemath, toastmaster; George Asmus, of Chicago; Fred C. W. Brown, of Cleveland; Wallace Eiss, of Buffalo; E. B. Hamilton, president of the C. H. A., London, Ont.; W. E. Groves, of Hamilton; Walter Muston, Toronto; James S. Wilson, of Woodstock; John H. Dunlop, of Richmond Hill; Orlando Ofield, of Grimsby; John Mills, Alexander Simpson and Silas McFadden, Toronto.

The banquet was supplied by the ladies. Flowers for the beautiful decorations were supplied by the different growers and local florists, while the decorating was done by Len Waters.

George Asmus was given a great reception. He came from Chicago to give an outline of the procedure in that city by which the growers and retailers cooperate in disposing of stock. He said that the whole business is built on the idea that people love flowers. We have done a great business; but it has been seasonable and due to luck and not because of any effort put forth by the retailers and growers themselves.

HENRY R. COMLEY, Florist, 6 Park Street
50 years' experience in the florist business guarantees efficiency to take care of all orders. 20 per cent allowed.

Money was made in the business because labor, growing and selling costs were low. But now a different situation has arisen. Now coöperation is necessary to sell more flowers and increase the profits to meet the growing costs and have a little left over. Speaking of national publicity, he said that in a great many lines national campaigns are being carried on and, with the exception of a little voluntary effort by members of the S. A. F. last year, the florists have done nothing. "Say It with Flowers" has been a wonderful slogan and worth a great deal of money. People have made inquiries regarding the small campaign of last year, the slogan and the cost, showing that if a little advertising brought a little attention, a bigger campaign would get a great deal more. To create a demand, florists must advertise scientifically. The grower has a greenhouse today because the people love flowers and with the opportunities at hand he ought to do a bigger business by advertising. The growers have ninety per cent of the investment in the florists' trade, yet they are dependent on the efforts of the owners of the other ten per cent to dispose of the stock. In Chicago growers and retailers have united to spend $60,000, which they have raised on an assessment basis on developing trade.

In Milwaukee the same scheme has been so successful that instead of a levy of one per cent on goods sold in the city they are making a levy of two per cent this year. The amount of sales in the city has increased from fifty to seventy-five per cent of the total sales as a result of advertising.

The coöperative system is a paying one and if the growers and retailers get together and advertise they will be surprised at the excellent results which will be obtained.

Fred C. W. Brown outlined the work proposed for the national flower growers' association, reading from the constitution to give an idea of what could be undertaken if the growers would get together.

Wallace Eiss, of Buffalo, outlined the plan in Buffalo, where $11,000 had been raised voluntarily and the plan was being continued this year. He said that the man who gave $40 is getting the benefit of the whole amount. Both at Christmas and at Easter new customers were made and he gave examples of many who used flowers at these two seasons to say their good wishes where other means had been used before. This was only done by advertising and the advertising was made possible by all getting together.

PROPRIETOR

The Rose Shop

W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, spoke on cooperation and said it did not need to take away anyone's individuality to work together in this way. Each must recognize the rights of the other. In Hamilton it had been tried in a small way and he hoped that it was only the beginning of larger things in the city.

W. W. Gammage, John H. Dunlop, E. B. Hamilton and Walter Muston spoke favorably of cooperation. On calling for a standing vote by those favoring the idea of cooperative advertising, George Asmus brought the whole assemblage to their feet. President Dille-muth then announced that a meeting of growers and retailers would be called immediately to deal with the matter in a concrete manner.

Association Meets.

The regular meeting of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association was held April 20, Vice-president F. D. Clark occupying the chair. Alexander Simpson drew attention to the fine display of the seedling Frank D. Dunlop rose, which had carried off the chief prizes at New York and Boston shows. He proposed that Mr. Dunlop be written a letter congratulating him on the success of the rose. The association not only decided to do this, but the judges in their report gave it the diploma of merit.

Mr. Simpson was appointed official representative to the C. H. A. convention in Hamilton August 10 to 13.

Mr. Simpson attended the recent meeting of the C. H. A. executive committee and gave a full report. He also

GARDENERS TO MEET.

In Boston May 6.

A gardeners' conference, under the auspices of the members of the National Association of Gardeners located in the vicinity of Boston, will be held in Boston Thursday evening, May 6. ful and drew forth many helpful suggestions from the floor.

The general work of the National Association of Gardeners will be discussed and plans of the campaign about to be launched to arouse the interest of young men in the profession of gardening will be explained. As is now generally recognized, the difficulty of securing assistant gardeners is proving a serious factor in the operation of country estates, many of which have to be maintained with practically unskilled labor, skilled help being almost unprocurable.

The association has recently added the following names to its list of sustaining members: L. P. Jensen, St. Louis, Mo.; A. Bieschke, Noroton, Conn.; J. Dymock, Somerville, N. J.; H. Hundt, Perrysburg, O.; J. Buckingham, Wilmington, Del.; T. Hambleton, Suffern, N. Y.; H. Gibson, Brookville,

The Market.

The wholesale markets are cleaning up well every day. On the whole, the stock is good and prices continue reasonable. As a matter of fact, practically everything is disposed of during the day. Roses and carnations are particularly good, the latter demanding $6 straight, while roses range from $5 up. There are still a few lilies, which sell at $15. Valley has been arriving fairly well right along since Easter. There is a scarcity of ferns, owing to the express embargo, none, indeed, having writer saw as good roses being sold on the curb as it would have been possible to get in any of the best stores. It was a case of the flowers being in the commission houses and no sale for them through the usual channels. This, of course, created an opportunity for the street merchants and they procured a better grade of stock than usual.

Last week the market had recovered, the demand increasing and stock being of fine quality. Roses were especially fine. Carnations, while not any too plentiful, were plentiful enough to meet all demands. Sweet peas are still on the market in fine quality and fair quantity. There is plenty of bulbous stock; in fact, anything in season can be had in almost any quantity desired.

surprised to see an entire page lauding Radiance rose and its producer, John Cook. They spoke of it as being the "Cinderella of the Rose World" and claimed that it has never received the credit that it deserves. In Australia it is used for hedges, according to this account, and the National Rose Society of New South Wales has voted it to be the best rose for that locality. When we read such items as this it brings home to us how our old friend has placed Baltimore on the map of the world.

Did everyone see the advertisement on the last or local news page of the Sun Saturday, April 17? This paper goes into 70,000 homes every day in our city. Remember there will, from time to time during the spring, be oversupplies of stock and every $2 box you sell will be that much kept off the streets. The object of the Associated Florists of Baltimore in featuring this advertisement, which will appear every Saturday, is to keep much of this surplus stock moving through the regular channels. This is the surest way to drive the faker off the street. When the public realizes that it can procure a properly packed box, at a reasonable price, it is not going to fool with the faker who wraps the purchase in an old newspaper. Stand by this campaign; if you are not already in, get in; forget yourself for a while and boost the business as a whole. You have all been talking coöperation for a long time; here is your opportunity. Everyone is familiar with the national game and you know that it is sacrifice hitting that wins the pennant.

Did everyone see the advertisement in the Evening Sun Tuesday, April 20? Everyone I have spoken to seems proud of it and people are asking who the Associated Florists are. A number of people have the erroneous idea that it is a new concern that has started in the florists' business. I notice that several of the florists started with individual advertisements at the same time the big advertisement appeared. It might be a good suggestion for the florists who are going to do individual advertising to tie up with this campaign to insert in their advertisements the phrase, "Members of the Associated Florists," and those who are not contemplating any publicity would do well to mark all stationery with an announcement of the same fact. In the public press, in theaters, banks and trust companies, the people will be coming into contact with the Associated Florists and this will connect you with the campaign.

The Flower Mart will be held this year as usual at the base of Washington's monument, May 12. It is going to be on a larger scale than ever before. The school children are to have part, as well as many other amateur horticultural organizations. Here will be a good opportunity for the advertising committee to "Say It with Flowers."

The firm of Mary Johnston added a new member to its staff Friday, April 16. For a few years, at least, he will be strictly an inside man. Robert is the happy father, and grandfather and grandmother Johnston bear the honor of their new titles modestly. Tate.

THE ROSE ANNUAL FOR 1920.

["The American Rose Annual; the 1920 Year-book of Rose Progress," edited for the American Rose Society by J. Horace McFarland. Bound in cloth, in uniform style with preceding volumes of the series; 188 pages, with twenty full-page plates in color and sepia, a full-page rose-zone map and several smaller illustrations.]

Most florists are well aware that the American Rose Society is proud of its annual or yearbook; members of the society lose no opportunity to sound the annual's praises. Many florists, however, may not fully realize what excellent reasons there are for this outspoken pride; many are unappreciative because they have not seen a sample of the books. When permitted to present their own case, the books amply justify the high esteem in which they are held. It seems safe to say, too, that the present volume, the fifth in the series, is at least as good as any of its predecessors. And though the Rose Society's annual can be obtained only by members of the association, the gate to membership is not especially narrow or too tightly bolted and barricaded. "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you"—if you are a rose-lover and will pay your dues.

One of the most noticeable characteristics of this book is the large proportion of the text that has been written by non-commercial rosarians. But only a moment's reflection is needed to perceive that there are advantages in relying largely on such a class of contributors. Many of these non-commercial rosarians have exceptional opportunities for horticultural investigation and experiment. And the results of their work, being available to the florists through this annual and otherwise, are a great boon to the trade.

The writers just referred to, though not commercial florists, are not at all amateurish in the sense of being superficial or impractical; they are experts. For instance, Dr. W. Van Fleet, plant physiologist of the Department of Agriculture and famous in the trade as the originator of a number of fine roses, has supplied "Rose-breeding Notes" for the present volume, as well as for the previous issues. And Captain George C. Thomas, Jr., also a noted rose hybridizer, tells about "The Hardy Everblooming Climber." A. W. Greeley, a newspaper editor, writes most interestingly about "Night Growth of Roses"; he states that his researches "point tentatively to the conclusion that from sixty to eighty per cent of rose-cane growth is made during the night."

Two short articles are given on the strawberry root worm, a new pest which has done great damage of late in greenhouses in the vicinity of Philadelphia. Other themes that are ably discussed in this volume, by well-known men both in the trade and out of it, are rose midge and other pests, mildew and other fungous troubles, getting new roses from abroad, own-root versus budded roses, plant patents, etc. Of course the book also contains the sort of information that is found in the ordinary year-book, such as lists of rose introductions, a record of the work of the society, the rose garden trials and other useful details. The illustrations are fine enough broken and much rain has fallen lately.

This, along with the railroad strike, has been a great setback to nurserymen and shipping has been at a standstill.

The Painesville Garden & Greenhouse Co. is cutting some fine sweet peas for the Cleveland market.

There is a heavy demand for Pyrethrum roseum and Gypsophila paniculata by florists for outdoor cut flowers.

Joseph Kallay, nurseryman, used his big truck to good advantage during the embargo on shipping and made many long-distance trips. T. J. M.

Marion, S. C.—J. N. Tenhet intends

The Market.

Last week much of the accumulated surplus stock was moved by a week-end sale, advertised and staged by all stores. The specials were carnations and roses; to these some retailers added sweet peas. Saturday and Sunday were bright, warm days and the stores all did a fine business.

Various Notes.

The store of Galley Bros., on Genesee street, will close May 1. Andrew Galley, the manager, has other interests, the principal one being the promoting of an invention, a light to be attached to the rear of automobiles to indicate the direction in which the driver expects to turn.

James Peake, of Walden avenue, is ill and has not been able to be around the last few days.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Yakima, Wash.—Barton the Florist recently had a good display, in which he featured Columbia roses.

Pasadena, Cal.—Sadie A. Thomas, whose specialty is chrysanthemums, has one of the largest collections of varieties to be found anywhere in the United States. She does an extensive mail order business.

Sedro Woolley, Wash.—C. I. Breithaupt, proprietor of the Sedro-Woolley Greenhouses, has purchased the Butler greenhouse at Burlington. With this addition he has 5,400 feet of glass, the largest amount in that part of the state, outside Bellingham.

Hoquiam, Wash.—At the greenhouses of the Grays Harbor Floral Co. the first blooms on two calla plants were double; that is, one bloom inside another. The second blooms were single, as normally. A. W. Tweedie considered this a peculiar freak. It is occasionally seen on calla plants.

Retailers report business good and everyone is making a fine show. Carnations, roses and all staples are in good supply, in most cases in excess of the demand, but prices rule fairly high. Violets are over and the outdoor sweet peas and Cecile Brunner roses are in demand for corsages. Cattleya Mossiae is in, making a fine show and being in good demand. Valley is in fine supply, but is unavoidably high in price. Greens are more plentiful.

Various Notes.

W. G. Martin, for some time gardener in this section for the Southern Pacific railroad, has sold his home here, resigned his position and is moving to Imperial, where he is going into farming. Mrs. Martin and their children have already left for their new home. His many friends will wish him the best of luck and success.

The Market.

Business in general has been up to normal since Easter, with a fairly good supply of seasonable stock. Some kinds of stock are a little scarce, on account of the weather conditions, which have been disagreeable for the last two weeks. Dark, cold and rainy weather has been the rule and consequently flower stocks have suffered. Everyone is earnestly wishing for warm, bright weather. Growers who depend largely on outdoor stock will be late in getting started.

The Market.

It was hoped that shipping embargoes would be off by last week, but the curtailment on outgoing orders was still exerting an influence on the flower market. As far as could be ascertained, no consignments of flowers or other perishable goods were being accepted by the railroads for destinations beyond Butte and Denver. While some of the shippers reported a good deal of business within the radius of service, others had practically discontinued all shipments for the time being. This situation was particularly regrettable, as the local market had a large supply of flowers, the quality was excellent and many orders were on file.

In view of the disorganization of the shipping market, it might be expected that conditions would be bad locally. However, this is not the case. Though the market is not so firm as it would be if quantities of flowers were being shipped out each day, many social functions utilizing large amounts of stock have come in opportunely during the last two weeks and have tended to keep down the surplus. Prices have not dropped noticeably, except on roses, of which there is an abundance, most of the growers cutting heavily on such heavy as yet. For first cutting the quality is excellent. Snapdragons are still offered freely, as are daisies, marigolds, pansies, gypsophilas and other miscellaneous stock, giving wide variety to both the wholesale and the retail displays.

Gardenias are short of the demand, but the supply of orchids is ample for all requirements.

All indications point to plenty of fine stock for Mothers' day, also for Memorial day. The shippers have a good many advance orders for both these days and some little uneasiness is felt over the possibility of not being able to fill them. As far as Mothers' day is concerned, more interest is shown locally than in former years.

A new store has just been opened near Sacramento street, the Polk Street Florists are enlarging their store and quarters are being fitted up for still another store; these are in addition to the old established houses in the same neighborhood and the Conservatory, opened just before Easter at Geary and Larkin streets.

Mrs. Ansbro has wanted to establish herself on Polk street for a long time, but was unable to secure a suitable location until just recently. She has lived in the neighborhood for about fifteen years and is thoroughly familiar with conditions and trade in that vicinity. For ten years she was with the Misses Hannon, who formerly conducted a store on Polk street and later moved downtown.

EVERYTHING FOR THE GREENHOUSE
1206 N. 47th Street, SEATTLE, WASH.

A good many wedding decorations are in sight for the next few weeks.

Albert O. Stein and his staff of decorators have been unusually busy for several weeks with various large decorations and two or three big funerals. One of the most effective decorations ever seen in San Francisco was for a birthday party for Mrs. I. Magnin, at the St. Francis hotel. A sunken garden effect was carried out in the center of the room, with a table around it seating seventy-five guests. Gravel walks, miniature beds of pansies, shrubbery and blooming plants of various kinds made the garden highly realistic, and the lighting effect suggested moonbeams. Banks of ramblers in the corners spread over the table more or less and garlands of spring flowers gave a bright touch of color. Many favorable comments on the decoration were heard. The next day an elaborate decoration was arranged by Mr. Stein for a luncheon in the Italian room of the same hotel in honor of Miss Helen Taft. The Hellman funeral came the same week. All in all, Mr. Stein says this has been a particularly heavy season and the calendar is well filled with social events for the remainder of the spring.

C. A. Stappenbeck, on Polk street, near Sutter street, has no complaints to make about business. He has a fine cut of roses now, particularly Columbia and Ophelia. The opening of the new salesrooms of the Peacock Motor Co. in the vicinity caused a rush on baskets and other large pieces.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee took advantage of the lull in shipping orders to go down the coast on an automobile trip for a week. She enjoyed the outing and rest, after a most strenuous season of eastern shipments, and is now getting ready for her annual vacation, which starts each year June 2. Miss Edith Small is leaving for Fresno on her vacation.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, left for Europe April 17, accompanied by his wife and daughter. One of the principal objects of his trip is to visit his father, who is getting well along in years. Mr. Podesta is not expected back much before Christmas. At the store business is reported good for this time of the year. Two large funerals last week caused a rush on this class of work.

Joe Baumgarten has given up his position with Julius Eppstein at the St. Francis hotel and is going on a trip. Miss Hein, an experienced florist, has been engaged to fill the vacancy. Mr. Eppstein says that he never before had so many table decorations and calls for flowers for social events; the public is becoming more and more educated to the possibilities of floral work.

Steve Fazio, of the California Floral Co., on California street, near Hyde street, reports that business has been holding up especially well since Easter.

F. C. Jaeger & Son await the delivery of a new Dodge car for use in the business; it is coming from the east and has been held up by the railroad strike.

Although stock is in large supply, J. A. Axell says that it all cleans up at fairly good prices. He looks for a fine Mothers' day business, but does not expect it to be so good as it would if the trade had taken steps to push it a little more here.

Gen. A. J. Gooch says that the embargo on perishables has brought shipping business practically to a standstill, no shipments being taken for points beyond Butte and Denver. He has been filling a big demand for anemones and ranunculuses, the public coming to appreciate the beauty of these flowers more and more each season. #### The Market.

After-Easter trade finds the market somewhat long on roses and carnations, the price of both coming down considerably. Daffodils are plentiful and find a ready sale. Perennial plants are starting to move. The cold weather this spring so far has held up planting.

The outlook for spring stock was never better and the demand will no doubt be heavy this year, especially with Memorial day coming on Sunday.

Various Notes.

Harry Lozier has been notified by James J. Newton, commissioner of patents, that his application for a patent on the Lozier flower basket was allowed April 13. The price of reed baskets has advanced so much that Mr. Lozier feels certain that his basket will be a success and fill the demand for a medium-priced basket.

A. J. Burt reports his landscape work good this year, as a number of new homes are being built and many changing hands.

cuts have been able to secure good prices. Ophelia and Columbia is the most plentiful, with Premier in good supply and a good cut of Ward arriving.

Carnations are improving and the growers are working hard to have the needed supply on hand for Mothers' day. Laddie carnations have kept especially well and were used in a number of store decorations. Violets have been scarce. Blooming pansy plants are being offered by some of the florists, but no cut stock has appeared. The cut of orchids has been up to standard, both in quality and quantity, with the sale of the more expensive corsages taking up the supply easily, but gardenias and lilies of the valley have been scarce. There is a plentiful supply of calla and Easter lilies and the sale of these has been slow, so that a good share of these flowers has been used in funeral work.

Potted plants have been good sellers, with primroses and cinerarias of the brighter shades hard to get. Plenty of hydrangeas are to be had. Some especially colorful shades of tulips have been on the market and these have been used freely in the baskets which have been selling so well. Daffodils are plentiful, but in slower demand as the season progresses.

Various Notes.

E. A. Feters and Thomas Brown, of Detroit, Mich., were guests of Dr. Walter A. Moore last week and George B. Wiegand, of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Wiegand passed through this city on their way home from California.

William Goldsberry, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, took advantage of the showing at a local theater of the picture "Everywoman" to feature a card in his window with the inscription, "Everywoman likes her sweetheart to 'Say It with Flowers' bought at this store." An excellent photograph of the actress playing the part of "Everywoman" in the film was shown on this card and prospective customers were attracted by the novelty.

The Thomas Floral Co. has been sending in some fine Ward roses and potted watsonias and both have proved good sellers.

In recent window displays Rosaia Bros. have grouped their central display about a mounted golden pheasant and this colorful object furnished the contrast needed for the lighter shades of flowers grouped about it.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, reports further progress in the installation of fixtures in the new store on Second avenue. The greenhouses of this firm are sending in the best red carnations seen on the market and some fine Keizers-kroon tulips.

A wedding bouquet novelty, which was originated by the Hollywood Gardens and is now being commented on by Vogue and other women's magazines, is the use of a real ostrich fan to form the holder for the bride's and bridesmaids' bouquets.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has been featuring small baskets of potted flowers in bright colors, flanked on either side by small ferns, in her window displays and reports good results in sales made to the different office buildings.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop reports a big run in basket trade, with home decorations mainly of luncheon and dinner-table centerpieces. H. M.

Gentlemen—It may interest you to know the results from the few Freesias that we had from you August, 1919—3000 5-8 inch and 2000 3-4 inch—5000 in all. From the 5000 bulbs we cut and sold practically 24,000 blooms. We think this is a wonderful result, and whether our methods of culture were different or not, we give great credit to the quality of the bulbs.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.;
secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

IN a general way it is the newer middle-western seed houses that have had the big increases in mail orders this season.

IT is turning out as some seedsmen predicted, that a large percentage of the public are too prosperous to garden this season.

THE official roster of the Harnden Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo., is: President and treasurer, W. W. Harnden; vice-president, C. E. Harnden; secretary, G. C. Harnden; manager, C. C. Andrews.

THE French, as well as the Germans, prefer the American medium of exchange, quoting seeds and bulbs in dollars instead of francs, something unheard-of before 1918. Wonder how long it will be before the British quote in dollars instead of shillings?

HEAVY snow at Boulder, Colo., April 18, tied up transportation and mails so that business in the seed houses there was almost paralyzed for a time. Since then the rush of delayed mail has swamped them with orders, which they are working at top speed to fill.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, has leased two new locations, one for the main loop store, almost across the street, and one for the west side store, not far distant from the old location. The dates of removal are uncertain, being dependent on the time of starting new buildings at the old sites.

PROPAGANDA FOR SEEDSMEN.

Under the caption, "Home Gardens or Hunger?" a double-column editorial almost the depth of the page in the Philadelphia North American for April 17 pointed out the factors that are curtailing this year's food production and virtually compel home gardening.

The government's crop report of winter wheat at twenty-five per cent below normal, 81,000 Pennsylvania farmers without help to produce their normal crops, a reduction of one-third of a million acres in cultivated land in New York state this year, dependency on foreign countries for a large part of our vegetable supply, Maine potato fields with only women and old men at work, fertilizer supply only seventy-five per cent of normal—these are the danger signals used to flag the neglectful home gardener.

"The situation, when boiled down, is this—at no time in recent years has every indication pointed to such an acute food shortage as must come next fall and winter, unless every effort is made to avert such a catastrophe. The home garden must be viewed in the light of a defense against famine. Its contribution to health and education is, for the time being, a secondary consideration. Under existing conditions it assumes the important role of insurance against hunger," states the editorial.

The editorial further points out that seeds have advanced little or none in price and some are even cheaper than two years ago.

Attracting the attention of seedsmen, this editorial has aroused comment, for its arguments are stated in positive, convincing terms. The demand for seeds in Philadelphia must have increased of late. Says one seedsman, "The North American certainly knows whereof it speaks."

In the face of the reduced purchases of vegetable seeds by truck growers and farmers, whatever can be done to swell the number of home gardeners will be welcomed by seedsmen.

AXEL SETTERBERG.

Conforming to the latest style in business, that of growing rapidly, the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, has become better and better known to the seed trade of this country. One of the chief ways by which this wider acquaintance has been established has been the extensive advertising of the company. The prime cause for this has been the individual whose portrait appears on this page, Axel Setterberg,

His ability has made him desired for other than a seedsman's work. He was

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Sadie A. Thomas, Pasadena, Cal.—Tenth annual catalogue of chrysanthemums; illustrated, thirty-two pages and cover. "We list the largest collection on the Pacific coast," says the proprietor. She states, further, that "all plants are sand-rooted cuttings," from outdoor-grown stock.

McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.—A large, well printed, fully illustrated folder, offering florists' supplies, such as wreaths, baskets, vases, plant stands, cypas, moss, lycopodium and other materials. "You will find here," says the company, "a specially prepared list of spring money-makers and staple trade-producers."

MORE SEED FLAX THIS YEAR.

Considerably more seed flax than usual should be planted this year, says the Department of Agriculture. At least 2,000,000 acres, the department believes, should be sown, almost wholly in the four principal flax-producing states—Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana. Last year's acreage was only 1,683,000 and, owing to unfavorable conditions, produced an extremely light yield of seed, only about 9,000,000 bushels.

The normal consumption of flaxseed in the United States for the manufacture of linseed oil and other products and for resowing is about 28,000,000 bushels a year. Average production for the last seven years has been less than half that much.

Because of the short supply and general high prices, together with high freight rates from Argentina, the price of flaxseed has been extremely high during the last year, ranging up to $6 a bushel.

Argentina is harvesting a large crop and will have from 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of seed for export, much of which will be available for use in the United States, but ocean freight rates from Argentina apparently insure a fair price for flaxseed grown in the United States.

The limiting factors, aside from the weather, in the sowing of flax this spring are likely to be seed supply and ability of farmers to finance sowing. The 1919 crop was of such poor quality that much of it is not fit for seed. Even where good seed was produced many farmers were forced to sell because of the failure of other crops. The available supply is short, therefore, and will be high in price. Some flaxseed can be obtained from northwest Canada and will be entirely suitable for the flax-growing regions of the United States. It is not safe, the department warns, to sow Argentine seed.

Thorough preparation of the land and sowing under as favorable conditions as possible are highly desirable, in view of the high price of seed. The best date for seeding, generally speaking, is during the first half of May. On well-prepared land, under favorable conditions, fifteen pounds of seed to the acre may be sufficient, so that, even though the seed is high in price, the acre cost is lower than for other small grain crops.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, Chicago, celebrates his natal anniversary April 29. He was born in 1867 on the nursery property, then far in the country, now the largest undivided tract inside the city limits.

STANDARDIZATION OF PRICES.

Will Encourage Local Trading.

The definition of "standard" is: "Established as a rule or model by respectable authority, custom or general consent; having a fixed or permanent value." The old rule that prices are governed by supply and demand has in the past been a great factor in regulating prices of any commodity and always will be to a greater or less extent. Yet I believe it is possible for nurserymen to come to some agreement whereby they may be able to charge approximately the same price for any article in their line of trade according to size and quality. Quality cuts a large figure with the buyer, as do also service and the promptness with which orders are filled, so that there will be competition along these lines and the same incentive as in the past to grow better stock and ship it in better condition than competitors do.

The buyer naturally wants to secure his stock as near home as possible, where he can select it and feel sure it will please him when he receives it. The freight charge is smaller and stock is less liable to injury in transportation. This stimulates home trade in every section of the country and, where prices rule the same, no saving can be made by trading in distant parts of the country. In such long-distance trading, one is obliged to buy without seeing the stock and too often the salesman magnifies his stock, since it looks a great deal larger and better to him than it does to the buyer. The customers are then disappointed and declare that the nurserymen are rogues and not to be trusted, which is, of course, not the fact.

Deviations Will Destroy.

If we are to have standard prices, the nurserymen of this country or their representatives must come together and agree on a fair standard price on all classes of nursery stock according to size and quality; then they must adhere strictly to those prices. Will they do it? Any deviation from such agreement would tend to destroy the whole system; we could no longer travel in high speed, but would be thrown back in low again. I believe that such standardization would be one of the best things that could happen if properly arranged and systematized and put into practice all over the country. There are obstacles in the way, many of them, but they can be overcome in time by proper diplomacy. Some may claim that it curtails their independence and does not permit them to manage their own business in their own way and fix their own prices for their own goods. It is hard to get even two men to hitch up in double harness without kicking over the traces, but it is sometimes best to modify our own views for the common good of all; if it was considered best by the majority to standardize prices, that could no doubt be accomplished to the satisfaction of all concerned. I believe it would elevate the standard and the reputation of nurserymen all over the country and work for the common good of all in the trade. It would gain and hold the confidence of the trade and thus increase our business every year, in that way proving its full worth and satisfying the most skeptical as to its practicability.

Don't Kill the Goose.

At no other period in our history has there been a greater temptation to boost prices, especially in those stocks which are not now obtainable from Europe and are scarce in this country. Some men are, I believe, unreasonable and seem determined to get the "dough" while the getting is good; they have been warned by level-headed nurserymen not to kill the goose which lays the golden egg. We hope there will not be any profiteering in our line of goods, but that all will realize that the future is to be considered as well as the present. There is no great difference in prices among reliable dealers now and what there is may well be charged to demand and supply. I believe that all wholesalers as well as retailers should come together in the matter of prices and form some agreement between themselves as to standard prices. The wholesaler when he retails should charge retail prices, not in-between prices, and the retailer should respect wholesale prices and, if he ever wholesales, charge strictly wholesale prices. That would, I believe, be perfectly fair to both and create a better feeling toward each other.

THE PARK FLORAL COMPANY

Stock should be sold only to the trade during these exceptional times of shortage and high prices; we should cater to each other as much as possible and try to produce all the standard stock we can. The habit of selling stock to department stores I condemn with all the power within me. It is as detrimental to the trade as it is unreasonable and unfair and should be condemned by every fair-minded nurseryman in our land. We need every rose bush, fruit tree and all other stock in the country to supply the legitimate trade and help to stabilize business and tend toward a better standard of prices. If we are to be successful, we must stand together, each helping the other to work out those problems that will benefit us most now and in the future, always remembering that we are dependent upon each other for much of our success in business life, and so march along together, shoulder to shoulder, toward the goal of our ambition, which is success, prosperity and happiness.

When East and West Shall Meet.

There is in Holland, I believe, an association whose members agree to sell only to the legitimate trade and charge standard prices. One of the same kind, I understand, has been started in the west. Shall we in the east, who really built up the west, or gave it its start with money and brains, admit that we left the greater brains and business push in the west and are now only second-raters in comparison, or shall we join hands with them on this most important question and make it a nationwide affair, so that trade in one section of the country will not clash with the trade in other sections? A great many are optimistic enough to believe that standard prices will be adopted in the near future and will become general among the reliable nurserymen of the country.

men who knew little of the needs of the horticultural business. This point he illustrated by telling of a New York orchid grower who applied for permission to obtain a shipment of plants; instead of the permission was sent the catalogue of a competitor, with the advice that he should get his stock for propagating from this other grower. The speaker said that, in the case of orchids which were received at Washington before being allowed to proceed to the grower, the processes of sterilization and fumigation left little vitality in the plants. At the conference on the quarantine recently held in Washington, the only persons who favored the embargo were two orchid growers, one of whom had not yet flowered any seedlings and the other of whom had not sown any seed himself.

E. H. Wetterlow, chairman of the exhibition committee, reported that there had been an unavoidable delay in preparing the schedule for the exhibition, which will be held June 29 and 30, since many patrons and donors of prizes were away and had neglected to send in particulars, but that the schedule was now in the printer's hands.

The officers of the society, which has about 225 members, are as follows: President, F. P. Knight; vice-president, determined to get the "dough" while the getting is good; they have been warned by level-headed nurserymen not to kill the goose which lays the golden egg. We hope there will not be any profiteering in our line of goods, but that all will realize that the future is to be considered as well as the present. There is no great difference in prices among reliable dealers now and what there is may well be charged to demand and supply. I believe that all wholesalers as well as retailers should come together in the matter of prices and form some agreement between themselves as to standard prices. The wholesaler when he retails should charge retail prices, not in-between prices, and the retailer should respect wholesale prices and, if he ever wholesales, charge strictly wholesale prices. That would, I believe, be perfectly fair to both and create a better feeling toward each other.

Stock should be sold only to the trade during these exceptional times of shortage and high prices; we should cater to each other as much as possible and try to produce all the standard stock we can. The habit of selling stock to department stores I condemn with all the power within me. It is as detrimental to the trade as it is unreasonable and unfair and should be condemned by every fair-minded nurseryman in our land. We need every rose bush, fruit tree and all other stock in the country to supply the legitimate trade and help to stabilize business and tend toward a better standard of prices. If we are to be successful, we must stand together, each helping the other to work out those problems that will benefit us most now and in the future, always remembering that we are dependent upon each other for much of our success in business life, and so march along together, shoulder to shoulder, toward the goal of our ambition, which is success, prosperity and happiness.

When East and West Shall Meet.

There is in Holland, I believe, an association whose members agree to sell only to the legitimate trade and charge standard prices. One of the same kind, I understand, has been started in the west. Shall we in the east, who really built up the west, or gave it its start with money and brains, admit that we left the greater brains and business push in the west and are now only second-raters in comparison, or shall we join hands with them on this most important question and make it a nationwide affair, so that trade in one section of the country will not clash with the trade in other sections? A great many are optimistic enough to believe that standard prices will be adopted in the near future and will become general among the reliable nurserymen of the country.

men who knew little of the needs of the horticultural business. This point he illustrated by telling of a New York orchid grower who applied for permission to obtain a shipment of plants; instead of the permission was sent the catalogue of a competitor, with the advice that he should get his stock for propagating from this other grower. The speaker said that, in the case of orchids which were received at Washington before being allowed to proceed to the grower, the processes of sterilization and fumigation left little vitality in the plants. At the conference on the quarantine recently held in Washington, the only persons who favored the embargo were two orchid growers, one of whom had not yet flowered any seedlings and the other of whom had not sown any seed himself.

E. H. Wetterlow, chairman of the exhibition committee, reported that there had been an unavoidable delay in preparing the schedule for the exhibition, which will be held June 29 and 30, since many patrons and donors of prizes were away and had neglected to send in particulars, but that the schedule was now in the printer's hands.

The officers of the society, which has about 225 members, are as follows: President, F. P. Knight; vice-president,

A. E. Parsons, and secretary, L. W. Carter.

Various Notes.

Fred Pocock, who for the last six months has been in charge of a section of orchids at Orchidvale, Beverly Farms, has resigned and has moved to Providence, R. I. He is succeeded by Paul De Nave, a native of Antwerp, Belgium. Mr. De Nave, who came to this country almost twenty years ago, had ten months' experience with John Cowan, Liverpool, before coming here. In this country he was connected with Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y., and also spent four years with Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J. For ten years he had a small establishment of his own at Fall River, Mass., growing simply orchids, but he was obliged to close, because of coal troubles arising from war conditions. He is prevented from starting out for himself again by Quarantine No. 37, which he, as a Belgian, considers especially regrettable, since growers in Belgium are not allowed to send to this country plants which they have taken particular care to preserve through the war for American use. E. E. R.

Detroit, Mich. — Henry Barsch has been kept busy erecting decorations on the D. & C. boats, which run between Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo. There is a large amount of funeral work at the store, where his wife is in charge.

Macon, Mo.—A severe hail storm Monday, April 19, caused much damage to greenhouses in this vicinity. The hailstones were so large, it is reported, that they not only demolished glass, but penetrated shingled roofs. The Craig Floral Co. suffered considerable loss of glass, but not much stock. The greenhouses at the Still-Hildredth sanatorium were badly wrecked, nearly all the glass being destroyed. The Macon Greenhouses suffered a loss of about $2,000, with no insurance.

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers showed a material increase during the last week, which was absorbed by a good demand. Funeral work was especially active and called for numerous large pieces. The display at the funeral of former councilman Horton, of Cranston, was one of the largest seen here in a long time.

Prices rule about normal on cut flowers, while those on potted plants are slightly above those of a year ago. Reports indicate a fair stock of potted plants for the Memorial day trade, but it is evident that the use of wax and other artificial flowers, mounted on galax or magnolia leaves and cycas palms, will be large. Some dealers who have never before carried any of this class of goods will do so this year, claiming that they have been forced to because of the insistent demand.

Various Notes.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, Mass., was a business visitor here last week.

Paul Frey, of Frey Bros., has been passing cigars on the advent of a new daughter in his home.

Joseph E. Koppelman has added a new automobile to his delivery department.

Macnair has increased his space by taking an adjoining store. W. H. M.

Jerseyville, Ill.—V. J. Campbell, whose interest in the florists' business was aroused by the war garden campaigns, has decided, after serving his country in France for eighteen months, to continue his endeavors in this line. He has about three acres in vegetables and half an acre in asters, snapdragons, cactus dahlias and gladioli. He is going to have about 1,000 tulips blooming in the spring. He also intends to build a small greenhouse next fall.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

RADIATION OF BOILERS.

How many square feet of radiation will a 35-horsepower boiler heat?
A. C.—Wis.

For boilers of a large size it is customary to figure 100 square feet of radiation to each horsepower, but it will be safer not to rely upon heating more than 2,000, or at the most 2,500 square feet of steam radiation with a 35-horsepower boiler.

If hot water is to be used and the grate is sufficiently large, the same boiler will answer for about twice the above amount of radiation, or 10,000 to 15,000 square feet of glass, according to the temperature desired.

EITHER HOT WATER OR STEAM.

We have a greenhouse, 20x30 feet, running north and south, with the boiler house at the northeast corner. The walls of this house contain three feet of cement and one row of 16-inch glass below the gutter. The ends are of glass. This is house A.

This spring we will erect another house, 30x90 feet, which will adjoin house A and run east and west. The north wall of this house will contain three feet of cement and one row of 16-inch glass. The west end will be glass except the 3-foot cement wall. The south side will be sixteen inches of cement and three feet of glass.

House B will have a bench running full length of the north side. The rest will be a solid bed for lettuce.

We want to have 60 degrees of heat in zero weather. Kindly tell us how to pipe for steam heat, also for hot water, as we have not decided which we shall use.

What size of steam boiler will be needed, also what size of hot water boiler?
J. M. G.—Mich.

To heat house A to 60 degrees in zero weather about 300 square feet of hot water radiation will be required, while 1,260 square feet will be needed in house B. Use a hot water boiler rated for about 2,000 square feet of radiation. While the size of the grate will vary in different boilers, it should not be far from 30x36 inches for soft coal.

In the way of radiation use for house A three 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 2-inch returns, placing the returns in three coils under the benches, with one flow pipe upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge.

For house B use five 2½-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns. Place the two extra flows on the purlin posts and a coil of three 2-inch return pipes on each wall. The other returns should be on the sides of the beds. If the boiler is below the level of the floor of the houses, a 4-inch overhead flow pipe will answer to supply the five 2½-inch flow pipes in house B. The main return should be of the same size.

To heat the two houses by steam, a boiler with the same size of grate will be needed. This would be rated at about twenty horsepower.

In house A use one 2-inch flow pipe under the ridge and ten 1¼-inch returns.
About three should be upon each wall and the others under the middle bench.

For house B use three 2-inch flow pipes, one on each plate and the other along the sides of the beds, or on the purlin posts. A 3-inch main will answer to carry the steam to house B, with a 2-inch pipe for the drip.

ESTIMATING RADIATION NEEDS.

Is there a general rule by which one may calculate the amount of radiation needed? I have understood that the number of feet of radiation needed for 50 degrees in zero weather could be obtained by dividing the total number of square feet of exposed glass by three, dividing the number of square feet in side walls exclusive of glass by fifteen, dividing the cubic contents by 300 and adding together these three results.

I have a house 25x70 feet, with a the center. Following the method outlined, I found that the figures for exposed glass, side wall area and cubic contents were 2,252, 680 and 17,938, respectively, and that the respective results when these were divided by the figures given were 751, forty-six and sixty, which gave a total of 857 feet of radiation required. A circular from a manufacturer gave 825 feet for the same house.

I shall be glad to know if my estimate is correct. E. B. F.—Pa.

In a general way, the method suggested for estimating the amount of radiation is a good one, but the ratios given should be used for providing 60 degrees in zero weather, instead of 50 degrees as stated. For 50 degrees under the same conditions, the divisors would be four, twenty and 400, respectively, for glass, wall surface and cubic contents.

When it came to checking over the data furnished, I was somewhat in doubt. Although reference is made to glass in the side walls, the exact amount is not stated. Judging from the total amount of exposed glass and of wall surface other than glass, there would be about sixteen inches of glass in the side walls and one end of the house, but from the cubic contents of the house it would seem that the walls are about seven feet in height. If the concrete walls are three feet in height, there must be approximately four feet of glass, and I am in doubt which is correct.

In actual practice, when computing the radiation for a house of this size, the cubic contents may be ignored, and if there is not more than sixteen inches of glass in the walls it should be possible to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather with 600 to 615 square feet of radiation, while for 60 degrees from 800 to 820 feet should be used, the exact amount required depending upon the thickness of the walls. It is, of course, presumed that the house is well built, with tight joints.

GREENHOUSE OWNERS ARE PAYING TOO MUCH

For most of the glazing materials they use

Sooner or later the Greenhouse Trade will wake up to the fact that selling expense represents much of the cost of certain strongly pushed products and that they can get the best material at lowest prices by ordering by mail from us.

The Federal Process Co. was the first concern to advertise Glazing Cement in The Review as a substitute for and an improvement on putty. Unsatisfactory as putty always has been, it was slow work convincing conservative Florists that here at last was something better. But we kept at it until the demand became so large a host of imitators sprang up. Many of them spend more money selling their goods than they do in manufacturing them.

As a matter of fact, Greenhouse Cement is a small item in the Federal line of roofing materials and cement varnishes. Greenhouse Cement is the only item we sell direct to the consumer in small lots, and this advertisement in The Review is absolutely our only selling expense—so of course we can sell cheaper than anyone else and at the same time give a better article.

Having been the first to offer the now widely used Glazing Cement, we know all about the growers' needs. Write to us if you want to get the best materials at lowest prices.

The Market.

Prices have been nearly cut in half since Easter and, as is customary, there has been a drop in the volume of business being done. Growers are now turning their attention to getting geraniums and other potted plants in readiness for Memorial day. They expect a large business at that time.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. report that their Easter trade this year was the largest they have ever had in the twenty years they have been in business. There was a big demand for medium-sized plants and a larger demand than usual for extra large plants.

A. Begerow has had a unique window display for the last ten days. There was a white house, six feet long and four or five feet high, surrounded by potted hydrangeas, yellow callas and other spring flowers. The pots were covered with moss, so the effect was of plants growing in the ground.

FOLEY GREENHOUSES

Built for C. Merkel & Sons, Mentor, Ohio

The Merckels are prominent growers in the Cleveland district. For years they have been building houses of Foley Construction, the last addition being eight houses 300 feet long.

Repeat orders from year to year are evidence of "Foley Dependability," and the best recommendation for "Foley Greenhouses."

If you have in mind the building of a greenhouse, large or small, it will be to your interest to let us figure on it.

The Market.

Stock continues in good supply, with an increased variety from which to choose. Carnations are not so abundant. Almost every local range was in large crop at Easter; hence at Mothers' day there will be a shortage in this line. Carnations sell at $3 to $6 per hundred and fancies are bringing $12 per hundred.

Roses are just about equal to the demand; shorts bring $6 and $8 per hundred and mediums $10 and $12 per hundred, while long stock is to be had at $15 per hundred and up.

Lilies are plentiful in both Easter and calla varieties. Candytuft is new in the market. Pansies and delphiniums are becoming more conspicuous. Gladioli are also new in this market.

Sweet peas, baby roses, pansies and calendulas are the small flowers being offered for corsage work.

Plants are in fair favor. Hydrangeas, rose bushes and calceolarias are particularly attractive at this time. Other offerings include ferns, begonias and potted pansies. Some bedding stock is being put on the market, but, owing to the cold weather, it has been in little demand.

Various Notes.

Paul Weiss, of Chicago, Lawrence Lohman, of Richmond, Ind., and Mr. Asher, of Austin, Minn., were visitors last week and called on various members of the trade.

Robert Fohl has some excellent pansy plants.

Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and Charles Wilcox called on the trade last week.

Baur & Steinkamp have red, light pink and variegated sports of Rosalia carnation. In spite of the continued cold weather, this firm has begun its planting out.

The next meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held Tuesday evening, May 4, at the Florists' Supply House, 105 East Ohio street.

E. E. Temperley has a fine lot of Easter lilies, American Beauty rose bushes and hydrangeas for Mothers' day.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The cut flower trade is about normal and the supply is all that can be desired. Roses are well represented and the quality is good, including Columbia, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty and Killarney. American Beauties are of medium quality. Indoor sweet peas are in their prime and some fine blooms are arriving. Carnations are plentiful and there is a good supply in all colors. Bulbous stock is well represented, such as daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and pheasant's eye, which are mostly grown locally. Yellow and white daisies, mignonette and calendulas find a ready sale. Some fine snapdragons are arriving, which bring good prices. There is a variety of potted plants arriving from the local growers, such as fuchsias, Pelargoniums Easter Greeting and Lucy Becker; cinerarias and begonias.

There is a big demand for dormant rose bushes and hardy perennial plants. Business was good in the seed trade all the week.

Various Notes.

Charles Stahbrodt, of Herman Town road, is bringing in some fine fuchsias and geraniums. J. E. S.

Grinnell, Ia.—The Bough Greenhouse, owned by William Bader, was the scene of a fire April 16, caused, it is believed, by a defective flue. The loss was not heavy.

Pittston, Pa.—Owing to the expiration of its lease and to the remodeling of the building, the William Street Florist Shop, of which Martha Huntley is the proprietor, has moved from 8 William street to 81 South Main street and has changed its name to the Colonial Floral Shop.

"Quick Action" On The Run!

Wonder if you have seen that new Skinner System "Quick-action" coupling.

It sure is what the name implies.

So quick in its operation, that, as one user put it, "you can almost connect it, or disconnect it, on the run."

That "quick-action" feature is of interest to every small grower or florist.

With "quick-action" couplings, and a single line of pipe, you can water half a dozen places.

A "Skinner rain" in one place will keep the ground moist for a week or ten days.

Two or three men can then quickly and easily move the line to another place.

With "quick-action" couplings it goes up in a jiffy.

One line waters a strip fifty feet wide for its entire length at each shift.

Just stop to think what that means compared with hose holding!

Send today for our new book about "Rain—For The Asking." Tells how Skinner System Irrigation has made big profits for its users.

Ventilating Apparatus

Thousands of Florists buy what they require in this line from us.

There is certainly a reason.

Don't you think it would pay to investigate? We are always willing to explain.

Just think for a moment about the numerous places around your establishment where a neat fitting would improve the appearance of your houses 50% to 100%.

There are circumstances of this particular type in every greenhouse plant. Any one of your employees could attach the part if you had it.

Now, while you are looking around, make a memorandum of these places and what you need. Send a list to us and we will see that the material is immediately sent forward.

We know that these facts are true, and the sooner the better for you and your products. Understand that no big expense is attached to making these so-called repairs.
